PREFACE

To the Class of Harvard 1900:

With this Fourth Report I send my greetings to all the members of the Class and thank them for the time and trouble they have spent in helping me make up the volume. It is no easy or pleasant task, I realize, for a busy man to sit down and exhume dates and the exact details of his doings since we left college. The fact that such a large proportion of the Class have sent me the desired information is one in which we may all find reason for satisfaction.

On examining the records in this report it is apparent that all over the country the members of the Class coming to the front in all professions and occupations. This is interesting, but not surprising, for even when we were graduated it was evident that many of our men would win fame. The principal deduction to be drawn from the autobiographies as a whole is that our men have the happy faculty of getting results.

I am still anxious to obtain news of the following members of the Class, for whom I have no addresses, and I shall be grateful for information which will enable me to find them:

William B. Ayers
Leo LeG. Burley
John A. Child
Irving J. Cross
George G. Dewsnap
Ralph C. Dunning
Jacob P. Freeman
Stephen Higginson Jr.
John D. Horgan
Louis La Maida
Henry H. Lancaster
William J. Nagle
George L. Richards
Harry E. Stephenson
Ira G. Webster

Since the Third Class Report was published information has come to me that the following men have died:

John Chandler Bancroft Davis
Nathan Adams Egbert

Benjamin Willis Farris
Robert Dennis Arthur Ferguson
Harry Henderson Greene
William Perry Hager
John Peter Hinchey
Henry Joseph Hosmer
Edward Whiting Howard
Lowell Byrns Judson
Charles Haven Ladd
Frederic William Morrison
Louis Nelson
George Munroe Gage Nichols
Hermon Spencer Pinkham
Christopher Royce
Philip Sands
William Stickney
Caleb Van Husan Whitbeck

I shall be glad to have mistakes in this volume called to my attention.

To the Harvard Alumni Association I render hearty thanks for its valuable assistance in preparing the material for our report.

Welcome to the quindecennial reunion!

Sincerely yours
ARTHUR DRINKWATER, Secretary.

I have been very happy for these fifteen years. This is due to the remarkable beauty of this world we live in; to the people I love and am loved by; and to the privilege that I have as a priest of really getting down to brass tacks with people's souls once in a while, and doing them a little good. Who wouldn't be happy? To be sure, I have had my share of the blues and sickness. When I was a freshman Dr. Sargent said: "Well, you are about the poorest specimen physically I ever saw," and it has taken me eighteen years to get the laugh on him. But I've got it now. I went through the General Theological Seminary in New York, and was ordained to the ministry of the Episcopal Church, and began my ministry in Kansas where I learned more than I taught. I'll never forget the mirage of the desert by day and the stars by night; the men with eyes like sailors who speak without smiling, the homesickness, and two men who are my friends for keeps. Then I became rector of a village church in Massachusetts, where I learned more of how fine just plain people can be. Next I went to an old parish with a beautiful big church and many people. A former rector wrote me that his only advice was: "Don't expect results." I did, and broke down in three years; for I had not yet the laugh on Dr. Sargent. Most of the next year we spent by a lake which reflects Mt. Washington and Chocorua and Moat, where we slept with the loons at night, and followed the birds by day. Then I came to these two parishes; a new parish of mill operatives, and a tiny old parish of aged ladies. Here I have become husky; and here I have become the father of Alleyne Greely Adams, Harvard 1937, the sixth generation of Adamses in his line to go to Harvard. I have managed to keep out of print thus far, and belong only to religious and ecclesiastical societies, which would not interest you.

The fall after leaving college I "accepted a position," or, to be more explicit, "rustled a job," with a large spring wheat flour mill at Winona, Minn., to which, to start with, was attached the munificent salary of $25 per month. My latent ability becoming gradually awakened, I soon found myself in command of an income sufficiently large to live on comfortably. About this time I came into possession of apparently reliable information to the effect that two could live as cheaply as one, and I took to myself a wife. When I look back on that happy event I am inclined to believe that it was one of the few really wise things I have ever done, even though the fallacy of the information above referred to, was conclusively proven. The person disseminating any such information should first have familiarized himself with the "Expectancy Tables." Feeling, after about ten years, that my further advancement with the milling company was dependent, to a great extent, on the demise of my superior officers, and they both being comparatively young men, I severed my connection with said company and embarked in the manufacture of vacuum cleaners, which, from my point of view, appeared to have a great future. I moved to Chicago, and the business flourished to such an extent that it took me almost two years to "go broke." I then drifted out to Seattle and the Coast and soon became interested in the manufacturing of lumber. Under the worst conditions the lumber business, on the Coast, has known, we managed to do fairly well until, just as there appeared to be a slight ray of sunshine ahead, war was declared practically shutting off all export trade. As soon as the war ends, (if it don't last too long), we may get on our feet again. In other words, we are a bit groggy but still have some fight left in us. The only public offices I have held, have been those of president of the local Chamber of Commerce and Manufacture, and president of the City Council. It's a long, long way to Boston and Cambridge, but the only excuse I shall have to have for not attending the quindecennial will be my inability to scrape together the necessary "kale." I sincerely hope to be there, and trust that I shall have the company, across the country, of several of the other 1900 men in this section. We shall surely be there if we're not all "broke." Address	(home) 1333 Washtenaw Ave., Ann Arbor, Mich. (business) University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.

The four years immediately after graduation in 1900 were spent in graduate study and travel, three years being spent at Harvard, and one at the University of Paris. In 1901, I took the master's degree at Harvard, and, shortly after, began work for the doctor's degree. During most of this period, I held an assistantship in French and Spanish at Harvard. In 1904, I came to the University of Michigan as instructor in Romance languages, and I have been connected with this institution ever since. During the academic year 1912-13, however, I had leave of absence from the university, and spent the time in further study at Paris. On my return, I was promoted to an assistant professorship in Romance languages at Michigan. At about this time, also, I published my first book, "Word-Formation in Provencal," as Volume II. of the University of Michigan Studies. I had returned to Harvard to take the doctor's degree in 1907; and the book just mentioned is an expansion of my doctor's thesis. I have written: "Word-Formation in Provencal" (XVII. + 604 pages), published as Volume II. of the University of Michigan Studies. (The Macmillan Co., 1913). Member: Modern Language Association of America, The Dante Society, Société des Anciens Textes Français, Société Amicale Gaston Davis, Sociëté des Anciens Eléves de l'Ecole des Hautes Etudes, Harvard Club of Michigan, University Club of Ann Arbor, Pleasant Lake Club, Siwanoy Country Club, Ann Arbor Golf and Country Club.

At the unveiling, on Memorial Day, of a tablet in the Harvard Union, dedicated to the Harvard men who died in the Spanish War, Henry James 2d, '99, who made the address, spoke as follows of the service of our 1900 men, Nathaniel Brown Adsit and Ralph Ward Lahman. "Adsit like Hollister was one of the very first to volunteer his services as a Rough Rider. He was not then accepted, but later joined Troop C and was left in Tampa. There he and his fellow-troopers curried horses and drilled in the blazing heat. When I mentioned him lately to one of them, the man's first remark referred to an incident that illustrated a quality which made Adsit dear to his troop. 'I remember,' the man said, 'how one day he made a football out of a stuffed feed bag and started us all playing the game.' When luckier men were sent to the front, Adsit set himself cheerfully to the important task of keeping up the spirits of his comrades. When his death was announced to his troop the men dispersed dazed to their tents. Lahman, was a member of the Class of 1900 and got to Cuba with a company of the 1st Illinois Volunteer Infantry. After 48 hours in the trenches he was detailed with others to guard duty at the yellow fever hospital at Siboney. There a volunteer was called for to act as clerk to the surgeon in charge. Lahman stepped forward and began his task at once. When not busy with his clerical duties he was constant in his attendance on the sick, until, thus courting death, he himself fell a victim to the fever."

During the first year after leaving college I taught mathematics in the Manual Training High School of Indianapolis. The charm of Indianapolis and the quality of the educational work in her high schools were not sufficient to offset the hopelessness of miserable salaries paid teachers and I went to the Polytechnic Preparatory School of Brooklyn, N. Y. Always longing to teach college students, I found it hard to be obliged to remain in the Polytechnic Institute among young boys, many of whom had as their only doubtful virtue money. For a college teacher every year spent in secondary teaching is worse than wasted. Hence it was with relief that I accepted a position in Colorado College in 1907. In Colorado College I was given charge of the department of astronomy and was made an instructor in mathematics. After two years I was advanced to assistant professor, and this year to professor in mathematics. Life at the frontier of the Rockies seems good to one who naturally delights in hills, woods and streams. And teaching young men and women who partake in their characters of the bigness and broadness of these mountains is an endless pleasure. In 1912-1913 I was Harvard Exchange Professor. I have written: Freshman Algebra, in mimeograph form, Solid Geometry in mimeograph form, Direct Observations in mimeograph form.

After graduating and house-partying over the Fourth, returned to Cambridge to pack up and found the Cuban teachers. Lingered a month studying Spanish and human nature —principally Latin and feminine. In the fall, I entered the law office in Brooklyn of the father of my good friend and classmate, H. J. Davenport. Fnding myself utterly unfit for the law, in about a year I became an insurance broker, with an office on Fifth Avenue, New York City, soon becoming insurance manager of the real estate business of S. Osgood Pell and Co. and later of Edward McVickar. Five years after graduating, feeling that I had not yet found myself and my line of work I threw up a fair income and growing personal insurance business to start in again at the bottom, this time in advertising. Very soon I was persuaded to become advertising manager of Gladding Dry Goods Co., the oldest business in America, dating back to 1766, now controlled and largely owned by members of my family. I am at present secretary and treasurer of it and have found, I hope, my life work. During my first six years in Providence, I took a very active interest in civic promotion. In 1906 with the idea of crystallizing public spirit and showing what could be done by coöperative effort, I started an Old Home Week, enlisting the support—involuntary in many cases—of nearly everybody. Later I started and became first chief crier of the Town Criers of Rhode Island, a rather unique and for a time extremely successful and influential organization of business men interested in advertising, business building in general and civic promotion. Some two years ago, owing to my increasing business responsibilities and the death of my father, I gave up public speaking and all active part in the various public movements and organizations I had been interested in, in order to conserve my health and cover my work more efficiently. Most of my summers have been spent largely with friends in the Adirondacks. In 1908 I took a most interesting nine weeks' trip out to the Pacific coast, seeing the sights, meeting many prominent people and studying western civic and business promotion methods. In 1910 I spent some time at Eaton's ranch and took a twenty-day horseback trip through Yellowstone Park. In 1912 my horse slipped and fell with me one rainy day and my light went out entirely for twelve hours and intermittently for two weeks after. Some of my chairs are still misplaced, I fear. Last fall I had a slight sun-stroke on a long motor trip and New Year's Eve I strained my heart all too literally. Matrimony is one of the very few dangerous experiences I have not suffered these last eventful ten years in Providence. My last five years have been wonderfully blessed by the gradual cure of that severe stomach trouble which had so weakened my body, beclouded my mind and deadened my spirit since Andover days, especially in and after my college years. To-day I am enjoying that rare and unique experience,—a premature and exhilarating second childhood sans senility. Yea, verily, there's no fool like an old fool—nor so happy a one—especially if he's getting a taste of the natural, normal, healthy youth and play which he missed earlier. I left college during my second year to go into the music publishing business, which proved unsatisfactory. After a few months I entered the real estate office of Henry W.

Savage, at that time at 27 Court Street, Boston, where I held a position as rental clerk and salesman for city proper, Roxbury and Dorchester property. In the spring of 1900 I accepted a position with Simpson Brothers Corporation, of Boston, estimating on contract work for granolithic sidewalks and street paving, and two years later I accepted a position with Warren Brothers Co., of Boston, in a similar capacity. In May, 1908, I formed a company with Mr. George H. Lowe of Arlington, Mass., which was the Lowe-Armington Company, incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts of which I held the position as vice-president and treasurer. The purpose of the company was to carry on a contracting business in concrete paving and construction. In 1913 I acquired Mr. Lowe's interest in the business and since that time have carried on the business alone, under the name of Hervey F. Armington, Incorporated, as president and treasurer. My uncle, Jonathan C. Randall, died in 1900, leaving me the trusteeship of his estate, which trust I still hold. Member: Hale Club, Boston. After graduation in 1900, I spent the next two years as assistant at Harvard College Observatory where I had been employed for the ten years previous to that year. In 1903, was employed at the Curtis & Jones Co., shoe manufacturers of Reading, Pennsylvania. Spent the year 1904 at home, in Arlington, Mass., studying for the civil service examination for assistant examiner in the Patent Office. Took the examinaton for this position on April, 19-20, 1904, and passing, received my appointment on June 26, 1905. Began work in the office on July 1, 1905. Was promoted from fourth to third assistant examiner in November, 1906. Received a second promotion from third assistant to second assistant in May, 1910. My life since graduation has been uneventful. Have made many visits to Arlington, Mass., where most of my vacations have been spent. In August of 1913, took a trip to the Pacific coast, going over the Canadian Rockies to Vancouver, thence taking the "inland route" to Alaska. Returning, visited Seattle, Victoria, Tacoma, and Portland, Oregon, in company with my wife, whose home is in this last mentioned city. After a week in Portland, we started back east by way of Yellowstone Park, Salt Lake City, Denver and the Royal Gorge—altogether a trip of about 9,000 miles. Have been reading law for three years and hope to be prepared for the bar by the next summer. The work at the Patent Office, partaking as it does both of science and the law, is of variety and interest and involves many nice points, and I am very glad to have the privilege of working in this branch of the government service. The year after graduation I spent mostly in certain business investigations in connection with a large land company in Sonora, Mexico, and also visited California and Alaska. After this wanderjahr, I entered Harvard Law School, from which I was graduated in 1904. Having a liking for the West, I went at once to San Francisco to enter practice, and was admitted to the bar in September, 1904. In the following spring, 1905, I formed a partnership with Philip Bancroft, another Harvard man, which met with a fair measure of success. We were burned out of our offices in the Call Building, San Francisco, in the great fire following the earthquake of April, 1906. The firm was dissolved in September, 1909. I continued to practise till September, 1911, being for over a year connected with the law department of the Western Pacific Railroad Co. For several years I had been interested in teaching and law writing, and gave courses at the University of California, in Berkeley, and at Hastings College of Law in San Francisco. In 1911 I accepted a call to the deanship of the new law department at the University of Montana, Missoula, Mont. In the summer of 1913 I taught at the law department of the University of Michigan, and resigned the deanship at Montana to accept a professorship at the University of Wisconsin where I am now located. During the past year (1914) I was secretary of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology. I have written: Articles in various law journals, including "Labor Legislation," (Case and Comment, Sept., 1912); "Partial Law," (12 Columbia Law Review, June, 1912); "Military Dictatorship," (I. California Bar Review, July, 1913); "Consideration," (XII. Michigan Law Review, April, 1912); "Mutuality and Consideration," (XXVIII. Harvard Law Review, Dec., 1914); "Military Authority," (in preparation). Member: University Club, Madison, Wis., Harvard Club, Madison, Wis., Phi Delta Phi, Madison, Wis. After receiving my doctor's degree at Harvard in classical philology in 1903, I came to Bucknell University as instructor in Latin. The next year I was made assistant professor and this position I still hold. I spent the summer of 1911 abroad, giving most of my time to Italy. Feeling the advisability of having a place of refuge in case of losing my job, I built myself a home in the winter of 1912. I have prepared: An edition of the Hauton Timorumenos of Terence, (Sanborn and Co., 1910). I have written: Some Phases of the Cult of the Nymphs, (Harvard Studies in Classical Philology, Vol. XV.), The Cult of the Nymphs as Water-Deities among the Romans, (Proceedings of the Amrican Philological Association, Vol. 34), The Influence of Terence upon English Comedy, (Proceedings of the American Philological Association, Vol. 37). Member: American Philological Association, The Classical Association of the Atlantic States.

Address	(home) 33 Concord Ave., Cambridge, Mass. (business) 719 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, Mass.

I left college in 1898 on account of poor health, and after a few months' vacation went to work as a mechanic in the Cramp Shipyard, Philadelphia, Pa. In 1898 I left, owing to continued poor health, and took a trip to Porto Rico, where I stayed on a sugar plantation for about five months. On my return home I obtained employment with the Boston Elevated Railway Company as rodman in the engineering department and worked my way up through the following positions: pitman, wireman, conductor, clerk, superintendent of employment, to division superintendent. While in the employ of this company I had the experience of taking part in two strikes, that of the linemen and also the conductors and motormen. I resigned from the Elevated Railway February 1, 1913, to accept the position which I now hold with the Cambridge Gas Light Company. During the winter of 1908 I took a trip to Jamaica, Colon, Panama, and San Jose, Costa Rica. As to offices held, I am at the present time a director of the Charles River Trust Company of Cambridge, as well as a member of the Transportation Committee for the Quindecennial Celebration. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, The Oakley Country Club of Belmont, New England Association of Gas Engineers, Cambridge Board of Trade.

After graduating from Harvard College I went to Harvard Medical School, was graduated in 1904. Spent next two years at Boston City Hospital. Settled in Lexington on leaving City Hospital in 1906. Have stayed here ever since and fear I am now in rather a deep rut. As there are no rivers in the town I have not set any on fire. But I have been what is generally considered successful in a general practice of medicine and am living in comparative comfort in a good house with a pretty contented little family. We lost one beautiful little girl at 4 1-4 years, which nearly wrecked our family happiness—and soon after another little girl was born and bid fair to take the other's place, but she too died at 6 months and we felt that our cup of sorrow was running over. But we had one fine boy left. We have kept up our courage, though, and now have another ordered, which I may be able to announce to you before your report goes to press. Am chairman of Lexington Board of Health. Member: American Medical Association, Mass. Medical Society, Waltham Medical Society, Old Belfry Club, Lexington, Men's Club, Lexington.

Summer of 1900 travelled through Europe with Nat Ayer. Fall of 1900 entered the Harvard Medical School where I spent four hard, but intensely interesting, years. In June, 1904, I was given my M.D. In November, 1904, I entered upon a sixteen months' service as surgical house officer at the Massachusetts General Hospital, finishing in August, 1905. I was married in September, and a month later began practice. From the outset my professional work has had to do with surgery, especially that branch of it known as "G. U.", which deals with diseases of the urinary and genital organs of both sexes. Even this little field is so large that it cannot be thoroughly investigated in all its details. Practice came slowly, but has shown a satisfactory advance each year. At first it included all kinds of things, but for the past five years or so, I have seen little else but my special line of work,—the largest part of it in consultation with other doctors. I have spent many weeks and months of my professional life in the library, hospital and laboratory, studying and investigating. The work which I have turned out has been an effort to contribute something to the sum of knowledge in my specialty. The profession can tell you whether I have succeeded. I spent many months of my first years of practice in the out-patient department of the Massachusetts General Hospital as an assistant. Later I was appointed assistant surgeon to the Genito-Urinary Department of the Boston Dispensary. I held this job for two or three years and then resigned to accept the position, in 1911, of genito-urinary surgeon to out-patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital, which I still hold. About that time I was appointed assistant in genito-urinary surgery at the Harvard Medical School, and I have taught the third and fourth year medical students for about eight months each year. In addition to this I have taught many graduate physicians in the Harvard Graduate School of Medicine, where I have given a special course in the anatomy and surgery of the genito-urinary tract. My summers for the past five or six years have been spent at Ipswich, Mass., and a year or two ago we bought some land there, with the intention of building when our "ship comes in." There are the makings of a small farm on the place, and I spend much of my spare time, not to say cash, in making changes and additions. I have found that there is nothing like the out-door life and a close acquaintance with nature, to restore the jaded mind and body to normal conditions. I have published various articles in medical journals. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Union Boat Club, Ipswich Historical Society, Massachusetts Medical Society, Boylston Medical Society, Aesculapian Club, American Medical Association, American Association of Genito-Urinary Surgeons, International Urological Association, American Urological Association, Harvard Medical Alumni Association, Massachusetts

The main facts of my life up to the year 1910 are contained in the previous class reports. In the fall of that year, I entered the Harvard Divinity School; in February, 1913, I was awarded the degree of S.T.B. I have been continuously, and am still much engaged in literary work and research, particularly in the field of church history. Since 1910 I have written the following articles: The Origin of Folk-Melodies, A Garland of Ballads, Irish Folk-Song, New Ballad Texts, William Carter, the Bensontown Homer, Some Aspects of Folk-Song, The Sons of North Britain, The Transmission of Folk-Song, The Collection of Folk-Song, The Bridge of Sunbeams. All the above were published in the ''Journal of American Folk-Lore.'' Psanterin, according to Daniel III. 5, (The Monist, Vol. XX.), Saints and Sainthood, (The Open Court, January, 1914), Martyrs' Milk, (The Open Court, September, 1914), Antiochus IV. Epiphanes, (Journal of Biblical Literature, Vol. XXIX.), The Apocalypse of Ezra, (Journal of Biblical Literature, Vol. XXXII.), A Short Chapter of Seleucid History, (Proceedings of the American Philological Association, Vol. XLI.), An American Homiletic Ballad, (Modern Language Notes, January, 1913), Bells Ringing Without Hands, (Modern Language Notes, January. 1915), Irish Music in the Hudson Manuscripts, (Journal of the Irish Folk-Song Society, Vol. XIII.). Member: American Philological Association, Modern Language Association, American Folk-Lore Society, Society of Biblical Literature, Irish Folk-Song Society, (20 Hanover Square, London); American Unitarian Association.

After leaving college and trying a variety of occupations I finally drifted into newspaper work, beginning on the Boston Record. After several years there I went to the Boston Herald. In the meanwhile I had published short stories in various magazines and a novel entitled, "Joan of the Alley," published by Houghton, Mifflin Company in 1904. In this same year I also won a short story contest conducted by the Ladies' Home Journal—thereby gaining considerable notoriety. In 1906 I joined the Sunday Magazine staff of the Herald and for a year and a half did special articles. A shift in management brought a shift in my own fortunes and I went to Washington on the staff of Ridgway's Weekly—a pleasant experience which, however, lasted only a few months. Then I decided to go West and armed with letters to many editors, visited Seattle and Vancouver. A month or two there convinced me that I had lived altogether too long in Boston to readjust myself to the West, so I came back, determined, sink or swim, to devote all my time to the writing of fiction. It was a hazardous undertaking and for a year or two I was sore tempted to get back again into the old newspaper game. However, chance stories in the Atlantic Monthly, Everybody's, Collier's, St. Nicholas, Smart Set, Saturday Evening Post, etc., kept me going, and in 1909 I published my second novel, "The Web of the Golden Spider." From that point on, the road was a whole lot easier to travel and has so continued to be. In addition to several novels over my own name and many short stories, I have written several books under a pseudonym—which has been quite the most interesting of all my experiences. This was not done with malice aforethought but came about naturally as the result of the curious success of an article put out over no name at all. My work being independent of an office allows me to spend some three or four months every year on a small place in Maine which I have taken pleasure in developing. I am now starting a pine grove there of a thousand trees which ought to be a sure enough grove about 1940. I have written: Joan of the Alley, (Houghton, Mifflin Co., 1904); The Web of the Golden Spider, (Small, Maynard Co., 1909); The Seventh Noon, (Small, Maynard Co., 1910); The Prodigal Pro Tem, (Small, Maynard Co., 1911); The Guardian, (Small, Maynard Co., 1912); The Forest Castaways, (Century Co., 1911); The Lady of the Lane, (Century Co., 1912); Whippen, (Century Co., 1913); short stories. Nothing of particular interest since last class report. Am still engaged in practice of law—alone—with a good deal of personal individual practice. Work has grown in worth and interest, and though my practice is general in its nature, I have been more concerned with the financial end of the law, that is the security markets as to stocks and bonds, reorganizations, etc., in connection with the management and investment of funds for individuals and in the management of trust estates, etc., and expert opinion as to securities.

On graduation from the Law School I entered the office of Hall, Bangs, Barlow and Homans for a few months, after which time I started in practice for myself; and I have so continued ever since, my present firm being Fowler, Bauer and Kenney. For many years I was a member of the Republican Committee of Ward 23 of Boston, being chairman of the committee the last part of the time. For the last six years I have lived most of the time at South Weymouth, Massachusetts, where I have a country place. Outside of my profession, my chief activities have been in the militia and Free Masonry. In the former I am captain and quartermaster of the Eighth Massachusetts Infantry. In the latter I am at the present time senior warden of Eliot Lodge, a past high priest of Dorchester Royal Arch Chapter, master of Temple Council, R. and S. M., and a member of South Shore Commandery, K. T.

The first two years after graduation I taught science in Worcester Academy, then returned to Harvard for graduate work in physics and received my A.M. in June, 1903. The next six years were spent in Los Angeles, California, where I taught science: one year in the Harvard School for Boys, two years in the Los Angeles State Normal School, and three years as professor of physics in Occidental College. When in the Normal School I was State Expert Reader of Physiology. As chairman of the Laboratories Committee of the college I travelled in 1907 twelve thousand miles in visiting the best science laboratories between San Francisco and New York and between Boston and Baltimore and selected equipment which, at the time, made our physics department the best equipped of any college in the southwest. One summer I spent at the University of California. I lectured on wireless telegraphy before the Southern California Academy of Science and the Long Beach Chatauqua. The initiative and vigor of the growing southwest had a strong attraction for me for I felt that I was a part of it; but, after coming East in the summer of 1909, I decided to give up my work in California to be near home once more. Since then I have taught two and a half years in Plainfield, N. J., and three and a half years in Newark, N. J. This is my fourth year as Chairman of the Physics Committee of the New Jersey State Science Teachers' Association, and my third year on the national committee known as the Joint Committee on Physics (N. E. A.). I have contributed to several publications which have been distributed widely among physics teachers throughout the country, in the effort to promote more practical and better teaching of physics. I am tremendously interested in education that touches life. For relaxation I am reviewing manuscripts for publishers and playing golf. I have suffered a great loss in the recent death of my father whose life was the inspiration of his two sons and his many pupils, for he too was a teacher. Member: American Physical Society, New Jersey State Science Teachers' Association, Schoolmen's Club, Newark; High School Men's Association, Newark; Wednesday Club, Newark; Physics Club of New York.

The principal facts since leaving college as I remember them are: Went to Medical School on Boylston Street for four years, being connected with Randall Hall Dining Association as secretary or auditor during that time. Of course, naturally, I had to eat there; it seemed to me the right thing to do. I then got an appointment at the Massachusetts General Hospital, in the West Medical Service for sixteen months, beginning the middle of my senior medical year. I graduated from both places and came to Albany about January, 1905, and took and passed the New York State Board. I came to Buffalo July 4, 1905, realizing that the fireworks were not in my honor, and July 5, 1905, began the practice of medicine and continued whenever I had the chance. I don't think I have ever really killed anybody—and trust that I have done some good. Member: New York State Medical Society, Erie Co., N. Y., Medical Union of Buffalo, N. Y.; President of Roswell Park Medical Club, Buffalo, N. Y.

I have done nothing of a spectacular nature since I left college, and since my marriage. I have devoted my entire time to the care of a rapidly increasing family of very healthy children, four of whom I hope will one day go to Harvard. The death of their beautiful mother has left such a void in my life that if it were not for my children life itself would not be worth while. I can write no more. Aside from college clubs to which I belonged as an undergraduate, I am a member of none except the Varsity Club.

Between 1900 and 1902 I studied law. Between 1902 and 1905 I practised law with the firm of Roberts, Becker, Messer and Groat at Buffalo, and was registrar and lecturer on contracts in the law school of the University of Buffalo. In 1905 and 1906 I was special counsel for the Attorney-General of the State of New York in certain legal matters pending chiefly in New York City. Between 1907 and 1914 I practised law with the firm of Hoyt and Spratt in Buffalo, and was largely occupied with the legal affairs of the New York Central Lines. Beginning January 1, 1915, I am deputy Attorney-General of the state of New York, and expect to be at work in Albany the greater part of the time. These are the bare bones of what has been really an intensely active life. In the main I have had good health, and strength enough. The more I have had to do the happier I have been. Might I add that my wife is a miniature painter of real distinction? And a mother of real distinction. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Fort Orange Club of Albany, University Club of Buffalo, and a number of others.

Your plea that I should write of myself what I would like to hear concerning the "other fellow" is my reason for what follows. I would greatly prefer exchanging experiences face to face—getting thereby much for little given. On leaving Cambridge in June 1900, I "laid over" until fall for one more summer at the shore, and pitched in at the newspaper game in the early fall of 1900 with the New York Commercial Advertiser, City Editor Lincoln Steffens, and a bunch of Harvard fellows on the staff. Would have enjoyed staying at it always, but meant to be an engineer, and, after about a month as a "cub reporter" got into the game as draughtsman and with a slight vacation for a wedding trip early in January, 1901, knocked from one job to another on the way up the ladder (the rungs were darned close together) until in March, 1901, I became manager of the New York office of the American Blower Co. of Detroit, Michigan. I remained with that company continuously until June 1, 1913, filling all sorts of positions as specialty engineer, marine engineer, manager of the export department, etc., and have acted privately as consulting engineer on my own account since 1909 to the present time. In 1903 I removed from Brooklyn, N. Y., to Montclair, N. J., where I lived quietly until in 1910 I was hauled bodily into politics and elected to the Town Council of Montclair, where my troubles began. I served until January 1, 1914, acting in that time as chairman of the committee of roads, sewers and street opening, and as member of the finance committee, lighting and franchise committees, fire committee, building committee, police committee and water committee, all throughout my term and during the last year acting as chairman of the water committee also. Was also a member of special committees from time to time, so that I have been engaged since January 1, 1914, in again becoming acquainted with my wife and children. After leaving the American Blower Company in June, 1913, I spent three months in endeavoring to pull a good proposition together, but gave it up as a bad job, and became president of the Railway Materials Export Corporation, of 149 Broadway, New York, engaging in the export of several high grade railway specialties and through our representatives throughout the world, exporting engineering specialties of all sorts, and acting as purchasers here for foreign firms. A sister organization likewise handles the sale of machinery in the eastern United States. We have not yet given the United States Steel Corporation or the Steel Products Company cause for jealousy, but we are contented, if not satisfied, and the business is growing in spite of the present disturbances. When I left Harvard I went to New Haven and was a student at Yale for four years. Later, in 1903, I came to New York to the Loomis Laboratory and have been here ever since doing a variety of things in a medical way and attempting to make both ends meet at the same time. After reaching New York I was for four years a student in the Cornell University Medical School and have been engaged in research work in this laboratory and in the practice of medicine since that time. I have published a number of papers in the medical journals from time to time during the last few years. Some of these may have been of interest and others have probably been pretty "punk." There is really very little to say about my activities since leaving college except that I have been busy most of the time and as far as I am able to determine I have not lost any weight and probably have not lost any hair since most of that was lost before I left Harvard.

Went to Halifax and raised Cain, then to southern Illinois, the most Godforsaken hole, (Lebanon), as axeman on the construction gang B. & O. S. W. Ry. Then was employed in the shops of the road at Chillicothe, Ohio, was married at St. Paul's church in that town, April 30, 1902. On our wedding trip we went to England, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Russia, Poland, Germany, Bohemia, Austria, Hungary, Switzerland and France. I returned to New York City, where I was employed by the Rapid Transit Construction Co. for one year. Then started as a contractor for myself. In 1904 I purchased my present home. In 1906 I closed out my business and took my family to Shanklin, Isle of Wight. Returning late in 1907, I have been, with the exception of a trip to Canada and a tour of duty in Bermuda, in Scarsdale ever since. In 1909 took a commission as ensign in the 4th Division, 1st Battalion. Naval Militia, New York. Shortly after was promoted to lieutenant (junior grade) 3rd Division 1st Battalion. Then organized, and subsequently commanded the 7th (Separate) Division, 1st Battalion, N. M. N. Y., in New Rochelle as lieutenant. Have taken the compass course for officers, U. S. Naval Observatory, at Arlington, and also in the hydrographic office, Washington, D. C., 1913. Established a sub-station of the hydrographic branch office (New York City) in New Rochelle. Have spent more than the required time at sea, serving in the Rhode Island, Washington, Iowa, Alabama, Florida and Delaware. I forgot to state that in 1905 I was elected president of the Scarsdale Fire Department, whereupon one of my houses burned down. Two or three years ago I purchased a farm as a real estate speculation, which has proved very profitable as a milk farm. I have had a great deal of interesting fun out of it. After leaving college in 1900 I took four years at the Harvard Medical School. After leaving the Medical School I had an appointment as house officer at the Waltham Hospital for one year. In the fall of 1905 I started in practising medicine and surgery. Since starting in practice I have taught obstetrics, materia medica, and am now teaching surgery to the nurses of the Waltham Training School for Nurses, of which I am a trustee. In 1907 I was appointed assistant to the staff of the Waltham Hospital. In 1909 I was appointed a member of the staff. For some years I was on the visiting staff of the Florence Crittenton Home in Watertown. For some years I was bacteriologist to the town of Lexington. For some years I have been and am still a member of the visiting staff of the Waltham Baby Hospital. I am at present visiting surgeon to the Waltham Hospital, visiting physician to the Waltham Baby Hospital, trustee of the Waltham Hospital, instructor and trustee of the Waltham Training School for Nurses, president of the Waltham Medical Club, president of the Waltham Clinical Club, chairman of the Waltham Board of Health, secretary of the Waltham Hospital House Officers' Alumni Association. Left college May 1, 1898, took a course in chemistry at Harvard Medical School in summer of '98, entered Medical School in fall of '98; was graduated from Harvard Medical School in June, 1902. Passed State Board of Registration of Massachusetts in 1902. Was house officer at Hale Hospital, Haverhill, Mass., for fourteen months of 1902 and 1903. Had an office for practice of medicine for a year and a half in Dorchester, Mass., in 1904 and 1905. Since then have only had a few odd temporary jobs which I have obtained by means of having a good knowledge of shorthand, and mostly in New York City; for instance, was public stenographer in a hotel, and did some work for physicians, also in some commercial lines. Have spent most of my time in writing an improved shorthand system of my own, a few lessons of which have been copyrighted. I have written: Shorthand Construction, (Printed by The Sparrell Print, Boston, 1910). Member: Boston Chess Club.

Business	Lawyer (at present Director of Public Safety).
Address	(home) 7515 Lagrange Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. (business) 207 City Hall, Cleveland, Ohio.

After graduation from Harvard Law School, I entered the office of Benjamin C. Starr (Harvard, 1877), in July, 1903, and remained there until January 1, 1905, when I formed a partnership with Samuel J. Kornhauser (Harvard, 1901), which partnership continued until Kornhauser was appointed assistant county prosecutor, in January, 1911. I then practised alone. I have served at various times as acting judge of the Municipal Court (Criminal Branch), by appointment of the mayor. In November, 1911, I was elected a member of the City Council at large (one of six councilmen elected at large), and served in that capacity until January 1, 1914, when I was appointed by Mayor Newton D. Baker, Director of Public Safety, under the new municipal charter. This department has charge of the divisions of police, fire, building inspection, smoke inspection, and weights and measures. In 1904, I wrote for the New Era Magazine an article on "The Jew at Harvard," which received extensive publicity and provoked tumultuous comment. Member: City Club, Phi Beta Kappa Society.

Business	Stockbroker.
Address	(home) 286 Seminole Ave., Detroit, Mich. (business) 116 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.

I left college at the end of the second year. Went to work for Hayden, Stone Co., in the stockbroker's business in Boston and have been with them ever since. In 1908 I came to Detroit as manager of their branch here and have been here now for more than six years, so that I am beginning to feel that the chances of returning to Boston to live are remote. I have not anything of interest to relate. The family and business take much of my time, but I do find leisure to have a good time now and then and be happy. Business	Building Contractor.
Address	(home) Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, Mass. (business) 127 Federal St., Boston, Mass.

Have been in the building business since two years after leaving college and for the past seven years have been senior member of the firm of Bigelow & Harriman, Building Contractors, Boston. Our work is mostly in and around Boston and in the New England States. We make a specialty of residence work, and built President Lowell's house in the College yard two years ago. Have done more or less travelling since leaving college, including two trips abroad with my wife, when we visited England, France, Italy and Algeria. Have also made two trips to the Pacific Coast and other parts of the United States and Canada. My home is in Cohasset, Mass., where I bought a place and built a house about eight years ago and I live there practically the year round. My spare time is spent either in travelling or in some kind of shooting of which I am very fond. Have held no offices. Member: Somerset and Union Clubs, Boston; Harvard Club of New York, Association of Harvard Engineers, Master Builder's Association, Boston, Lodge of Eleusis, Boston, A. F. and A. M.

CARROLL MEREDITH BILL

Born	Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 28, 1877.
Parents	Alexander Henry Bill, Caroline Amelia Cutler.
School	English High School, Boston, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Business	Designer.
Address	(home) 91 Hollis Ave., Braintree, Mass. (business) 577 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

For the six months after leaving Cambridge I held the responsible position of office boy to George F. Newton, architect. For the next year I was with an architectural publishing house, being interested in the illustration of architectural publications. From 1902 until 1912 I was with the firm of Alley and Emery, interior decorators, having charge of the designing department. On their dissolution in 1912 I went to Irving and Casson, and on their acquirement of the business of A. H. Davenport, took charge of the designing room, the firm now being known as The Irving and Casson—A. H. Davenport Co., Boston. Our work consists of the design and construction of anything and everything for the interior and furnishing of all buildings, domestic, public, religious, etc., for the execution of which we have large factories in East Cambridge. My particular stunt is supervision of the draughting room and individually making all the color drawings used in the presentations of designs. The work is carried out under the most agreeable of environments and the only suggestion for its betterment would be to have some 1900 men in the crew. I have become seriously infected with travel bacteria and since 1907 have made four trips to Europe, the Azores and South America. My travels are profitable in an educational way and I am always busy with brush and camera. To go aboard ship with a bag of old clothes and a sketch kit under your arm is, without exception, the greatest fun in the world. I have water colors exhibited every year at all the prominent exhibitions and have published several articles and illustrations on decorative subjects. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Boston Society of Architects, Boston Architectural Club, Boston, City Club, Cochato Club of Braintree.

GEORGE WILLIAM BILLINGS

Children	Robert Teele, May 7, 1910.
Business	Newspaper Reporter.
Address	(home) 156 Congress St., Milford, Mass. (business) 21 Exchange St., Medford, Mass.

Ever since leaving college I have been associated with my father at Milford, Mass., publishing a weekly newspaper and conducting a job printing plant, and it looks now as if the same story will apply at least 10 years from now.

While nominally the local reporter of the paper, my work ranges widely, through the occasional writing of editorials, proofreading, bill collecting (?) and the various mechanical labors of press work and job printing. I am expected to be the handy man and fill in anywhere in an emergency. While the work in a way is the same, week in and week out, news collecting is always new, and there is plenty of variety and no union hours. Past Master of Montgomery Lodge, A. F. and A. M., Past High Priest, Mt. Lebanon R. A. Chapter, Sword Bearer of Milford Commandery, K. T. Member: Nipmuck Canoe Club, Board of Registrars of Milford.

Business	Teacher.
Address	(home) 11 Hudson St., Mattapan, Mass. (business) High School, Dorchester, Mass.

Immediately upon leaving college I commenced teaching in the Dorchester High School, where I have remained since. Any detailed account of thirteen years of teaching would prove but tame reading. I shall, therefore, leave so much more space for the thrilling achievements of others. Member: New England Association of Chemistry Teachers.

Work: The same since last report, opaque wire glass (probably invented in efficient Germany), has come to fret my spirit and lengthen the days. Yet life within the prison walls grows daily more absorbing. Advertising and scientific sales management have been engaging most of my thought for some time, and I believe there are no more fascinating departments of any business than these. Play: Still fussing in gardens. Still hoping I may yet live to join Otway Byrd, George Root, et al, and enlist among the yokels. Lacking in nerve in spite of the alluring temptations offered by Iowa's rich, black soil. (And as Trainer would say: ''That's enough of that Iowa stuff.'') About to build a home in the country on a fine knoll among native oaks, hazels and wild crabs. Six acres only. But they're at the top of the world, ringed about by the horizon, looking into valleys and facing the blue hills of the Mississippi. (Noting, perhaps that we westerners are sentimental also, and somewhat lacking in those finer feelings that are marked by reserve). My plan is to naturalize on this little place most of the trees and shrubs and flowers that are native to Eastern Iowa. Serving on the Board of Education and helping out in various social service organizations. Have had my fling at politics, also. Joined feverishly in the hysteria of the last presidential election, and again in a recent city campaign and got nicely ''trimmed'' in both instances. I find that even at thirty-seven one begins to prefer calm. Is it possible that the much-wanted ''pep'' which the West adores and the East as passionately loathes, is only an indiscretion of youth, not a classmate has wandered this way these five years. There is certainly something decidedly wrong with 1900. Why, Iowa * * * *

The last class report and "Who's Who in America" contain about all that would interest my friends. Like most of you I serve on committees now and then. Last May we had a great pageant here, in which Dwight Davis was a prime mover. My particular job was vice-chairman, properties committee. I am at present on the Board of the Public Question Club, a most interesting and virile organization of men in all walks of life, who meet weekly to discuss the affairs of the time, and to practise themselves in public address. Most of us attend about twice a month. Aside from these occasional vagaries, I continue to spend my energies in serving the public (we are occasionally told we are their servants), and in helping bring up a small and energetic daughter. Immediately after graduating from Harvard, I took a four weeks' yachting cruise down the Maine coast, and on July 20th, 1900, began my struggle to make two ends meet. Boston being my home, I associated myself with Messrs. Burroughs and DeBlois at 30 Kilby street, and did a general real estate business, specializing in real estate trust stocks (a popular form of investment in Boston), until February 1, 1911, when I formed a partnership with my two cousins, Messrs. T. Dennie and Reginald Boardman. We do a general real estate business, both in and out of town, my specialty being the formation of syndicates for the purchase of estates and the erection of buildings, both large and small for commercial purposes. We have been associated in the promotion and subsequent building of many of the largest and most successful hotels and office buildings in Boston, the last being the New Scollay Building Trust of which I am a trustee, and the Niles Building Trust now under construction. I underwent rather a severe operation in January, 1913, the result of many years of acute attacks, in fact dating back to freshman year. Happily for me I am nearly recovered, though I lost one of the best and most active years of my life in the process. I am chiefly interested in yachting, both as a recreation and a sport, and have taken an active part in the races of all classes of yachts, in most of the countries where yachting is enjoyed. Business	Artist.
Address	30 Ipswich St., Boston, Mass.

I left college in the spring of 1900 and worked as private secretary to Mr. S. V. R. Thayer for two years; also as bookkeeper for him. From there I went to Merrimac Manufacturing Co. for one year, then to Lawrence and Co. for one year. From there I went to designing school; then to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts School. As there were not many more places to go to, Boston being a small city, I became an illustrator which is a form of art work, although this is a debatable question. We are doing fairly well, and hope some day in the near future to save enough money to buy a bicycle. Member: Boston Art Club, New York Harvard Club, Harvard Club of Boston.

Married	Grace Lee Newson, St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 4, 1909.
Children	Douglas Danford, July 2, 1911.
Business	Physician.
Address	(home) 4401 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa. (business) Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, Pa.

After four years' work at the McLean Hospital in Waverley, I developed an interest in neuropathology which led to my taking the position of clinical director and pathologist to the Danvers State Hospital. There I spent eighteen very interesting months, giving some time to teaching in the Harvard Medical School. A year ago I came to Philadelphia as senior assistant physician to the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane, where present reorganization and future rebuilding offer an attractive field. I am especially interested in the close correlation of the clinical and laboratory sides of a modern hospital. I group the papers I have written because they give the best idea of my interests. With E. S. Abbot, '85, I have studied in two papers early personal characteristics and their relation to later mental disorder. With E. E. Southard, '98, and others, I have been interested in the analysis, clinical and anatomical, of cases of mental disease grouped by decades of origin. I have sent some case records to the Survey. Member: Neurological and Psychiatrical Societies of Boston and Philadelphia, and the appropriate State and National Medical organizations.

Business	Lawyer and professor of law.
Address	(home) 16 North Park St., Bangor, Me. (business) 15 Columbia St., Bangor, Me.

After Commencement, 1900, I spent the summer in Cambridge as a guide and interpreter for the Cuban Teachers' Summer School. I returned in the fall and entered the Law School where I had already had one year. Was graduated from the Law School in 1902. I was admitted to the Maine bar, at Bangor, in October, 1902, and began practice at once in the same building where I am now located. In 1904 I began teaching in the University of Maine College of Law in Bangor, as instructor in contracts. In 1906 I became instructor in negotiable paper, also, and in 1912 took on equity pleading. In 1913 I was made assistant professor of law. I still conduct a general practice of law, ranging from collections, conveyancing and negligence cases to admiralty. I became interested in politics and was at one time a member of my Republican county committee. In 1912 I became a Progressive, with a capital P, and am still unreconstructed. In the 1912 campaign I was a member of the state committee for this county (a Bourbon Republican county) and we carried it. Giving eight hours of law lectures a week and trying to earn a living for three lively youngsters furnishes me occupation enough to keep me from worrying about the riddle of existence. I pass up the problem of the Weltschmerz and Weltpolitik in favor of earnest and prayerful cogitation on the high cost of living. I have written very little poetry, since Class Day; mostly legal blanks, in which I am well versed, but have produced three dramatic works. One may be called The Bashful Earthquake, and answers to the name of "Betty." One is composed of star-dust, moonlight and sunshine, and goes (all day) by the name of "Mary." The third is a sort of moving picture scenario, in which the landscape changes rapidly every few minutes, and is called "Billy." These are the best things I have done. Any one of them is warranted to be just the thing for the "tired business man." They are my "apologia pro vita mia," the sufficient answer to all questions, the final solution of the problem: "Is life worth living?" I have written a pamphlet, The Trusts and The Constitution, written jointly with Hugo Clark, Esq., of the Maine Bar (T. W. Burr Publishing Co., Bangor). Member: Phi Delta Phi (Hon.), Knights of Pythias, Twentieth Century Club of Bangor, Bangor Historical Society.

Address	(home) 2673 California St., San Francisco, Cal. (business) 268 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

My life's history since leaving college has already been sent in at least as far back as three years ago I believe. Three years ago I was married in California and for one year made my home in Worcester, Massachusetts, where I was connected in business as the president of the Worcester Metal Goods Company of that city. Two years ago, or thereabouts, I severed my connection there and came to California to live. I have been connected for the past year and one-half as president of the California Pharmacy Company of San Francisco, in which city I also live. I wish that I could have something more exciting to report, but I shall have to leave that to others more fortunate. Member: Harvard Club of San Francisco, Cal., University Club of San Francisco, Cal., two or three small local societies.

Address	(home) 380 Broadway, Cambridge, Mass. (business) 243 Broadway, Cambridge, Mass.

In July, 1900, I entered the employ of the Planters Compress Co. of East Boston as a draughtsman. Left in the following year to go into the automobile business in an engineering capacity. In the fall of the same year, I went to work for the Boston Elevated Railway, remaining with this concern until the spring of 1903. During this time, I worked in various capacities in the boiler and engine rooms, tending the switch boards, and in the master mechanic's office. On leaving the Elevated, I accepted a position offered to me by The George Close Co. of Cambridge, wholesale manufacturers of confectionery. I started in at the bottom of the ladder gradually working my way up, until, in January, 1909, I became vice-president of the company. In January, 1912, I was elected president of the corporation, which position I still occupy. On April 5, 1905, I was married to Bertha M. Close, of Cambridge. We have had two children but neither of them lived more than a few hours. Have always resided in Cambridge up to the present time. Am a member of the Third Universalist Society, of which I am treasurer. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, New England Confectioners Club, Cambridge Manufacturers Association.

I am already suffering acutely from writer's cramps, as a result of penning upwards of 1,000 versions of my life history, (varied to suit the exigencies of the various cases), for Who's Who, (kindly don't bother to look it up), and other similar publications, However, (let me add here that the most accurate version will be found in the Bertillon records of the New York Police Department) here goes for another try. First, in general, I have spent my summers seeking much needed rest, for the most part in the wilds of Maine, and my winters, arduously avoiding hard work, in various places, to wit, as follows: From September, 1900, to June, 1904, I taught science and various other things, (covering practically the entire range of human and inhuman knowledge), in Chicago, Pomfret, Conn., Natick, Mass., Cambridge and other places. In June, 1904, I got married and had to find a steady job. For the eight years following, the State of Connecticut was kind enough to pay me fairly well for a series of experiments in the teaching of various branches of science, in the Normal School at New Haven. During this interval various misguided groups of people elected me vice-president of the New Haven Bird Club, president of the East Haven Men's Club, and Justice of the Peace, and at the same time I found leisure to do more or less writing and lecturing, (more to the profit of my readers and hearers than to my own, it is to be hoped). In the spring of 1912 I came to New York, having been appointed secretary to the director of the Public Library, the late Dr. John S. Billings. In October, 1912, having received a lectureship at Barnard College, I left the library. The remaining time has been largely devoted to study in the department of geology at Columbia. In June, 1912, the authorities were kind enough to grant me the degree of M. A.; and at present I am living in hope that they will, with equal kindness, soon reward my feeble but well-meant efforts with a more lofty honor. I have written: Friends in Feathers, (Natick Review, Publishers, 1904); various nature articles in nature magazines and newspapers. Member: New York Academy of Sciences, New York Mineralogical Club, New York Botanical Garden, University Club of White Plains, New York Physiographers' Club.

Since 1900 I have been at the University of Minnesota, first as graduate student and scholar in botany, then as instructor and assistant professor. I have spent all my summer vacations for twelve years in British Columbia, doing botanical field work and exploration and mountain climbing, chiefly on Vancouver Island and in the Selkirk Range. I have written, with C. O. Rosendahl and F. E. Clements, A Guide to the Trees and Shrubs of Minnesota (published by the University of Minnesota). The last fifteen years have been wholly uneventful from an outside point of view. Owing to poor health, most of the time, I have been unable to engage in any regular business. My chief interest lies in the field of landscape architecture, and I have done a little work along this line. I have kept myself well informed in the allied subjects of city-planning and the park and playground movements. Two hobbies have been an inspiration and help to me. In the first place I am deeply interested in etchings and engravings. and the study and enjoyment of prints is an unfailing source of interest. In the study and collection of book-plates I find another harmless and fascinating diversion. Member: American Bookplate Society of New York, Appalachian Mountain Club of Boston.

Business	Advertising and sales manager.

A wandering journalist, I, a sort of catch-as-catch-can journalist, for some years after leaving Cambridge. Successively—and, forsooth, more or less succssfully—I did newspaper work of every kind, from sports and police reporting down to editorials, in Boston, New York, Louisville, Atlanta and Boston once more. Two or three years ago, while Sunday editor of The Boston Herald, I saw rosy fingered trade beckoning; so, handing over the "We return herewith" slips and the schedule of the next issue to a 1901 man, I told my colleagues good-bye and abdicated. Since then, I have been sales manager and advertising manager of E. T. Slattery Company, Boston, importers and retailers of women's apparel—a so-called "specialty store." As second in command eight months of the year and first in command four months, when the commander is in Europe, I am content enough, have been prosperous enough to build a house and, glory be, have been able to avoid the tired business man's unduly obtrusive waist line. The sharpest disappointment of my experience out in the great wide world came on pay-day of the first week of my journalistic novitiate. The chancellor of the paper had no fat little Manila envelope for me. I appealed to the city editor. He transposed the ink well and the mucilage pot of his great desk. He readjusted the red blotter so that the lines would run true. He re-transposed the ink and the mucilage. He informed me that it was immemorial custom for bright young college men to work a week without pay. It would damage his prestige, it would set a deplorable and far-reaching precedent if he should give me anything but expenses for the first seven days. But,—and he spoke the but in a tone of at least 72 point Gothic bold caps—he would place my name on the salary list immediately. What had my expenses been? With a restraint most admirable in one so young, I murmured that they were inconsequential and trudged, heart bowed down and head hanging, to a bench on the beach of the Frog Pond and meditated on the lives of the martyrs. In time, the skies cleared. At the end of the next week, I received not only my salary of six dollars but an expense allowance of three dollars and ninety cents,—the statutory limit in those days. In New York, Louisville and Atlanta, I did the average work of the average not-over-skilful reporter. One fall, returning to Boston to see the Yale game, I found a cordial welcome at The Herald, stayed there as reporter, and became Sunday editor. Six days a week—five and a half in summer—I spend most of my time trying to make two dollars grow where one grew before. Our organization is not a large one as such things go nowadays,—a force of between two and three hundred and an annual business of less than a million and a half. It is large enough, however, to allow opportunities for social and welfare work of various kinds, and those little opportunities are some compensation for leaving a profession where most of my friends are today and where it often seemed as if one was paid for play. The reading which I had no time for as an editor I have plenty of time for now. I have found that business life does not shut the door on purely intellectual enjoyment,—in my case, the door swung open. The theatre, the written play and the art exhibition have now a zest which I never found in them before. I have indulged in athletics freely,—tennis, in which I take the duffer's delight; squash, at which I am now something better than a duffer; and baseball, which I play once a year on the St. Botolph nine. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, New England Dry Goods Association (secretary), St. Botolph Club, Boston.

When one is asked to furnish an autobiography, he realizes that time has slipped by almost unawares, and wonders perhaps for the first time what he has accomplished that is worthy of remembering at all. The one thing that I do regret since leaving college is that I did not stick it out another year and graduate as I might have done, although I was put back a year because of entering from Amherst without examination. I have never felt that I might have gained anything material from graduation, but that additional year would not have been missed from business life and it does make a decided break in my college record. It has always caused an explanation somewhat equivocal. I left college almost on the spur of the moment after I decided to enter my father's business instead of law, which was my first choice. The profession looked too much like that of a virtuoso, as compared with the business berth that awaited me. So I entered with my father in Worcester and began to learn the business of handling, preparing, and contracting "Scrap Iron and Metals." This was established by my grandfather in 1849. The E. Buxton and Son Co. was formed soon after I entered the firm and I was made general manager in a few years. For a stretch of ten years I worked very hard. Our plant here in Worcester was doubled and we had trackage for 27 cars at one time. I also established branch yards at Lowell, Waterville, Me., Boston, Cheslea, and Philadelphia. During this time I also worked up a foreign business, covering principally England, Germany, Belgium, France and Italy. This foreign business developed into an important item in the last few years and I found it necessary to make three trips across in one year. It is surprising how small the world is; one would be surprised to hear of some of the fellows both from Amherst as well as Harvard that I have met in various places abroad. I finally formed the Perry, Buxton, Doane Co., which was an amalgamation of our family interest and our principal competitor, and now have main office in Boston and thirteen branches about New England. As a side line I entered the automobile business and after nine years dropped what now I should consider a modest fortune; at least enough to take care of myself and run a monthly account at the garage and take a fall trip through the mountains. But it's gone; sometimes the other fellow gets the money, but you get the experience; in my case I get neither. I resigned from the Perry, Buxton, Doane Co., all positions except director, one year ago, and have started in business for myself. The above gives an account of myself in a kind of a bird's-eye view style, but it serves to show which way the wind blows. I must call this confession to a close and get out to begin life over again as it were. If this word gets to anyone that has found the road rather rocky, let me encourage him never to give up the ship; stand on the bridge and go down with the ship, as they say nowadays when everything is military, even women's hats. Member: Boston Athletic Association, Boston, Mass.

In the fall of 1900 I entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, where I studied medicine until December, 1902, when I was obliged to leave on account of ill health. After spending a year or more on Upper Brandon Farm, my present home, on James River. Virginia, I again returned to New York City. This time I went into business and entered the employ of Messrs. Edgerly & Crocker, stock and note brokers, and was for three years in their New York office. Shortly after this I was married, and, having previously become much interested in farming, we decided to make our home in Virginia on Upper Brandon Farm, where we still reside. Although not highly remunerative, farming under favorable conditions is an interesting and healthful occupation and I believe more Harvard men should take it up as their life-work. I farm about 800 acres. We use mules and negro labor almost exclusively. We do general farming. Our only specialty is beef cattle. In August, 1900, I sailed for France and spent about a year with headquarters at Paris. I studied European history in the Ecole des Sciences Politiques (to which I had a free scholarship from Harvard), and the Sorbonne. The following year I spent in Germany, taking lectures in the Royal University at Berlin. In 1902, I returned to Cambridge and was proctor and assistant in History I. for the year 1902-3. In 1904 I received the degree of Ph. D. in history from Harvard. From 1904-07, I taught history in Wellesley College and for one year also French. In 1904-5, I taught French in Brown and Nichols School, besides the work at Wellesley. In 1908 (8 March) I was made deacon in the American Catholic church in the parish Church of the Advent, Boston, by the bishop coadjutor of Fon du Lac. My diaconate was spent at Grace Chapel, on the East Side in New York City. On October 6, 1908, the bishop of Massachusetts ordained me to the priesthood in the Church of the Advent, where I have ever since served as curate. I have spent several summers abroad, but beyond that my life has been the quiet, though very busy, life of a parish priest in a large down town city church. My special charge in the parish is the oversight and training of the children, in the Sunday school, confirmation classes, etc., and providing recreation for them. In 1914, July, I took 20 boys camping in Maine for a fortnight and greatly enjoyed the experience. Our parish has about 3,000 members who are scattered all about eastern Massachusetts, so that visiting is a lengthy undertaking. I have written: The History of Italy, B. C. 44 to 1906, edited and partly written anew. History of Nations Series, Henry Cabot Lodge, editor in chief, (Colliers, N. Y., 2d ed. 1914). Member: Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament, Guild of All Souls, Boston Catholic Club, Society of S. Willibrord, Anglican and Eastern Orthodox Churches Union, American Church Union, Westminster Conference.

After graduating I spent two years as graduate secretary at Brooks House, incidentally taking one or two courses in the Graduate School. In October, 1912, I sailed for India to become Y. M. C. A. travelling secretary for North India. Most of 1903 was spent in Burma. In 1904 I became general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of India and Ceylon, travelling extensively throughout the empire. In 1904, I visited England and America. In 1906, I visited England, France, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Egypt, and in 1907, China and Japan. In 1908, I returned to America to become executive secretary of the North American Student Y. M. C. A., with headquarters in New York. My work involved visits to a large number of universities and colleges throughout Canada and the States. In the autumn of 1911, I returned to India to become once more general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. In the summer of 1913, I spent two months in America securing twelve additional secretaries for India. Since the war broke out I have organized Army Y. M. C. A.'s in eighteen military centres in India and have coöperated in sending eighteen secretaries from India to serve the native regiments in France. For the past two years I have been honorary secretary of the National Missionary Council of India, an organization representing the 4,000 missionaries and aiming to promote unity and coöperation, businesslike methods and real statesmanship on the part of all missionary societies in India. As editor of the "Young Men of India" (Association Press, Calcutta), I have written several editorials and articles.

After leaving college I returned to Honolulu and went into the real estate and insurance business. This I did not like and was very glad to return to Cambridge as an assistant in English in the summer of 1903. After a year as an assistant I was made an instructor, and continued teaching English until 1907 when I was appointed assistant dean of Harvard College. Not having had any vacations at all I found myself suddenly tired out in the beginning of 1912 and was ordered away for a holiday. We went abroad and did not return until the summer of 1913, spending most of our time in Algeria. After getting back I decided not to take up my former work and was particularly glad to be able to turn over the office to that excellent 1900 man, Harry Yeomans. During the last year I have been endeavoring to discover why it is that Americans in general, and Harvard students in particular, write such very bad English. That investigation, as well as giving a course or two has kept me very busy. During these last years I have perhaps kept in touch with the widely scattered members of the class as well as anyone, because every winter I have made a long tour for the purpose of telling distant Harvard clubs as to what is going on in Cambridge. On June 1 I shall succeed William R. Thayer as editor of The Harvard Graduate Magazine. My resignation as assistant dean, to take effect September 1, has been accepted. I have written: "The Green Vase," (Dodd, Mead and Co., N. Y., 1912), "Hawaii Past and Present," (Dodd, Mead and Co., N. Y., 1913), "The Pillar of Sand," (Dodd, Mead and Co., N. Y., 1914). Various articles, mostly on college subjects. Member: Boston: Harvard Club, Tennis and Racquet Club; New York: Harvard Club, Grolier Club, Authors Club.

Ths sounds like the list of ships in the Iliad; but if shrinking modesty is permitted to control, no one will write anything of himself. So here goes. After leaving college I went to the Harvard Law School, graduating in June, 1903. The summers of 1901 and 1902 I spent abroad, and in July, 1903, I set out upon a journey around the world, which occupied nearly a year and a half. In the course of my travels I visited Russia, Turkestan, Persia, Constantinople, the Balkan States, Greece, Egypt, Syria, India, Java, Siam, the Philippines, China and Japan. At the end of 1904 I came to New York and entered the office of Hornblower, Byrne, Miller and Potter. I was afterwards with Byrne and Cutcheon, and Masten and Nichols, and in October, 1911, commenced to practice independently. In April, 1914, I formed a partnership with Richard Carley Hunt, a Yale man, and Albert F. Jaeckel, a graduate of Williams, under the name of Chadbourne, Hunt and Jaeckel. Since coming to New York I have taken an active interest in politics. For a number of years I was a member of the Republican State Committee of New York County, attending as a delegate the state conventions of 1908 and 1910. In the latter year I joined the Progressive party and was a member of the committee which had charge of organizing the party in New York County. I am a member of the Progressive State Committee and am treasurer of the New York County Committee. I have been chairman of the State and County law committees. In 1912 I had charge of the proceedings brought to have the Levy Election Law declared unconstitutional. For several years I was chairman of the Executive Committee of the Intercollegiate Civic League. In 1913 I was chosen a member of the Fusion Committee of 107 and one of its Committee on Candidates. This committee selected the Fusion ticket which was successful in New York municipal elections of that year. I am also a member of the Council of the National Municipal League. In 1908 I joined Squadron A of the National Guard of the State of New York and served in it until 1913, when I took a commission as second lieutenant on the staff of the Twelfth Infantry. Member: Harvard, Metropolitan, University, Union League, City, Squadron A, Economic, Camp Fire, Explorers, Downtown, and the Piping Rock and Ardsley Country Clubs; Civil Service Reform Association, Appalachian Mountain Club, Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 269 Harvard St., Cambridge, Mass. (business) 701 Barristers Hall, Boston, Mass.

After leaving college I entered the Harvard Law School, graduating in 1903; in the fall of 1903 I entered the office of the late William A. Munroe Esq., where I remained until his decease in the summer of 1905. Then I formed a partnership with Huntington Saville (Harvard, A.B., 1893, LL.B., 1896) under the firm name of Saville and Chandler with office at 23 Court Street, Boston, later removing to our present offices at 701 Barristers Hall. We carry on a general practice, with special reference to real estate and probate law and the care of trust estates. Since 1900 I have lived continuously in Cambridge, enjoying life in and around the old University City. Have made two trips to Europe, and hope to go again when time and money and conditions abroad may permit. My most pleasurable diversion is attending what has now become the annual football victory over Yale. Politics has occupied a considerable part of my time since leaving college. From January, 1908, to April, 1911, I served three terms in the Cambridge Common Council; in the spring of 1911 I was a candidate for the Cambridge Board of Aldermen, but was defeated, although I had the pleasure of receiving more votes than any other member of my party. On November 3, 1914, I was elected a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives for the year 1915. For many years I have been a member of the Cambridge Republican City Committee and am now vice-president of the committee, and have also been connected with other political organizations. Many outside interests have engaged my attention from time to time, and at various times I have held office in different religious and charitable organizations, such as trustee of the Cambridge Young Men's Christian Association, trustee of the First Baptist Church of Cambridge, director of the Boston Baptist Bethel, honorary counsel of the Associated Charities of Cambridge, and other similar organizations. I have served three years in the First Corps Cadets but, otherwise than this, the military life has not attracted me. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York, Boston City Club, Boston Chamber of Commerce, Colonial Club of Cambridge, Cambridge Club, Economy Club of Cambridge, Cambridge Board of Trade, and other organizations of a professional and political nature.

After leaving college at the end of Junior year, I came back to Chicago and started to learn as much of the real estate business as possible. I became errand boy in my father's office, making the third generation in the business. In May, 1902, my father turned over the business to me, and I helped to form a partnership with Henry A. Knott, a prominent real estate man, under the name of Knott, Chandler and Co. By the end of six years the firm had prospered, Mr. Knott was bought out, and two men of about the same age helped me launch the firm of Chandler, Hildreth and Co. James E. Hildreth was killed in an accident in the fall of 1912. So John Daniel Wild, a Williams boy of the year 1896, and I, under the firm name of Chandler, Hildreth and Co., are trying to run one of the largest (it's perfectly proper for a real estater to boast) firms in Chicago. We can do you any way and all ways, rent you a home or flat, sell you a prairie lot, or trade your old cats and dogs off for something worse, not to mention make you a loan (if you have the security) or sell you a mortgage if you have the coin. Step right up, fellows. Chicago is half of the United States now, and soon New York will only be a suburb. But any way a real estater cultivates the glad hand, and mine will be doubly glad to see any of the 1900 fellows. And now the other side. It was a blank up to February 21, 1914—then the honeymoon started: Honolulu, Japan, Shanghai; and at Hong Kong there was old Eddie Sanbourne sitting in a chair in the hotel, just as much at home as in the Touraine. He is a delightful chaperone. He joined us later back in Japan. In Manila, Roberts (1900), a professor now of mathematics, joined our boat. And then the next thing to do after a honeymoon is to build a nest. Ours we built as a bungalow on top of a fire-proof apartment building, overlooking Lake Michigan, and within ten minutes of the business centre of town. Next I suppose I will be teaching the youngster to fly. Member: Harvard Club of Chicago, Harvard Club of New York, University Club of Chicago, New England Society of Chicago, Chicago Real Estate Board, Western Efficiency Society, Chicago Geographical Society.

After graduating from the Law School I opened a law office at once in Boston, where I am still practising law, and took up a residence in Cambridge. Four years ago I bought a home in Newton, where I have lived ever since. While in Cambridge I became interested in politics and for two years was a member of the Common Council. Soon after graduating from the Law School I took charge of a summer hotel which was owned by the family and have been operating it ever since. It is the Wesley House at Oak Bluffs on Martha's Vineyard, a house of about one hundred rooms. We have had the pleasure each year of entertaining the governor and many other distinguished guests. The hotel work is fully as attractive as the law. It is much the same kind of work,—taking people in. Come and see me. The rates are quite high and we do a strictly cash business. I am at present Master of Mizpah Lodge, A. F. and A. M. at Cambridge. I am also a member of the Harvard Club of Boston, and vice-president of the Oak Bluffs Country Club.

Lacking but one course for my bachelor's degree at the end of junior year I enrolled for my senior year in the Graduate School and specialized in history leading to a master's degree—A.M. in history which was granted me the following June. A change in my plans diverted me from following up this work in history at that time and I entered the Harvard Law School in the fall of 1900. There I was a member of the Ames Gray Law Club, the other Harvard men being John Holliday and Bill Chadbourne of 1900 and Benjamin Merrick, '99. In June 1902 I passed the Massachusetts bar examinations, but remained in the Law School for the third year. Taking my degree in June, 1903. The same month I married Miss Anna C. Wigglesworth, daughter of George Wigglesworth, '74. We settled in Milton and in September I entered upon the practice of law in Boston in the office of Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter. In March, 1905, a period of poor health sent me South and soon after my return to the North I retired from the practice of law, keeping only such interest in the profession as the continuance in some few trusteeships required, and returned to the study of history from which I had been diverted at the close of my year in the Graduate School. Since 1906 I have devoted myself to the study of history, especially to the teaching of history, doing some work at Harvard in the Summer Schools and taking great interest in the promotion of history teaching, through the New England History Teachers Association of which I am now vice-president, and through the American Historical Association. Since September, 1906, I have taught history at Milton Academy, and have devoted myself to the general problems of secondary education. In my vacations I have travelled but little, in 1901 through the Canadian Rockies to Alaska as far as the White Pass, down the Pacific coast to Los Angeles and home through Colorado. In 1903 I spent the summer with my wife in Europe, chiefly in the Tyrol. In 1911, a riding trip through the mountains of North Carolina and since 1910 almost every summer cruising on the New England coast from New London to New Brunswick. I have never been a candidate for political office, my only semi-public service being rendered in connection with our local horticultural societies and in the promotion of the movement for gardens for school children in association with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The year following my graduation I assisted in English A at college. The following spring I passed the examinations for appointment as second lieutenant in the Army, and was assigned to the Artillery Corps, joining at Fort McHenry, Maryland, in September, 1901. In December of that year I was made Adjutant of the Artillery District of Baltimore and served in that capacity until December, 1904, when I was transferred to the 6th Battery, Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Riley, Kansas. I was married on October 7, 1903, to Mary Smith, at Andover, Massachusetts. We have a daughter, Mary, who was born at Fort Howard, Maryland, November 12, 1904. I served with my battery at Fort Riley, Kansas, until November, 1905, and also attended the School of Application for Cavalry and Field Artillery at that place. In November the battery changed station by marching to Fort Sam Houston, Texas. I remained on duty with the battery until July, 1907, when I was appointed aide-de-camp to Brigadier General

Albert L. Myer, commanding the Department of Texas. I served on General Myer's staff until his retirement in November, 1910, and was then transferred to Battery C, 1st Field Artillery, at Fort McKinley, Philippine Islands. I remained in the Philippines until February, 1912, and was fortunate enough to take a trip to China and Japan while on leave just prior to coming back to the United States. Upon arrival in this country I was ordered to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, in command of Battery B, 5th Field Artillery, one of the instruction batteries at the School of Fire for Field Artillery. The following year I was appointed an instructor at the school but also retained command of my battery until June, 1914, when I was ordered to Washington for duty in the Division of Militia Affairs. I was also at this time made secretary of the United States Field Artillery Association and editor of the Field Artillery Journal. My duties involve the inspection and instruction of seven batteries of field artillery of the organized militia stationed in Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia. I was promoted to the grade of 1st lieutenant in January, 1907, and to the grade of captain in March, 1911. I am thoroughly interested in my work, happy in my home, and convinced that life has been very good to me. Member: Army and Navy Club, Manila, P. I.; Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C.

Immediately after graduation, I was made treasurer of the Investment Corporation, note brokers, Boston, an office which I held until the spring of 1906. The six years were fairly prosperous for me, uneventful and unsatisfying and I lived in Lynn. "Do you like to live in Lynn?" "Copey" asked me one night, with that guileless look that is so disarming. I didn't, but I realize now that it was a valuable experience. Unless one is born into the enviable class of the mentally unemployed, it is quite impossible to live in Lynn without developing an enduring and healthy discontent with unintelligent conservatism. Fortunately for the survival of discontent, there are more Lynns then the prosaic map-makers admit. Four somewhat extended vacations were compensations for months that seemed wasted. Twice in the winter I went to southern California; twice in the summer to Europe.

One of the latter journeys was the customary tour to the customary places; the other a horseback ride through Iceland. In April, 1906, I took up newspaper work as a reporter on the Boston Post. After six months there, I went to Spokane, Wash., where I remained for more than a year, on the Spokane Spokesman-Review. It was quite long enough and I returned to Boston and, in December, 1907, I started again on the Post. I have since been there uninterruptedly. For a short time, I worked as a reporter again, then in a somewhat dazzling profusion of jobs, rewriting, reading copy on the night desk and acting as night city editor for various nights of each week. For the last few years, I have had charge of one of the Post's feature sections, one of the few newspaper positions that give one the dignity of an office without the inconvenience of having to use it. I was married in 1909 and lived at first in the West End. When the subway went to Cambridge, I went too. I suppose that any such inclusive "Who's Who" as this report should include recreations and political beliefs. My chief recreations are tennis, writing unsalable fiction and articles, and the Boston Athenaeum. In normal times, I presume that I might be a believer in socialism were it not for the fact that I know so many socialists. When my wife and daughters are reinforced by a laundress, a nursemaid and a housemaid, I begin to have a dawning perception that feminism is not so nebulous and visionary a thing as it may seem to bachelors or as it would have sceemed to me, had I heard of it between 1896 and 1900. But today it seems impertinent to think of socialism or any other 'ism. For the first time, I am interested in my own genealogy. I have a profound gratefulness that Celtic blood predominates in me and that my ancestors were Scottish and French. I wish that I might unearth a scandal that would contribute a little Belgian blood as well, but I am afraid that there was too much respectability for that in my remote past. But if I can't have the honor of a Belgian bar sinister, I at least haven't any past "made in Germany." So I can breathe freely in these great days.

Various reasons, prominent among which was the matter of finance, sufficed to deny me the senior's year in college. The Harvard Medical School's M.D. cum laude in 1903 represents four years of study in the school and in minor work in various hospital clinics. For the following year and a half, I was surgical house officer in the Massachusetts General Hospital. Immediately after finishing that period of busy activity, valuable practical experience, and charitable service,—a period of pleasant associations and memories never to be forgotten and always cherished, I became assistant to Dr. John W. Elliot in private practice, spending spare time in one or another clinic and occasionally finding a patient all "my own." This condition persisted till about 1910—"medical agriculture"—implying not so much growing a practice as attempting to plant the seed, till the field, and hope that honest efforts might induce one to grow. During these years, I was for different periods district physician to the Boston Dispensary, graduate assistant at the Massachusetts General Hospital, surgeon to the accident ward at the Massachusetts General Hospital, assistant-surgeon to the Genito-Urinary Department of the Boston Dispensary, visiting physician to the Rachel Allen Home. I went abroad for some special study in England, France, and Germany about then (1909) and since then have limited my practice exclusively to surgery. Since 1910, at one time or another, I have been assistant surgeon to the Genito-Urinary Department of the Boston Dispensary and surgeon to out-patients in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, recently resigning. At present I am visiting surgeon to the Medfield State Hospital and consulting surgeon to the Leonard Morse Hospital of Natick. During such vacations as I have had during the last five years, I have enjoyed fishing and shooting, usually the latter, because of real assistance rendered by a real dog. I have published various articles in medical journals on surgical subjects, and "1900 Men in Medicine" (Crimpoon, 1915). Member: Boylston Medical Society, Aesculapian Club, Boston Medical Library Association, Harvard Medical Alumni Association, Massachusetts Medical Society, American Medical Association, American Urological Association, Massachusetts General Hospital Alumni Association, Union Boat Club, Longwood Cricket Club, New England Kennel Club, Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York.

For two years after graduation I was an instructor at Dummer Academy. From 1902-5 I attended the Law School and was also an assistant in Government I. in the college. From 1905 to the present time I have practised law in Boston. For several years I was associated with other lawyers, but since 1912 I have practised independently. My life since graduation has been deficient in some of those details so eagerly sought by an inquisitive class secretary. I have neither written a book nor married. My membership in clubs has been mainly in professional organizations. I have resided since 1906 in Ayer, Mass., and have been honored by election to some of the town offices. I have not ventured further into the pool of politics. Among my official acts as trustee of the town library, I recently found pleasure in buying a series of books written for boys by one of the authors in the Class of 1900, well knowing they would be equally profitable and entertaining. In undertaking to comply with the secretary's request to cover both work and recreation, I find it difficult to make an accurate distinction between the two. The practice of law contains much drudgery, like other callings, but frequently it is full of diversion. For the last two years I have at times played golf. The game is commonly regarded as a recreation, but played as it may be, it savors of being a profession in itself. I doubt whether a good golfer ought to be encumbered with any other calling. The line between work and recreation I find to be quite elusive. Member: Pepperell Golf Club, Middlesex Bar Association, Suffolk Bar Association, American Bar Association.

In July, 1900, shortly after graduation from college, I entered the Federal Forest Service and was sent to Arkansas, where I was engaged in field work. The following fall I entered the Yale Forest School from which I was graduated in 1902. The summer of 1901 I spent in the Adirondacks doing field work for the Federal Forest Service. Early in the summer of 1902 I again entered the U. S. Forest Service remaining with it till January 1, 1907, when I resigned. During my engagement in this service, my work lay in New York State. southeastern Texas, the lower Mississippi Valley, Colorado, and Idaho. In November, 1907, I was engaged as forester by the Great Northern Paper Company in Maine, with which company I remained till March, 1910. In August, 1910, I entered the employ of Fisher & Bryant of Boston and remained with this firm till February, 1912. My work during this period lay in Maine, New York, Massachusetts and W. Virginia. In July, 1912, I entered the employ of Vitale and Rothery of New York, and spent about three months exploring timberlands in Quebec. In January, 1913, I entered the Bureau of Entomology in the U. S. Department of Agriculture and since that time have been engaged in an attempt to produce a forest growth which shall be free from serious insect damage in New England. After leaving college I worked in the Boston Athenaeum for a few months and then went abroad for three months. In the fall of 1901 I entered my father's real estate office in Boston, later leaving there to go with F. S. Moseley and Co., note brokers. Was sent to their Chicago office and soon opened a branch office in St. Louis for them. I lived in St. Louis for about four years, found many 1900 men there and soon felt very much at home. Was married in 1905, which left very little to be desired. However, was attracted to the bond business and removed to Chicago to open an office for The William R. Compton Co., a large St. Louis house dealing in municipal bonds. In 1913 was given charge of the western business of E. W. Clark and Co., Philadelphia, with offices in The Rookery, Chicago, which job I am holding down at present. I live in Winnetka, a suburb of the north shore, which boasts of over fifty Harvard men. My environment, both at home and in my business, brings a full measure of contentment, which seems to increase from year to year. My only complaint is that I am not able to get back to Boston often enough. I have written: Drainage Bonds, (pamphlet), Investment Bonds as a secondary reserve, ("The Economist"), and sundry financial articles. Member: University Club of Chicago, Indian Hill Country Club, Winnetka, Ill., Harvard Club of Chicago.

Since leaving Law School I have been engaged in the general practice of law in Boston, and since 1905 have been associated with my brother, William E. Collins, of the Class of 1897, with offices at 10 Tremont Street. I served one term, 1904-5, as a representative in the Massachusetts state legislature, having been elected as a Democrat from at that time a strong Republican district in an exceedingly close election. At the first election held under Boston's present city charter in 1909, I was elected to the city council for a three-year term and am now serving the third year of my second term with that body. In 1911 I served as president and was acting mayor whenever the mayor was absent from the city. In the summer of 1914 I was among the unfortunate tourists whose plans for a European trip were foiled. I arrived in Liverpool the very day war was declared between Great Britain and Germany. However, I experienced no great inconveniences. It was naturally a most interesting time for an American to be in England and the scenes of mobilization and preparation during the early days of the war were something that never can be forgotten. Business	Toy Manufacturer.
Address	(home) 170 Front St., Winchendon, Mass. (business) 101 Jackson Ave., Winchendon, Mass.

On leaving college, I entered the business of Morton E.

Converse & Son, where I am at present partner and general manager. Am also connected with the New England Lock and Hinge Co. of this town, and the Novelty Iron Company of Canton, Ohio; director in the Massachusetts Street Railways Company and the Safety Fund National Bank of Fitchburg. In 1907 I served a year in the State Legislature. For two years I was president of the Massachusetts State Automobile Association, and on the board of directors of the American Automobile Association. My only hobby is Toy Town Tavern. We built this hotel three years ago, and have managed to create an atmosphere about the place which has made it wonderfully successful. There is a good nine hole golf course on the grounds, a set of dirt tennis courts second to none in the state, where an annual tournament is run by the National Tennis Association. Just at present we are working to create here in Winchendon a hotel featuring winter sports, as very few hotels in the country are doing. We have just completed a wonderful toboggan slide, put in an outdoor skating rink, snow-shoe trails, coasting hills, etc. We have recently added a play house for dancing, billiards, etc., and an attractive sun parlor for those who do not care for the outdoor sports.

EDWARD COOK

Married	Bertha Bentley, Pelham, N. Y., Nov. 16, 1910.
Children	Edith Bentley, Jan. 18, 1912; Mary Cook, Aug. 22, 1913.
Business	Physician.
Address	425 West End Ave., New York, N. Y.

The September following graduation I entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, and received the degree of M. D. in May, 1904. In a competitive examination I was appointed to the staff of the Presbyterian Hospital of New York City where I served on the surgical division, finishing July 1, 1906. I was offered an appointment at the Sloane Hospital for Women and served three months there as house surgeon, leaving that institution in November, 1906. Since that time I have been practising medicine in New York City, my work now being mostly surgery and obstetrics. I have held a medical appointment in the Vanderbilt Clinic for three years, a surgical appointment in Roosevelt Hospital out-patient department for about one year, and a surgical appointment at the Presbyterian Hospital for a little over seven years. I have been attending obstetrician at the Nursery and Child's Hospital on the out-door service for several years. I have written a few informal papers on surgical subjects. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Society of the Alumni of the Presbyterian Hospitals, Society of the Alumni of the Sloane Hospital for Women, Quiz Medical Society, Riverside Practitioner's Society.

After leaving Cambridge, I contemplated studying medicine, and entered Harvard Medical School, with the intention of getting my A.B. and also completing the medical course. In order to finance this plan, I entered the customs service at Boston, working nights. In a short time, however, I was forced to abandon my plans, but continued in the customs service until February, 1912. At that time I went with Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co., Boston factory, as a salesman, staying with them until about April, 1913, when I took a similar job with the Johnson Educator Food Co. The biscuit business did not offer much, however, so I came to Filene's in September, 1913, and I feel that I am at last in the right place.

Shortly after leaving college I secured a position—more accurately speaking, a job—with the Boston and Maine R. R. I remained with this corporation for eight years when a New York concern induced me to act as its Boston representative. I was then a travelling freight agent for the road, but was close to the presidency—my office being immediately above Mr. Tuttle's. About the time I quit, the Boston and Maine began to go to the bad. This, of course, may have been merely a coincidence. Meantime my neighbors had been duly impressed with the fact that I was a young man of sobriety and seriousness of purpose and elected me to the Cambridge common council and later to the board of aldermen. My grateful constituents then sent me to the legislature for three terms. Seven years of politics had whetted my appetite for something more stirring than business routine and two years ago I swung into the newspaper game which I find diverting and congenial. I am now the editor of a young but ambitious journal known as the Cambridge Daily Standard. Needless to state this publication advocates no-license, defends Harvard against ''low-brow'' aldermanic attacks, and fearlessly flays the wicked corporations. In fact the Standard is to Cambridge what the Crimpoon is to Nineteen Hundred. Such is the somewhat uneventful story of my life. I expect, however, to add an interesting page to my life's chronicle when the 1900 braves hit the quindecennial trail next June. Member: Colonial Club of Cambridge, Cambridge Economy Club, Lexington Golf Club.

Address	14 Centre St., Cambridge, Mass.

After leaving college I was employed by Stone and Webster as chemist, and since leaving them have been engaged in the machinery business, and am at present in the rubber end of that business with the International Distributing Co. While my parents were living they lived with me in Boston, and soon after my mother's death, in 1910, I removed to Cambridge and have been living there since. At the present time the company with which I am connected is intending to build a factory in Cambridge and conduct a general rubber manufacturing business there. It has been pretty hard work for me and no play since I got out of college; but I hope soon to see myself established where I can have a few of the pleasant things of life. We have one boy who gives me as much pleasure as I think anything could. I have nothing further of interest to say and wish the class and its secretary all manner of good luck.

Graduating from the Harvard Medical School in 1905, I spent two years as medical house officer at the Boston City Hospital. For six months in 1908-1909 I was graduate assistant in the medical out-patient department of the Massachusetts General Hospital. Following my marriage in 1909 I spent four months in Italy, Switzerland and the Austrian Tyrol. After sampling most of the different brews of beer in Munich, by way of transition from pleasure to work, and finding all of them good, I studied medicine for five months in Vienna and for eight months in Berlin, where our first baby was born. Fortunately, we had Katherine registered at the U. S. consulate as an American citizen, hence she is not a German. Coming home by way of Holland, I began a three years' service as district physician of the Boston Dispensary in November, 1910. In 1911, 1912 and 1913 I was assistant in bacteriology at the Harvard Medical School. For the past two years I have been medical inspector in the Brookline public schools. In 1913, I held a six months' appointment as assistant to the physicians to out-patients at the Boston City Hospital. At the present time I am assistant visiting physician at the Boston Dispensary. Recently I received an appointment as second assistant visiting physician at the Boston City Hospital. I have written semi-occasional papers in medical journals. After one year at Harvard Law School, came to the Borough of Brooklyn and entered father's law office, studying simultaneously at New York Law School. Admitted to the bar in September, 1902. Continued in father's office till 1907 when he left the practice to become president of a financial institution. Have been practising alone since with some measure of success. Have worked fairly hard and very steadily, a three-months' wedding trip being the only real vacation I've known since 1900. We have two homes, both very modest, one in Brooklyn and the other at New Canaan, Connecticut, and we divide the years about equally between the two. Have done some semi-public work on committees and as officer of different clubs and associations, among other such jobs I am at present treasurer of a Tuberculosis Sanitarium, counsel of the Brooklyn Home for Consumptives, and am giving most of my outside time and energy to the University Club of Brooklyn, of which I am at present president. My only real hobby is gardening and I am really happiest when ankle deep in soil and manure. Member: University Club of Brooklyn (President), Lawyer's Club of Brooklyn, Hamilton Club, New Canaan Country Club, Long Island Harvard Club, St. Nicholas Society, various Bar Associations.

To anyone familiar with the career of the would-be reformer in politics, the above brief recital tells the story. Member: Racquet Club, Noonday Club, Country Club, City Club, Harvard Club, all of St. Louis; University Club of New York, Harvard Club of New York.

GEORGE WESTON DAVIS

Born	Charlestown, Mass., May 11, 1878.
Parents	Herbert Whitney Davis, Viola Erskine.
School	Belmont High School, Belmont, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Business	Banker.
Address	(home) 86 Clifton St., Belmont, Mass. (business) 35 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

Shortly after leaving college I started to learn the banking business in the Central National Bank of Boston. In 1902 the bank failed and after a few months' work under the government officials who came to Boston to wind up the affairs of the bank, I went to the Commercial National Bank of Boston, remaining until 1905. In that year I obtained a position with Merrill, Oldham & Co. of Boston, dealers in bonds, and am still with that house. During this time I have travelled a little as a salesman, but have spent most of my time in the office. Aside from business, I have little to report, spending my time playing golf at every opportunity and going into the woods on vacations. Member: Belmont Spring Country Club, Boston Athletic Association.

John Chandler Bancroft Davis

Born	Newark, N. J., Oct. 10, 1877.
Parents	John Davis, Sarah Helen Frelinghuysen.
School	Groton School, Groton, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1898.
Died	Dec. 27, 1907, in Washington, D. C.

John Chandler Bancroft Davis died of typhoid fever at New York City on June 11, 1910. He left college during his sophomore year and in 1899 entered the employ of the Standard Trust Company in New York. With that company he stayed continuously and after numerous promotions was made receiving teller. The secretary of the company writes in regard to him: "During this long period of faithful service I cannot remember the time when he was ever away except on his periodical vacations. He rose from a minor clerkship to a position of trust, and at his untimely death was at the head of an important department. Mr. Davis was highly regarded by the officers of the company." He would surely have risen to a still more responsible place there if he had lived. He was particularly fond of sport and was accustomed to go two or three times each year to Maine and Canada for hunting and fishing. At the Knickerbocker Club of New York he was one of the most prominent and popular members.

Business	Employed by Weyerhaeuser Timber Co.
Address	(home) 701 North East St., Tacoma, Wash. (business) P. O. Box 1607.

From June, 1899, when I left college, up to November, 1910, when I went to work for my present employers, I spent almost all my time working in logging camps or railroad survey, as axeman, chainman, transit man, assistant engineer, on railroad work. In the logging business I have done nearly everything, including estimating timber. Since November, 1910, I have had supervision over the logging interests and all outside work of Weyerhaeuser Timber Co., reporting to the general manager of same. I am financially interested, in a small way, in four companies in this line of work. I never held any offices of honor or trust, not even pound-master. I wrote: Getting Even with Mr. Boswell, a short story (Everybody's Magazine in 1908 or 1909). Member: Tacoma Country Club, University Club.

I left Harvard with the intention of placing my intellectual resources at the disposal of the first metropolitan editor who evinced a willingness to accept them. None of the New York editors, city, managing, or literary, showed any uncontrollable eagerness to corral the perfectly fresh gray-matter thus brought to them, freight prepaid, although I am bound to add that none of them displayed that haughty and scornful indifference that is supposed to be the traditional and proper mark of the real swayer of public opinion when a youth with his reputation yet to make succeeds in getting past the adamantine office-boy. As I did not wish to embarrass the New York editors by such persistence as would lead them to dismiss half a dozen of their veterans in order to give me a place, I went on to Philadelphia, where, after some desultory tutoring and reporting, I became the assistant editor of a religious weekly, "The American Friend." This position was valuable in giving me experience in all kinds of work that have to be done on a magazine. Still, it lacked that vital connection with the swing of events that a real newspaperman longs for and likes so well, and so, in the fall of 1902, I proceeded to Chicago. I soon was working for the "Evanston Press," the type of which was set by the old-fashioned wandering compositors, who got drunk on Saturday and showed up some time the following week. When a vacancy occurred on the Evanston end of the "Chicago Tribune," I got that, too, although the city editor told me that he had his eyes upon somebody else. This other man he could not obtain, however, while me he could have without any urging at all. The inevitable happened. I stayed in Evanston until the summer of 1904, when, not seeing anything in the way of a future for me in that neighborhood, I accepted an offer to teach English and history at Guilford College, North Carolina. This seemed to mean the abandonment of my aspirations, which were journalistic rather than pedagogic, but man is not always the master of his fate. I taught there two years, and then went to St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland, where I stuck four years. Toward the end of my time there, I began to write for the New York Evening Post, and in the fall of 1910 came to New York to write regularly for it. Just ten years before, I had interviewed two or three editors on the Evening Post with reference to joining the staff then. They had thought it better to wait. I give a course or two in journalism at New York University, and write and speak when I am invited, which is not any oftener than you would expect from this account of my career to date. ARTHUR LYMAN DEAN

Born	Southwick, Mass., Oct. 1, 1878.
Parents	William Kendrick Dean, Nellie May Rogers.
School	Dedham High School, Dedham, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; Ph.D. (Yale), 1902.
Married	Leora Elvena Parmelee, New Haven, Conn., Aug. 11, 1904.
Children	Sylvia, June 27, 1906; Lyman Arnold, Nov. 14, 1907; Pierson Goddard, Nov. 5, 1914.
Business	College President.
Address	(home) 2230 Kamehameha Ave., Honolulu, T. H. (business) College of Hawaii, Honolulu, T. H.

In the fall of 1900 I entered the Graduate School of Yale University and in June, 1902, received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in physiological chemistry. The next year I acted as assistant in physiology at the Sheffield Scientific School and the following year was appointed instructor in plant physiology, a position which I held until the summer of 1907. Meanwhile I had outside connections, first as research assistant in the Carnegie Institution and then as expert in charge of the chemical work of the U. S. Forest Service. In 1907 I resigned from the Forest Service and Sheffield and entered the employ of Arthur D. Little in Boston, taking the charge of his chemical laboratory. After one year of commercial work I returned to Yale as instructor in industrial chemistry, and the following year was appointed assistant professor of industrial chemistry, a position which I held for five years. Last winter the presidency of the College of Hawaii was offered to me and, not without a good many misgivings, I accepted. I have written: Experimental Studies on Inulare, (Botanical Gazette, January, 1903), On Inulin, (Am. Chemical Journal, July, 1904), On Proteolytic Enzymes, (Botanical Gazette, 1905), Estimation of Moisture in Creosoted Wood, (U. S. Forest Service, Circular 134), (Dean and Bateman), The Fractional Distillation of Coal Tar Creosote, (U. S. Forest Service, Circular 80), (Dean and Bateman), The Analysis and Grading of Creosotes, (U. S. Forest Service, Circular 112), (Dean and Downs), Laboratory Distillations of Water-Gas Tar, (Journal Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, February, 1911), (Dean and Downs), Antiseptic Tests of Wood Preserving Oils, (Journal Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, February, 1913), (Dean and Downs). Study of the Composition of Water-Gas Tar, (Journal Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, May, 1914), (Dean and Downs), On the Question of Proteid Synthesis in the Animal Body, (American Journal of Physiology, August, 1903, (Henderson and Dean), The Estimation of Cellulose in Wood by the Chlorination Method, (Dean and Tower) (Journal American Chemical Society, July, 1907). Member: American Association for Advancement of Science, American Chemical Society, Society of Chemical Industry, Hawaiian Engineering Association, Harvard Engineering Association, Phi Eigma Kappa, Yale Chapter (honorary), Graduates Club, New Haven, Conn., University Club, Honolulu, T. Business	Banker.
Address	W. R. Grace and Co., Hanover Square, New York, N. Y.

Mr. van Deusen reports that since 1910 he has been engaged in the export and banking business in New York City and South America and is, at present, connected with the export department of the firm of W. R. Grace and Co., Hanover Square, New York City. He states that while with the International Banking Corporation he was successful in so misguiding Louisa M. Hill, a young lady from New England, that she left her home and went to Panama, landing at Cristobal at 10.00 a. m., October 14, 1912. He immediately coerced her into marrying him and they were able to take the 10.20 train for Panama, where they remained until the fall of 1914. Van says that this is a record for quick movement in the republic. And still they say that Latin-America is the "mañana" country.

Address	(home) 390 Huron Ave., Cambridge, Mass. (business) 519 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

I got my law degree from the Harvard Law School in 1902. Since then I have been continuously practising law in Boston, with offices in the Tremont Building, for about five years with another member of our class, Thomas R. Bateman, and Charles L. Stebbins, Harvard, '97, and later with Mr. Stebbins and James H. Morson, under the firm name of Dolan, Morson & Stebbins. Our practice is a general one, consisting of both office and trial work. I have spent much time and effort in local politics and have been a candidate for the board of aldermen and for school committee, but have never been elected or appointed to any office except to ward committees of the Republican party and of our several non-partisan municipal organizations. During the last two years I have been chairman of our local Republican ward and city committees. Member: Boston City Club, Boston Harvard Club, Cambridge Economy Club, Middlesex Bar Association, Cambridge Board of Trade.

Business	Principal public school.
Address	(home) 3959 Botanical Ave., St. Louis, Mo. (business) 5329 Columbia Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Since the decennial report, I have added five years of service in the public elementary schools of this city as principal of the Henry Shaw School by day and sometimes by night. I have succeeded fairly well in making the family income keep up with the high cost of living, but have not grown as round and prosperous looking as their photographs represent most of the 1900 men to be. The corn belt seems to have no effect on me. Instead of writing books and articles myself I have been engaged in administrative work, helping in the further development of our St. Louis schools. Member: St. Louis Academy of Science, Public Question Club of St. Louis.

Address	335 Huron Ave., Cambridge, Mass.

In September, 1900, I entered the Harvard Medical School from which I received the degree M. D. in 1904. The following two years I spent as interne at the Boston City Hospital. In August, 1906, I began the general practice of medicine in Cambridge, where I still live. I am the medical examiner for the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission, to which position I was appointed in 1906. I am an assistant physician to the Consumptive's Hospital, Boston, and director of the Laboratory of Serum Diagnosis at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. I have written a few medical papers. In June, 1914, I represented the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at the annual convention of the National Assembly of Civil Service Commissioners held at Pueblo, Colorado. Member: Massachusetts Medical Society, American Medical Society, Boylston Medical Library, Knights of Columbus, Harvard Club of Boston.

DURANT DRAKE

Born	Hartford, Conn., Dec. 18, 1878.
Parents	James McEwen Drake, Maria Upham.
School	Boston Latin School, Boston, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; A.M., 1903; Ph.D. (Columbia), 1911.
Married	Anna White, Milford, Pa., June 30, 1908.
Business	Professor.
Address	(home) 186 High St., Middletown, Conn. (business) Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

1900-1901, in University Settlement in New York City. Severe illness, followed by several months of travel in Europe. 1901-1903, studying in Graduate School and Divinity School at Harvard, passing the preliminary exams for the Ph.D. in philosophy, taking an A.M., and going a long way toward the B.D. Another breakdown followed; another trip to Europe; this time leading to a worse illness, at Mentone on the Riviera. Afterward a trip to California, where a winter in the Santa Cruz Mountains brought improvement; then marriage in 1908, and a quiet life as student-farmer. In 1910, enrolled in Columbia University and took Ph. D. in June, 1911. In 1911-1912, instructor in philosophy at University of Illinois; 1912-15, associate professor of ethics and philosophy of religion at Wesleyan University. Published already, besides numerous magazine articles and syllabi, one fat volume, "Problems of Conduct," which aims to provide for the ordinary intelligent reader an introduction to the consideration of the various moral problems, personal and social, of contemporary life. Hope to have a companion volume "Problems of Religion," out by fall of 1915.

A questionaire which I sent out in 1912 brought interesting results as to the philanthropic work and religious beliefs of graduates of the three colleges in which I am most interested to date: Harvard, Illinois, Wesleyan. Harvard led in non-religious philanthropic work, and was far more radical (or liberal, if you prefer) than the others in religious beliefs. Results can be found in the independent articles mentioned below. My health has never been robust, and I lost a number of years right out. But I am now better than for years and enjoying the teaching of undergraduates to have sane moral and religious ideas. It is work that is thoroughly worth while. Besides that, I am trying, through my books, to reach a wider public and have a hand in the moralization of public life and the rationalization of religion. I have written: The Problem of Things in Themselves, (Boston, Ellis, 1911), Problems of Conduct, (Houghton, Mifflin Co., 1914), (455 pp.), Syllabi, An Introductory Course in Ethics, An Introductory Course in Religion, A Course in English Bible, (Middletown, Conn., Pelton & King, 1912-13), various articles, reviews and poems in magazines. Member: American Philosophical Association, Religious Education Association, Federation of Churches of Christ in America.

In May, 1910, the firm of McGraw, Blagden and Draper was formed and we are still engaged in the stock and bond business at 111 Broadway, New York City. Conditions during the past five years have made it impossible for me to spend much time away from New York, with the exception of a trip through the West Indies last winter. Very little outside of the routine of a broker has happened in my life since the decennial celebration.

ARTHUR DRINKWATER

Born	Ellsworth, Me., June 27, 1879.
Parents	Arthur Fuller Drinkwater, Julia Eliza Keese.
School	Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.

Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 50 Buckingham St., Cambridge, Mass. (business) 59 Temple Place, Boston, Mass.

After receiving my degree from the Harvard Law School I spent a year and a half in the law office of Benner and Foster, Boston, and then became assistant general counsel for Warren Brothers Company of Boston. The legal work of this company occupied most of my time. In 1913 I became a member of the firm of Head, Drinkwater and Crafts. My work deals largely with corporations and municipal corporations. A short visit in England in the summer of 1902 and occasional business trips have constituted the only travelling I have done. I have been interested in anti-tuberculosis work and for five years was a member of the Massachusetts Board of Trustees of Hospitals for Consumptives. For a year I was clerk of the Cambridge Taxpayers Association, a good government association, and was secretary of the Cambridge Historical Society. My connection with politics has been confined to membership in my ward committee. Member: Union Boat Club (secretary), Troop B, 1st Squadron Cavalry, M. V. M. (sergeant), Massachusetts Anti-tuberculosis League (treasurer), Board of Managers of Cambridge Anti-tuberculosis Association, Harvard Travellers' Club, Harvard Club of Boston, Oakley Country Club, Skating Club of Boston, Cambridge Skating Club, Longwood Cricket Club.

Married	Josephine Elliot, Philadelphia, Pa.
Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) The Grange, Camden, N. J. (business) 33 North Second St., Camden, N. J.

The summer after my graduation I went abroad with William R. Castle Jr., returning home in the autumn, and entering the University of Pennsylvania Law School. There

I remained two years. In the fall of 1902 I entered my father's office in Camden, New Jersey, as a law student, and was admitted to the New Jersey bar in November, 1903 as an attorney-at-law. In February, 1907, I was admitted as a counsellor-at-law, and have been practising my profession in Camden with varying success for the last eleven or twelve years. My spare time I have devoted to writing—again with varying success. In 1907 I married and settled down to the existence of a benedict—a status which I have maintained ever since. I am chairman of the entertainment committee and a member of the house committee of the Franklin Inn Club, a literary society of Philadelphia. I have written: The Tale of Whispers, novel, (Henry Holt & Co., 1910), The Templeton's Night Out, short story, (published in Smart Set), The Immutable Law, short story, (published in Collier's), The Immutable Law, a one-act play, (accepted by George Arliss but not yet produced), The Red Reveille, short story, (published in the Top-Notch Magazine), The Turn of the Coin, short story, (published in Lippincott's for December, 1914), A Child's Life of Benjamin Franklin, (accepted by Macmillan Co. and to be published in spring of 1915). The Great Ship, novel (serialized in The Scrap Book.) Member: The Harvard Club of Philadelphia, The Union League of Philadelphia, The Franklin Inn Club, The Writeabout Club.

Business	Farmer.
Address	Wayne, Du Page County, Ill.

Left college at the time of the mid-year exams, 1899, my father dying in February of that year. Continued the business in partnership with some relatives, first as Dunham, Fletcher and Coleman, then as Dunham and Fletcher, then as W. S., J. B. and B. Dunham, and now as Dunhams, firm being composed of myself and one of my sisters. We are extensively interested in farming and have a large dairy, but our chief business is importing and breeding Percheron horses. This business is an active commercial one and the importing end of it takes me abroad considerably. I have been over as many as four times in twelve months. We believe we are at the top in our line. In 1901 I married Miss Mary Louise Ward of Evanston, Illinois, we have two daughters. As my life since leaving college has been principally occupied with business, offices of honor or trust have not been numerous. I have been school director and president of our local school board continuously since 1899. I am also director of the Percheron Society of America. In conclusion, whenever any 1900 man gets within reaching distance of Wayne, Ill., which is thirty-five miles west of Chicago, let him telephone out, we will meet him at the station and I believe we can make what spare time he has for us pass agreeably. I left college at the beginning of my senior year on leave of absence and entered the Harvard Law School, taking my college degree in 1900. I spent two years at the Law School and then left and taught at Milton Academy for one year. In the fall of 1902 I became secretary to Senator Hoar and went to Washington with him that winter. I remained with him until his death in the summer of 1904. I took the Massachusetts bar examinations in July, 1904, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar on August 4, 1904. I went back to Washington that fall, but returned to Boston in January, 1905, and entered the law office of Carver and Blodgett. Upon the dissolution of that firm in the summer of 1907, I became a member of the firm of Blodgett, Jones and Burnham, which firm has been in existence down to the present time, but is now Blodgett, Jones, Burnham and Bingham. In 1913 I was a member of the state legislature for the thirteenth Middlesex District. Member: Concord Country Club, Harvard Club of Boston, Boston City Club.

Degrees	A.B., 1900; S.B., 1901 (1902); M.S., 1902.
Married	Eleanor Archibald Stevens, Boston, Mass., June 15, 1907.
Children	Elizabeth Stevens, Dec. 15, 1908; Eleanor Archibald, Oct. 30, 1910.
Business	Mining engineer, superintendent of iron mines.
Address	(home) 708 Cleveland Ave., Ishpeming, Mich. (business) Cliffs Shaft Mine, Ishpeming, Mich.

After graduating with the Class of 1900 from the college, I spent two more years at the University, getting the degree of S. B. in mining from the Lawrence Scientific School as of the class of 1901, and that of S. M. in geology from the Graduate School. Immediately after leaving the University I entered the employ of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. in their engineering department, and served successively as third assistant mining engineer at Ishpeming, Mich., for one year, mining engineer of the Ashland Mine at Ironwood, Mich. for a year and a half, and as first assistant engineer at Ishpeming for a little over a year. On February 1, 1906, I was appointed superintendent of the Iron Belt and Shores Mines, two old properties which had been abandoned by other companies, and which the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. reopened as explorations. On July 1, 1909 I was made superintendent of the Cliffs Shaft Mine, Moro Mine and Salisbury Mine in Ishpeming. The following year the Lake Mine at Ishpeming, and the Imperial Mine at Michigamme, Mich., were also put under my charge. There have been no changes since then. While at Iron Belt, Wis., I was active in local politics and served three terms as chairman of the town of Knight and nearly two terms as county chairman. Since returning to Ishpeming I have taken little part in politics of any sort. On June 15, 1907, I was married at Boston to Eleanor Archibald Stevens. We have two children, Elizabeth, now six years old, and Eleanor, now four. I have written: Methods of Stocking Ore on the Marquette Range, (Lake Superior Mining Institute, 1914). Member: American Institute Mining Engineers, Lake Superior Mining Institute, Wawonowin Golf Club, Marquette County Gun and Rod Club, Ishpeming Lodge No. 314, F. and A. M., Ishpeming Chapter No. 152, R. A. M., Lake Superior Commandery No. 36, Knights Templar, Ahmed Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Married	Theodora West, Holbrook, Mass., June 13, 1901.
Children	Theodore Hildreth, Nov. 16, 1907; Julia, Nov. 14, 1910.
Business	Farmer, teacher.
Address	(home) Gilmanton, N. H. (business) Teachers' College, New York, N. Y.

For the year 1900-01 I was graduate student at Mass. Agricultural College; in 1901 I went to farming in West Bridgewater, Mass., where I remained till 1906. In that year I became principal and instructor in agriculture at Gilmanton Academy, Gilmanton, N. H., which position I held till 1909. In 1909 we reverted to the land and lived through the encouragement of a large flock of hens till 1912. In 1912 I went to Cornell as instructor in animal husbandry; in 1913 to the Central Michigan Normal School to head the department of Agricultural Education. At present I am registered for the doctor's degree at Columbia, with the idea of taking up college work in agricultural education.

WALTER PRICHARD EATON

Born	Malden, Mass., Aug. 24, 1878.
Parents	Warren Everett Eaton, Mary Goodwin Prichard.
School	Phillips Andover Academy, Andover, Mass.

Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Married	Elise Morris Underhill, New York, N. Y., June 30, 1910.
Business	Journalist and author.
Address	Stockbridge, Mass.

After graduation, I was a reporter on the Boston Journal till January 1, 1902, when I joined the staff of the N. Y. Tribune, where I was an assistant in the dramatic and later in the music department, till 1907 when I became dramatic critic of the New York Sun. I left that paper in the fall of 1908. Since that time I have been the dramatic critic of the American Magazine, and New York dramatic correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald (now the Herald), the Indianapolis News, and the Boston Transcript. I am still connected with the two former newspapers and the magazine, and in addition am now a special editorial writer on the staff of the Philadelphia Ledger. In 1910, I removed to Stockbridge, Mass., where I have since lived, going to New York for a week or more in each month during the season. I edit a small monthly paper called "Stockbridge," devoted to uplifting village life, which has no particular desire to be uplifted. However, one has to prove his Puritan ancestry in some way or other! I have written: Life of John Paul Jones (1899), The American Stage of Today, (Small, Maynard, 1907), The Runaway Place (with Elsie Underhill), Henry Holt, 1909), At the New Theatre and others, (Small, Maynard, 1910), Boy Scouts of Berkshire, (Wilde & Co., 1912), Boy Scouts in the Dismal Swamp, Wilde & Co., 1913), Barn Doors and Byways, (Small, Maynard, 1913), The Man Who Found Christmas, (McBride, Nast, 1913), Boy Scouts in the White Mountains, (Wilde & Co., 1914), The Idyl of Twinfires, (Doubleday, Page, 1915), New York (privately printed for the Grollier Club, 1915). Member: Harvard Club of New York, Authors' Club, Authors' League of America, (member of council). Stockbridge Golf Club, Bald-headed Men's Club of America, Harvard Club of Berkshire.

Nathan Adams Egbert

Born	Bainbridge, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1878.
Parents	John Lightner Egbert, Ellen Watkinson Adams.
School	St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Died	Aug. 22, 1913, in Springfield, Mass.

Nathan Adams Egbert was born in Brainbridge, N. Y., on February 15, 1878. His boyhood was spent in Springfield, Mass., and in Marblehead. He prepared for college at St. Mark's School where he was one of the very popular boys. In college he was, again, one of the popular men of his class, always good company, always a leader when there was fun to be had. He was a member of the D. K. E., Institute of 1770, Polo, and Zeta Psi Clubs and played on his class football and baseball teams. He could always be depended on to help out in any of the class activities. After graduation Egbert, L. B. Brown and Willis McCornick went to Siberia, where they operated a gold mine at Chibokee in the Altai Mountains. On the long journey to Siberia "Doc" Egbert—as he was always called—was the life of the party. He had the faculty, as few men have it, of getting amusement out of almost everything. He evaded the iron-clad rule of the Carleton Hotel dining-room, that only those in evening clothes shall be admitted, by pretending that McCornick, who was with him, was a great and famous general, too ill from wounds to dress; he turned, in Paris, the challenge to fight a duel into a merely amusing incident by refusing to take the irate Frenchman seriously; he hired the town band at Krasnowask to accompany him whereever he went, playing, as well as might be, the old Harvard tunes. His fund of humour was inexhaustible. But he was by no means a mere fun-maker. Beneath his irrepressible sense of the ridiculous there was a store of good judgment, of quick wit, of personal courage, of dauntless determination. He was not a man to be trifled with, as the laborers in the Siberia mine soon discovered. If there was a riot Egbert was instantly in the thick of it, fearless and commanding. At such a time his stern and penetrating voice was as effective in bringing order out of chaos as would have been the presence of a squad of police. The men respected him because they knew he was always ready, himself, for the hardest kind of work, that he was just, that he did not forget either merit or insubordination. He was indefatigable in his oversight of the business; the thieves who infested the country knew that they had little chance near his mines, that night after night he sat, hidden among the rocks, guarding. When thieves came, moreover, he was usually able to obtain justice from the Russian officials, and this even though he was one of the few men in Siberia who attached the forces of the law to his interests through politeness, not through bribes. These adventurous months in Siberia were perhaps the happiest part of his life. In the winter of 1903 Egbert returned to America were he tried, unsuccessfully, to be admitted to the diplomatic service. In 1904 he entered the Columbia Law School, from which he was graduated in 1906. He then practiced law in the offices of Underwood and Moffat, in New York City, remaining with the firm until shortly before his death. In May, 1913, he underwent a serious operation, from which he never recovered. He died in Springfield on August 22, 1913. In his will he left his books to his friends, remembered all his employees and proved his continued love of St. Mark's School by leaving it a sum of money. "Doc" Egbert was a man who will always be remembered affectionately by his friends—and his friends were of all kinds—whether classmates who had good times with him while in college, os associates in business, or fellow Masons of the Holland Lodge of New York, or fellow members of the Tennis and Racquet, the Union, and the Harvard Clubs. He always enjoyed life to the fullest, and made others enjoy it with him. His eyes were wide open to all the possibilities of his surroundings. He delighted in travel. He knew large parts of the world as few men know them. He was keen in his estimate of men, and he had the qualities which might have made him a distinguished citizen. He died before he had a chance to show all that was in him, but he lived long enough to have a host of friends, who owe to him many a wonderful hour, and who will always feel, in his death, a very personal loss.

I travelled extensively through the states from 1901 to 1906 on business; thereafter, I was located in the mining regions of Nevada up to 1909; and since then, I have been in California. The land of golden fruits, sunshine, and flowers, is a wonderful state; and we have an equally wonderful fair in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. Don't miss it. It is worthy of the mighty event it celebrates, the completion of the Panama Canal. The Harvard Club of San Francisco is busily engaged preparing for the big convention of Harvard clubs to be held here in San Francisco next August (1915). The club hopes, and every Harvard man out here on the Pacific Coast hopes, that you will be "among those present." As to the rest of the story, or history, our worthy secretary seems to be "clamoring" for, let me quote from George Eliot (no relation): "Life is not rounded in an epigram, and, saying aught, we leave a world unsaid." Member: Harvard Club of San Francisco, New England College Association, San Francisco.

Business	Teacher.
Address	(home) 55 Brooksdale Road, Boston, Mass. (business) High School of Commerce, Boston, Mass.

Aftr graduating I taught five years in the Nichols School in Buffalo, then entered the Boston school system where I am in the midst of my tenth year of service. A six-week interim in 1905 at the Cambridge Manual Training School preceded my entering the Boston service. I have had pleasant and successful experience, and at present am head of the science department in the Boston High School of Commerce, and principal of the Girls' Evening Commercial High School. The work in the High School of Commerce where I come in contact with 1,400 very live boys and a great many business men, has pretty well removed the hair from my head and the moss from my back. I have not accumulated any offices of honor or trust, just service on one committee after another in church, school. and club work, until I hardly have time to get acquainted with my own family. I have two fine boys and two fine girls, and the best wife in the world. Can't save any money, but manage to pay my debts. Every day brings a full twenty-four hours of work, sleep and fun, and I have no big worries and no regrets. Member: Boston City Club. Boston High School Masters' Club, Boston School Men's Club, Eastern Association of Physics Teachers. New England Association of Chemistry Teachers. Faneuil Improvement Association. Children	Elizabeth, Jan. 5, 1909; John Curtis, Nov. 21, 1911.
Business	Manufacturer.
Address	(home) 81 Spooner Road, Chestnut Hill, Mass. (business) Framingham, Mass.

As in a former return to our secretary I had stated I intended to study agriculture and mining in the University of California after leaving Harvard in 1900, but not with the ultimate aim of engaging in either, except in connection with the publishing of works on these subjects, I therefore went to Berkeley in the fall of 1900. I was obliged to return, however, almost at once, and entered the wool business in Boston that winter and, with the exception of three years in an outside manufacturing business, remained in the wool business for about eleven years with the same firm. I have recently become the treasurer of a small manufacturing concern in Framingham. For three years I lived in Milton, Mass., and for the last five or six years at Chestnut Hill, Brookline. I have not travelled in foreign countries, except Canada, but have managed to see a fair portion of the United States, and I have not written any articles at all or held any political office as yet. I belong to one or two clubs in or near Boston.

Business	Physician.
Address	(home) 379 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass. (business) Harvard Medical School, Boston, Mass.

On leaving college, I entered the Medical School, and was graduated in June, 1904. I was then an interne in the Massachusetts General Hospital for sixteen months. In 1905 I served as an assistant resident physician in the Johns Hopkins Hospital under Dr. William S. Thayer. Another year was spent as assistant in the pathological department of this hospital under Dr. William H. Welch. Returning to Boston, I worked in the department of comparative pathology of Harvard University under Dr. Theobald Smith for a year, when I married and spent about a year in continental travel. Since then I have lived in Boston and served in the department of comparative pathology as assistant and at present as instructor. I went abroad during the summers of 1910 and 1913. I am also interested in charitable work, taking an active part in the Associated Charities. Am interested in the Navy Y. M. C. A. in Charlestown. I have written several articles on bacteriological and pathological subjects. Member: Harvard Medical School Faculty, Massachusetts Medical Society, Aesculapian Club, Society of Bacteriologists and Pathologists, Harvard, St. Botolph and Union Clubs in Boston, Brookline Country Club, Maryland Club of Baltimore, Md.

Business	Chemist.
Address	Copperhill, Tenn.

The third report for the class of 1900 contains a record of my work up to the year 1910. Since then I have been making sulphuric acid, and making sulphuric acid and making more sulphuric acid, from the waste fumes of the smelting furnaces of the Tennessee Copper Company, until now the output of the sour by-product is a train load of a dozen tank cars a day. In the latter part of 1910 I managed to develop a new method of controlling the process for making sulphuric acid, which has been adopted by the company without loss. Early in 1913 I came down with pneumonia, and then was sent South for two months to recuperate. I have published no books, but have contributed numerous articles on chemical and metallurgical subjects, to the technical journals. I have written: Sulphuric Acid Tables copyrighted, (American Fertilizer Hand-Book, 1911), International Congress of Applied Chemistry: Its Significance to Agriculture and the Fertilizer Industry, (American Fertilizer, October 19, 1912), Pilot Tubes for the Measurement of Gas Velocities, (Journal Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, July, 1914), The Sulphuric Acid Industry, (American Fertilizer Hand-Book, 1914). Member: American Chemical Society, Cowanee Club, Copperhill Lodge, No. 656, F. and A. M.

Address	(home) 2 Brimmer St., Boston, Mass. (business) 136 Federal St., Boston, Mass.

For two years and a half, from June, 1903 to October, 1905, I was connected with the engineering department of the New York Telephone Co. in New York City. The next two and a half years were spent in Colorado, part of the time on telephone work and part in field work in the service of a hydro-electric corporation. I came East in the spring of 1908 and in the fall of that year became associated with the International Steam Pump Co. of New York, with shops distributed through the East and Middle West. In 1913 the affairs of the company were greatly affected by the approaching business depression, and I left them, returning to Boston where in the summer of 1913 I became connected with Willett, Sears and Co. My work has for some years been along the lines of shop and office efficiency and factory cost accounting. Member: New York Harvard Club, Union Boat Club, Boston.

Business	Physician.
Address	24 Gardner St., Chelsea, Mass.

Entered Harvard Medical School in fall of 1900, graduated in 1904; then spent two years as interne at Worcester City Hospital, since which time I have been engaged in the practice of medicine at Chelsea, Mass. I was unfortunately in the track of the Chelsea fire in 1908. Except for this and my marriage in 1914, my life has been uneventful. I have been chairman of the local Board of Health for several years, also secretary of the Anti-tuberculosis Association, member of the surgical staff of the R. S. Frost Hospital, member of the Board of U. S. Pension Examining Surgeons at Boston. Member: Massachusetts Medical Society, American Medical Association, Boylston Medical Society.

Robert (Dennis) Arthur Ferguson

Born	Boston, Mass., Feb. 12, 1877.
Parents	Hugh Ferguson, Theresa Morris.
School	English High School, Boston, Mass., and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	S.B., 1900.
Died	May 3, 1911, in Evansville, Ind.

Robert Dennis Arthur Ferguson was accidentally drowned in the Ohio River at Evansville, Ind., on May 3, 1911. From college he went to Chicago Edison Company, which later became the Commonwealth Edison Company. There he remained until December, 1910. From draftsman, construction man, inspector of station construction and estimating engineer, he rose to be special agent and then power agent of the company. In December, 1910, he went to Evansville, Ind., as assistant manager of the Evansville Gas and Electric Light Co., in charge of its contract department. An engineer and friend in the Commonwealth Edison Company writes of him as follows: "In the ten years which he spent with the Edison Company his ambition to do never wavered, and he equipped himself by intimate association with various departments so that he was one of the most broadly experienced men in the company. He was just on the eve of a commission which undoubtedly would have brought him ample reward, when his labors were ended. He was an enthusiastic friend and a keen analyst of human nature, with a generous discernment of all good points in all men."

Business	Teacher.
Address	(home) 91 Bryan St., Atlanta, Ga. (business) Georgia Technology, Atlanta, Ga.

The year following graduation found me in the Allen School for boys in West Newton, Mass., where I won my spurs as a pedagogue. The second year I married and again went to Harvard, where I took the degree M. A., but not before my wife had gotten the same degree and I the degree of P. A. My next experience of importance was in Pennsylvania State College where I taught the Dutch for one year, where one does not say, "Beats the Dutch," for nothing can. I kept up my reputation of a rolling stone the following year, going to Evanston, Ill., as head of the mathematical department of Evanston Academy, where I remained three years, frequently visiting Chicago University, and taking some advanced mathematical work there. On account of ill health of my eldest boy I changed location the summer of 1906, coming to Georgia Technology as instructor. The second year I was promoted to assistant professor, the third year to acting head of department, the fourth year to professor and head of department which position I have held to the present. My boy recovered his health in Atlanta, and all went well until 1912-13, when we all removed to Cambridge where I took a year's work in advanced mathematics, being on leave of absence. While in Cambridge my wife died during April and I could not complete my year's work. Since then I have married again and the work is going on finely. Outside of my school work, which has been very successful, I have not done much except regular church work until during the past year, when I was elected as superintendent of the Sunday school of one of the largest Methodist churches in Atlanta. I have just closed up one of the greatest year's work of my life and the Sunday school has made a report which has astonished even myself. Am expecting greater things than this next year. I have written: A small pamphlet on Algebra and Geometry, used in Evanston Academy for two years. Member: American Mathematical Society.

(lines West of Pittsburgh). During the summer of 1902 I entered the employ of the C. G. W. as surveyor; from that position I went to the freight department of the Atchison; from there I was advanced to the operating department. I served in that capacity until the summer of 1905, when a favorable offer took me to the treasury department of the Pennsylvania Co. at Pittsburgh. 1906-1908, Employed by a cotton commission merchant in New York; 1908-1911, United States Indian service, stationed in Arizona, Northern and Southern California. Early in January, 1910, I was appointed superintendent of Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kansas, one of the non-reservation Indian industrial schools. That position I held until private business interests brought me East in the spring of 1911. Since that time I have lived at Petersham, Mass., until January 1 of this year, when I formed an association with Messrs. Field and Cowles, underwriters, at 85 Water Street, Boston.

Nothing much to add to 1910 report, save that in 1911 and 1913 I spent two very enjoyable summers in France, England and Ireland. When this miserable war is over if there is anything left of Boulogne,—and I hope there may be,—I can most highly recommend it as a very pleasant watering place with a splendid beach on which children may play. My own youngsters benefited tremendously by both their visits, and I have yet to discover any place on our own coast which has done them so much good. Perhaps I should not make all this eulogy as Boulogne is only about three hours from Paris and my classmates' wives might prefer the latter. I travelled in Europe after graduation until the fall of 1900, when I returned to Boston, cast my first presidential vote for McKinley and after election went into the office of W. O. Gay and Co., Boston. In 1902 I opened an office for that firm in New York, which necessitated my moving to New York, where I have lived ever since. On January 1, 1904, I became a member of the firm of W. O. Gay and Co., and on July 1, 1909, I retired in order to go into business with my brother-in-law, C. A. Van Rensselaer, under the firm name of C. A. Van Rensselaer and Co. and I am still in that firm. I was for a number of years on the election committee at the Harvard Club, N. Y. I was also interested in the Coney Island and Brooklyn R. R. for the period, 1905-1912, and during that time was vice-president of that company. I was in England this summer when the war broke out (1914), but was fortunately able to obtain passage home shortly after. My business also occasionally takes me to Cuba. In 1912 I went to California and had a pleasant sojourn on Teddy Howard's ranch with him. I might add that he is a much better shot and horseman than I am, which I suppose is more or less natural. Business	Coffee planter.
Address	385 Pleasant Ave., St. Paul, Minn.

Since I became a coffee planter in Mexico, I have spent most of my time on my hacienda in the state of Vera Cruz, with occasional trips to the United States in summer. The revolutions that have been going on in Mexico for several years now, and the chaotic condition caused by them have all but destroyed agricultural and business activities in that country, and although I have recently (1915) made several trips to the City of Vera Cruz, I have not been able to reach my plantation, constantly surrounded, as it is, by the swarms of bandits and murderers that for so long have been encouraged and aided by the present administration at Washington. I have written: Several articles on Mexico for "The Bellman."

	(business) 171 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

When I last wrote an account of my life for the decennial report I was engaged in the intellectual occupation of raising chickens, a pursuit which I shortly afterwards abandoned in favor of the equally profitless one of newspaper work. In 1910 I was admitted to the staff of the Boston Herald, and after doing a few odd jobs of a more or less useless character for about a year and a half, my great artistic talents were finally recognized, and I was put in supreme command of the pictorial section of the Sunday Herald. A little later, when brother F. W. Buxton, 1900, decided to leave the Herald and seek real riches elsewhere, I inherited a corner of his Sunday editorial shoes which he had so conspicuously filled for years. Since then I have been instructing and delighting millions of the American public with beautiful rotogravure sections and thrilling weekly war pictorials. By way of passing comment, I might mention the fact that since joining the Herald, the circulation of that journal has more than doubled, a happy result which may be attributed entirely to my efforts. This closes my career to date. I am sorry that I have no more details of my life that would be of value to the vast majority of the class who have never yet heard of me. In closing I respectfully suggest to the editors of this publication that they take a leaf out of the Congressional Record, which I think is the nearest competitor to these reports for bright, lively reading. A judicious sprinkling of "Leave to Print" among the more barren lives of our class would, I think, greatly enhance the value of this book as a work of permanent literary value. In my case I should request some such "leave to print" as follows: "For further details of the career of C. S. Forbes refer to subjoined extracts from the lives of Julius Cæsar, Alexander the Great, Napoleon and George Washington * * *" P. S. I have lost almost all my hair. Member: Y. M. C. A., Boston; Tavern Club, Boston; Tennis and Racquet Club, Boston; Eastern Yacht Club, Longwood Cricket Club, Harvard Club of New York.

About a year after leaving college I engaged in the manufacture of machinery, returning end of 1900 to Harvard to get my degree of A.B. having taken the four years' course in three, (much to my sorrow since). After being in the machinery business about a year and a half I started in the lumber business, and after about a year and a half of that I started the Freiberg Lumber Co., and have been president of that company ever since. My first few years in the lumber business were spent in travelling through Mexico in quest of mahogany, and also through the hardwood markets of this country. In later years I have been going abroad, looking after the purchase of foreign woods and foreign business, and returned from there this summer, just when the war started. Have built a mill and veneer plant in pursuit of the lumber business, and this, as well as my numerous travels takes up all my time and keeps me well employed. ARTHUR NEGUS FULLER

Born	Deerfield, Mass., May 1, 1879.
Parents	George Fuller, Agnes Gordon Higginson.
School	Roxbury Latin School, Roxbury, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Business	Landscape painter.
Address	Deerfield, Mass.

On leaving college I went to New York to study painting at the Art Students League, taking part in the management and for two years being its president. Since that time I have been back and forth between New York and the country pursuing the peaceful calling of a landscape painter, which consists to a great extent in hard thoughts about dealers, wishing you were one, and telling the other fellow what you think about art, while avoiding what he has to say on the subject. I have recently become interested in the establishment of an inn at the top of the Mohawk Trail, where 1900 men who care to wander on the trail of the wily but extinct savage, will find reserved for them a place by the fire.

BENJAMIN APTHORP GOULD FULLER

Born	Brookline, Mass., March 9, 1879.
Parents	Horace Williams Fuller, Emily Gorham Carter.
School	Roxbury Latin School, Boston, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; A.M., 1902; Ph.D., 1906; B.Sc. (Oxford), 1905.
Business	Instructor in philosophy, Harvard University.
Address	(home) 'Tween Waters, Sherborn, Mass. (business) Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.

The eighteen months immediately following upon my graduation I spent in part in Europe, in part in the Harvard Graduate School. From April, 1902, till June, 1904, I was at Christ Church, Oxford. I returned to Harvard in the autumn and re-entered the Graduate School where I worked for the next two years. I went over again in the meantime to Oxford, in June, 1905, to take my degree of B.Sc. The following June I received the degree of Ph.D. from Harvard. Since then I have been first an assistant and then an instructor in philosophy at the University, save for an interval of three years (1910-1913), the first of which I spent in going round the world, the second in studying in Paris and Rome and in travelling in Greece, and the third in work in the Graduate School, and a trip to the West Indies, Panama and Venezuela.

Ten years ago, immediately on my return from England, I bought a farm at Sherborn, Mass. where I still live. My summers I am apt to spend in Europe, though I plan always to return in time for the drag-hunting which is far and away my favorite sport. Of late, however, I have set up a small pack of beagles of my own and get a lot of pleasure out of running rabbits with them on foot. I have held from time to time some minor official position, such as tree warden, trustee of the Public Library, and trustee of Sawin Academy, now become the High School of the town. I have written: The Problem of Evil in Plotinus, (Cambridge, Eng., University), philosophical articles from time to time. Member: Union Club of Boston, Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York, Norfolk Hunt Club, Royal Geographical Society, London.

Business Captain and Paymaster, 24th Battalion Victoria Rifles, Canadian Expeditionary Force.
Address 378 Union St., St. John, N. B.

To find out what sort of a life I have lived since leaving college I had to refer to my letter in the decennial volume, and my actions and life appear as follows: In order to get a degree of some kind I was compelled to transfer from the Scientific School, thereby losing the chance for my degree of S. B., and I entered on my studies for an A. B. in September, 1900, and in February, 1901, they had enough of me and said a degree would be sent me in a package of some kind, some time in June, which indeed did happen. I spent my time between February and July in making both ends meet by soliciting advertising, and also acting as private secretary to a Boston gentleman.

In July, 1901, I joined the selling forces of the Library Bureau, learning to teach others how to systematize businesses and in November, 1901, I was delegated to tell the English public all about it. England sheltered me and fed me for nearly three years and in May, 1904, I sailed for Boston. A short stay in Boston and I came to Montreal and opened a branch for the Library Bureau. I remained with this firm for four years then stepped into the financial world and served my time with several different firms. ending up with going into business for myself. My career was short as the financial business had a couple of bad years, and I returned to my original yearning for something mechanical and up to August of this year was selling motor cars for Vickers, Limited, an English firm. August 7th my regiment was called out for active service, and since then have been on picket duty, but now have volunteered for overseas duty, and when this gets into print will be across the ocean serving my king and country. I am going with my regiment, 24th Battalion Victoria Rifles of Canada, as captain and paymaster. Member: University Club. Winter Club.

I have little to add to the account given in former editions of our class history. I am still in government service, geologist in the United States Geological Survey. I have devoted my efforts particularly to the non-metalliferous mineral deposits of our country, including particularly such subjects as mineral phosphates, the search for a source of potash in this country, and for nitrate salts, and have given attention especially to such materials as magnesite and borax, or rather the ores and deposits from which they are obtained. This work has lately taken me to the States of Nevada and California. I have added a number of published reports to my list whose particular titles would not be of general interest, but I would be glad to send copies to anyone finding anything that may attract his attention in the subjects mentioned above. I am a member of the Washington Academy of Sciences, the Geological Society of Washington, the National Geographic Society, and a few clubs.

Having finished the prescribed number of courses in three years, I went to work at the end of the junior year, accepting a position as messenger with the Bay State Trust Co., Boston. After four months I resigned to accept a position with N. W. Harris and Co., bankers, with whom I am still connected. I lived at West Newton, Mass., until my marriage in 1908 when we removed to Waban, Mass. (part of Newton). Here I am still happily living the suburban life, carrying out bundles, cutting the grass, etc. For recreation I have enjoyed canoeing, river skating, mountain climbing and walking. Baseball still finds me in an occasional game, but tennis has become my great standby. Member: Waban Tennis Courts, Beacon Club of Waban, Waban Improvement Society.

After graduating from college I spent three years at the Harvard Law School, graduating therefrom in 1903. I then went to the office of Gaston, Snow and Saltonstall, where I remained for three years as a clerk. Then I entered the employ of Stone and Webster of Boston, as head of their corporation department and remained there for nearly five years. In 1911, I left Stone and Webster and went into the investment banking business on my own account, under the name of E. Howard George and Co. Last May I consolidated my business with that of Durell and Co., and the firm is now known as Durell, George and Co., with offices at 31 State Street, Boston. During 1906-07-08 I served in the Common Council of the City of Boston, which is the only public office I have ever held. Upon leaving college I went into a bank and I have never been able to go very far away from one since. I then went into the real estate business with the firm of Wm. F. Beal and Co., at 50 State Street, Boston. After buying and selling a large part of the city of Boston, including its suburbs, I retired from active business in Massachusetts and entered the Union Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Portland, Maine, which I attempted to move to New York City. Finding I could not move the Trust Company, I removed myself. I then went in for farming, speculation and politics. I have grown all kinds of "things," including many hunting dogs and horses, crops and potatoes, and have decided that getting "back to the soil" is just what you don't want to do. I have played politics successfully and unsuccessfully. I have bought and sold almost every kind of property except slaves and would sell them "short" if there were any takers. I am now actively engaged in the development of real estate and am having good luck. I have not as yet "set the world on fire" but carry large fire insurance because I know that if I don't need it in this world I may in the next. Married ten years, with a daughter of three. Smooth face; very little hair, even on my head. Wholesale grocer. doing research work in the watering of dried apples and putting undetectably the maximum amount of sand in sugar. Have held no public offices. Just a trustee of the Unitarian church. Am much interested in getting a civic chorus of two hundred mixed voices through a first year of trials. In fact I am just a plain merchant, interested in everything and everybody. Member: City Club of St. Louis. Algonquin Golf Club. Missouri Athletic Association. Harvard Club of St. Louis.

What I told in 1910 of my life and wanderings since leaving college is still true. During my present sea duty my travels have been confined to different parts of the Atlantic Ocean. Under our "watchful waiting" policy at home the Gulf of Mexico has become an unpopular summer and winter resort for the U. S. Navy. I am writing this from Tampico, Mexico, where I expect to spend the winter. Last year I was in Vera Cruz. Member: University Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York.

In July, 1900, I began my business career as messenger for the International Trust Co. of Boston. Shortly after taking up my duties I was called upon to clean out some ink wells, I balked at that, but it was the only time I did, and the ink wells were duly cleaned thereafter. I immediately discarded any and all warped ideas I had picked up at Cambridge or any other place. I soon graduated from messenger and worked through every department in the bank to my present official position of assistant secretary and assistant treasurer, which I have held for seven years. In April, 1909, I had the great fortune to marry the finest type of young womanhood I ever laid my eyes on. As a reward for my good taste and judgment, my two and a half year old daughter is the counterpart of her mother. I hope every 1900 man is as contented and happy as I am and as glad that he is alive. I am at present located at a new branch of the International Trust Co. at 115 Summer Street, very near the South Station. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York, Exchange Club of Boston.

Address	(home) 572 High St., Fall River, Mass. (business) 40 Bedford St., Fall River, Mass.

After graduation I was employed about six months in the Census Office at Washington, and resigned to assume the duties of private secretary to my father, Hon. William S. Greene, a member of congress from Massachusetts. During this period I studied law at the Columbian (now George Washington) University, and received an LL.B. from that institution in June, 1903. I returned to Fall River in May, 1907, having previously been admitted as a member of the bar of the District of Columbia, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in August, 1907. Up to July, 1914, I was in active practice and associated with the office of Slade and Borden, Fall River. I then was obliged to take a long vacation and had planned to open an office of my own in the fall. Upon my return from the White Mountains in September, I was taken ill with a severe attack of bronchitis. Other than some three cases which I had pending before the supreme court, I engaged in no practice. Upon recovering from the bronchitis, I had an attack of shingles on right arm and hand from which up to this writing (April) I have not entirely recovered. In May, 1914, I was elected president of the Fall River High School Alumni Association, and shall preside at its annual meeting in May, 1915. Member: Harvard Clubs of Boston and Fall River, Fall River Golf Club, American Bar Association, Massachusetts Society, S. A. R., Fall River Lodge No. 219, I. O. O. F., King Philip Lodge, A. F. and A. Harry Henderson Greene

Born	Burlington, Vt., June 2, 1876.
Parents	Willard Edward Greene, Mary O. Woods.
School	High School, Burlington, Vt., and University of Vermont.
Years in College	1898-1900.
Degrees	S.B., 1900.
Died	May 22, 1914, in Essex Junction, Vt.

Harry Henderson Greene was born at Burlington, Vt., June 2, 1876. He attended the public schools there and from the high school entered the University of Vermont in 1895. Chemistry was his specialty at Vermont. He played on his class football team there in his freshman and sophomore years. In the fall of 1898 he entered Harvard and was graduated wth the class of 1900. For several years he was connected with companies manufacturing paint. For this business his training had well prepared him. First he was chemist with Chilton Paint Company, College Point, Long Island, New York, then was superintendent of the paint factory of Cawley, Clark and Company, Newark, N. J. In 1902 he returned to Burlington, Vt., and soon became secretary and treasurer of W. E. Greene Company, a wholesale business which his father had founded in 1888. He applied himself with great energy to his work and as a result broke down and in 1907 was compelled to give up business for a time. In the spring of that year he went to Cuba and stayed for several months. He then returned to his business, but in 1908 was compelled to make another journey in search of health to Jamaica. That summer he spent recuperating on Lake Champlain. There he became interested in poultry and in the fall took a course in poultry culture at the Connecticut State Agricultural College, and then went into the industry as a business. The out-of-door life which he led in this occupation agreed with him. The care and effort expended by him with his chickens yielded excellent results. In 1909 he started a poultry plant at Essex Junction, near Burlington, Vt., where he wrote in 1910 he had some 200 White Wyandottes of a superior strain and was planning to raise prize chickens. He was very enthusiastic over his work and at his prospects, but even the out-of-door life did not restore his health and in 1910 he was obliged to drop all activities. In spite of being an invalid, however, he kept up an eager interest in many matters, reading much modern history and biography, and in various ways occupying himself and avoiding idleness. Music and art were sources of great pleasure to him and if he had been strong enough he would have given serious study to singing. At Burlington he was a member of the Ethan Allen and Algonquin Clubs. For the last four years of his life he was an invalid, but through his long illness maintained cheerfulness and courage, always watching for opportunities to assist others and add to their comfort.

Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 612 West 137th St., New York, N. Y. (business) Room 359 Post Office Building, New York, N. Y.

After leaving Law School in 1904, I started practice in Boston and continued in this practice for five years. My practice was very general both in the federal and state courts, where my time was taken up by civil, criminal, equity, and in fact all kinds of cases. In 1909 I came to New York where I was admitted to the bar in about October of that year. I was in the legal department of the Erie Railroad for a time. Then I took up general practice again for a while. In 1911 I was appointed assistant United States attorney, in which position, I had mostly railroad cases, both criminal and civil, for about two years. Subsequently I devoted myself exclusively to the investigation and trial of cases arising under the federal anti-trust laws. For this purpose I was appointed special assistant to the United States attorney for the Southern District of New York, and placed in charge of this branch of the United States attorney's office. There is nothing more to add, except the fact that I have enjoyed the practice of law very much indeed, and have no regrets that I have entered upon it as a profession. Member: West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, Long Island, N. Y.; Boston Bar Association, Boston, Mass.

Married	Gretchen Kendall Weinschenk, Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25, 1902.
Children	Eunice Hager, March 24, 1908.
Died	May 18, 1911, in Northampton, Mass.

William Perry Hager died of tuberculosis at Northampton, Mass., May 18, 1911, after a short illness. After taking his degree at the Harvard Medical School in 1904, he received an appointment as surgeon at the Boston City Hospital. In 1906 he went to Northampton, where he lived until the time of his death, practising his profession with great zeal and interest. In 1907 he was appointed assistant surgeon on the staff of the Cooley Dickinson Hospital at Northampton, and in 1908 was made visiting surgeon to that institution. He was also medical examiner for the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. He was a member of the Hampshire District Medical Society, Massachusetts Medical Society, Northampton Medical Society, and Northampton Economic Club. His nervous energy and his eagerness to perfect himself in his profession caused him to disregard his failing health, and he taxed himself beyond the limit which he could stand. Among his townspeople and the members of his profession he had a host of friends and always held their sincere affection and respect.

Since the last report, I was transferred in June, 1911, from the Province of Cavite, P. I., to the Province of Iloilo, P. I., as division superintendent of schools, at a considerable increase in salary and responsibility. In January, 1914, owing to the continued ill-health of my wife, I applied for a year's leave of absence from the Philippines. We landed at San Francisco, March 17,—and as we are not Irish, we just naturally wore the green on that day. By the same token, all San Francisco is not Irish. After spending a week in San Francisco, we loafed across the continent, but managed to land in Philadelphia in the midst of a fine snowstorm, the first we had seen in fourteen years. Two weeks of this weather, sent us scurrying to the South, where we likewise froze. In September, I was appointed principal of the Caroline County High School, Denton, Md. "Mighty" fine people on the East'n Sho'—good pasturage, too, but a bad south wind late in the fall. I enjoyed the high school work; but, having secured a transfer to the federal civil service, I accepted an appointment as day school inspector, Bureau of Indian Affairs, with assignment to the Pueblo day schools, with headquarters at Albuquerque, New Mexico. My connection with the Philippine government was severed December 22, 1914, after fourteen years of practically continuous service. During that time, we Harvard men met at least once a year at Manila for a talk, a smoke and a feast, and separated each time feeling that much the better equipped for the ensuing year's work. And once in a long, long while, the "Crimpoon" came, not often, as I was on the road a great deal; but when he came . . . . . why, I've laughed at "Crimpoon" while stuck fast in a mudhole and waiting for the boys to dig me and the machine out. Friend Arthur, the boy guilty of inventing the "Crimpoon," should be honored by being buried beneath wreaths of evergreens. May he and his offspring live a thousand years, as the Spaniards say. I hope the enclosed will help "Crimpoon" to a little longer life. Member: Cavite Lodge, No. 2, A. F. and A. M., Cavite, P. I.; Luzon Chapter No. 1, Royal Arch Masons, Manila, P. Born	Lowell, Mass., April 5, 1877.
Parents	James Boyd Harley, Mary Elizabeth Lawton.
School	Browne and Nichols School, Cambridge, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1897.
Married	Eleanor G. Pierce, Fall River, Mass., June 16, 1909.
Died	May 10, 1913, in Fall River, Mass.

Harry Boyd Harley received his preparation for college at the Durfee High School, Fall River, and at Browne and Nichols School, Cambridge. At the end of his freshman year he left college and entered the employ of the American Printing Co. at Fall River, where after three years he was appointed assistant superintendent. In 1902 he was made general superintendent, an extremely responsible position for a man only twenty-five years old. The strain of the work told on him and matured him rapidly. In the fall of 1910 he left the American Printing Co. to take charge of the Barnaby Manufacturing Co., also at Fall River. Subsequently he became managing director and president of that company. Of quick, generous impulses, outspoken in opinion, straightforward in all his dealings, his character was one in which frankness and manliness were the predominating qualities. He was fond of travel and of all out-door sports. Among his clubs were Quequechan, Harvard Club of Fall River, Fall River Golf Club and Rhode Island Golf Club. He died on May 10, 1913, after a very short illness, a complication of scarlet fever and uremic poisoning.

Near the end of my Sophomore year I left college to enlist in the 201st N. Y. Volunteer Infantry for service in the Spanish-American war. Served as private, 1st sergeant, 2d lieutenant and 1st lieutenant. In the summer of 1899 I was commissioned as 1st lieutenant in the 26th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers, and served as such in the Philippine Islands throughout the greater part of the insurrection, taking part in most of the important operations in the Island of Panay. Returning to the United States in 1901 I was commissioned a 2d lieutenant in the Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. I was promoted to 1st lieutenant in 1902 and to captain in the Coast Artillery Corps in 1907. Since entering the regular service my stations have been Fort Totten, N. Y., Fort Williams, Me., Fort Terry, N. Y., Fort Caswell, N. C., Fort Monroe, Va., Fort Strong, Mass., and Fort Grant, Canal Zone. I have commanded the U. S. Army mine planters, "Gen. Royal T. Frank" and "Gen. John M. Schofield," and the coast defences of Balboa at the Pacific entrance of the Panama Canal. I have specialized in work pertaining to the submarine mine defence of our harbors. In 1910 I was a Distinguished graduate of the Coast Artillery School at Fort Monroe, Va., and the following year was graduated from the advanced course at that institution. My travels, sometimes on duty and sometimes on pleasure bound, have taken me through nearly all our seaboard States; to the Philippines, China, and Japan; to Spain, Italy, France, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, and Great Britain; to Cuba, Jamaica, Costa Rica, Panama, and the Canal Zone. I have written: Short articles pertaining to submarine mining and military history contributed at various times to the Journal of U. S. Artillery. Member: St. Botolph Club, Boston, Mass; St. Nicholas Club, New York; Army and Navy Club, New York; Army and Navy Club. Washington, D. C.; University Club, Panama, R. P.

After leaving college I taught English in a Pomfret School for a year, then resigned and got married. The next year I began to teach at Smith Academy, Washington University in St. Louis, doing elementary work. At the same time I studied for my A. M. degree, which I took in June of that year. The next year I took charge of the higher English and elocution. Since then I have become head of the English department and teacher in charge of senior, junior, and third year classes, which positions I still occupy. Fifteen years with the boys, the "aygnorant young divils," God bless 'em, and not a gray hair yet! I have written: School Songs of Smith Academy, (published privately), Informal Public Speaking, (Leaflet of New England Association of Teachers of English, Feb., 1912). Member: Harvard Club of St. Louis, University Club of St. Louis.

Unfortunately it was my choice to leave college in 1899, the year before graduation, and although I took my degree with the class, it seems to me now, that the loss of that senior year was a most serious one. During the senior year, more than any other, the members of the class are thrown together and it seems to me that the other men of the class know each other better, keep in better touch with each other and have more of a real class feeling than those who were "three year" men. In comparing the values of that year in college or in business, it seems that I am only one year ahead in business, which means little, as compared to losing the best year in college and missing the companionship and intimacy of the men of the class. This peroration is given in the hope that it will be a help to others—either students or fathers—in choosing their college courses. At that time, however, it seemed as if an opportunity presented itself and I left college in the fall of '99 and went into business. The only change in business since the decennial report is that the firm I started with in 1906—Haughton and Smith—in 1912 was consolidated with the firm of Stokes and Packard under the title of Stokes, Packard, Haughton and Smith. This firm represents, as managers for eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey, the London Guarantee and Accident Co. of England, and also represents as agents about twenty fire and general insurance companies. From the standpoint of a business report, this brings me up to the present date and shows an opportunity offered which I trust will be accepted. deo volente. In the summer of 1913, I went abroad, partly to represent the State of Delaware at the American Agricultural Convention at Rome, but chiefly to marry my fiancée, Miss Marie Voigt of Philadelphia, who was then studying and travelling in Italy. In August, therefore, after our banns were posted in the market-place for three weeks, we were married at Christ Church, in the quiet little town of Lucerne, Switzerland, within a few miles of the town where my mother and father were married forty-eight years before. In my case, however, my wife's family was from French Alsace; my mother's family from French Switzerland. Perhaps the greatest pleasure to which I have been looking forward in our quindecennial was going to Cambridge with my father, James Haughton, of the Class of '60. It would have been his 55th reunion and my 15th. He and I were together at Cambridge last when he was celebrating his 40th reunion and when I was graduating. But man proposes, God disposes, and our Cambridge reunion was not to be, for in December my father was taken to his rest and I am left to journey alone to Cambridge to represent the family which has been connected with Harvard through one ancestor or another, since 1763. I have written two articles on alfalfa growing in the East entitled: Asking Questions of the Soil (published in "Rural New York" in 1909 and in November, 1912). Member: Harvard Clubs of New York and Philadelphia, Rittenhouse Club, Racquet Club, Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia Barge Club, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Society of Colonial Wars, Society for the Promotion of Agriculure, Union League Club of Philadelphia, Non Active-First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry.

Since 1910 I have continued the practice of medicine in Boston, devoting more and more of my time to pulmonary diseases, so that at present the greater part of my practice consists of cases of lung disease and tuberculosis in general. My position as secretary of the Massachusetts State Tuberculosis Commission, to which I was appointed at its establishment in 1907, I still hold. The work of this board deals with medical problems from an administrative point of view and with preventive medicine in its broadest aspect, and is interesting in the extreme. I am glad to say that Massachusetts stands among the first in this health campaign.

Likewise, at the Massachusetts General Hospital, I have continued to devote much time, with increasing responsibilities. In addition to being an assistant visiting physician at this institution, I am in charge of practically all the tuberculosis work done here and am gradually building up a large and interesting clinic. In private practice, it is still my privilege to assist Dr. Frederick C. Shattuck of Boston. In addition to this I am instructor in medicine in the Harvard Medical School and Graduate School of Medicine, and also deliver a course of lectures in the recently established School for Health Officers at the same institution. My own private practice, as stated above, consists in great part of consultation work, in my office and outside, in cases of diseases of the lungs and all forms of tuberculosis. Progress in this line of work is necessarily slow, but it has been so far steady enough to lead me to keep at it and to enable me to pay the rent. I have written: Early Pulmonary Tuberculosis. Diagnosis, Prognosis, and Treatment, (William Wood and Co., New York, 1913). Consumption. What It Is and What to Do About It, (Small, Maynarrd and Co., Boston, 1915). Member: American Medical Association, Massachusetts Medical Society, International Tuberculosis Association, National Tuberculosis Association, Climatological Society, Cosmopolitan Medical Club, Aesculapian Club of Boston, St. Botolph Club, Eastern Yacht Club, The Laurentian Club of Canada, Papyrus Club, The Sängerfest, Union Boat Club, Junior Medical Review Club.

Address	(home) P. O. Box 20, Greenfield, Mass.

Immediately after graduating I went to Montana with a placer mining company, operating for gold, by means of large dredges. I was there for about two and one-half years, then came East, married, and located in Milwaukee to engage in engine work; first, reciprocating steam engines, and later, internal combustion engines. On this latter type of motor I have since specialized and went successively to Pittsburgh and Bethlehem, Pa., and then to Jersey City to engage in this line of work. Until about two years ago, I had been especially interested in the development of gas engines, particularly engines of large sizes. Later, however, my interests have been directed to oil engines, especially the development of the Diesel type heavy oil engines. Member: American Society of Mechanical Engineers, The Association of Harvard Engineers.

Address	(home) 147 Kent St., Brookline, Mass. (business) 70 Kilby St., Boston, Mass.

Started in business October 1, 1900, as office boy for Vermilye and Co., bankers, Congress Street, Boston, and was transferred to their New York office shortly after my marriage in 1901. Continued with them until the summer of 1903, when I returned to Boston to enter the office of my father, who conducted a general insurance business under the name of L. Burge, Hayes and Co. My mother's death, September 24, 1901, was such a blow to father that he was never himself from that time until his sudden death, June 30, 1905. Father's affairs were in a very involved condition, but by assuming an indebtedness which it took us three years to wipe out, three of his former employees and myself took over the business and have carried it on, more or less successfully, ever since, under the firm name of Crain, Jones, Bixby and Co. February 10, 1904, I was made a master Mason in Dalhousie Lodge, Newtonville, Mass., and later joined Newton Royal Arch Chapter and Gethsemane Commandery. I was elected and installed master of Dalhousie Lodge in June, 1910, and the following week suffered an attack of typhoid fever, which confined me to my bed until August. I was delirious from June 25 until July 5 and missed all our decennial celebration. On July 4 I was as near death as one can be and survive, and during the course of the illness lost 80 pounds in weight, dropping from over 210 to 130. Member: Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery, Mystic Shrine, Boston Athletic Association.

Business	Teacher.
Address	(home) 456 Potomac Ave., Buffalo, N. Y. (business) Masten Park High School, Buffalo, N. Y.

Since graduation from college I have been a science teacher. My first year of teaching was at Adams Academy in Quincy, under the mastership of the late Dr. William Everett, son of the orator. After teaching a year in the Concord (Massachusetts) High School, I became instructor in physics in Masten Park High School in Buffalo, which is my present position. The old building, burned about three years ago, has been replaced by an up-to-date structure, which has as one of its distinguishing features an unusually complete equipment for the teaching of physics and chemistry. Outside of my professional interests in science teaching, my time is occupied with music, gardening, amateur photography, and the work of the Audubon societies in bird study and protection. In connection with the latter, I am making photographs of wild birds and giving illustrated talks to boy scouts and school children. I have written: National Physics Note Book, (A Laboratory Manual) by George M. Turner and C. Brooks Hersey. (Published by L.

E. Knott Apparatus Co., Boston, 1905). Member: New York State Science Teachers' Association, Physics Club of Western New York, Buffalo Schoolmasters' Association, High School Men's Club of Buffalo, Audubon Society of Buffalo, Buffalo Society of Natural Sciences, Phi Beta Kappa Club of Buffalo, Harvard Club of Buffalo.

On leaving Harvard, I made a bicycle tour of Europe, taking in the Paris Exposition and the Passion Play in company with several other college men, doing the cattle punching stunt on the way over. Returning in the fall, too late to secure a position to teach, I drifted, as many another university man has, into the newspaper game, at which, sad to relate I still stick. Was connected at the outset with "The United States Investor," owned by the father of F. P. Bennett Jr., 1900, subsequently taking the position of financial editor of the "Journal of Commerce." Afterward, I accepted an offer from the Comtelburo of London, furnishing Wall Street matter for the "London Times" and other English papers. At present I am holding down the berth of coffee and sugar editor on the "Journal of Commerce." My literary labors are otherwise confined to correspondence for outside papers in the interior and several articles for the New York Chamber of Commerce annual report. Have dabbled a little in politics without actually running for office, having the honor of supporting rather much all the "lemons" who set out to reform this cosmopolitan village. Was active in debating clubs for some years prior to becoming a suburbanite, but at present chickens and gardening are my hobbies. I took the cup for best appearing "Little Farm" at Annadale, Staten Island, and also the cup for the largest tomato. Was active in the formation of the Annadale Country Club of which I am a director and treasurer. Was president of the local branch of the Civic League, which organization, among other things, secured rural free delivery, for in these wilds of New York City the post carrier never visits us. Was married ten years ago and the rest of the family is still bossing the roost. Member: Annadale Country Club, Staten Island Civic League.

After the dissolution of the law firm of Nixdorff, Bacon and Hills, Congress Street, Boston, Mass., in 1907, I became associated with Messrs. Sullivan and Cromwell, attorneys, 49 Wall Street, New York City, and at once plunged into the maelstrom of New York practice. Gradually my work developed toward the law of public service companies. About two years later, in March, 1909, I entered the service of The American Telephone and Telegraph Company for the purpose of organizing for that company a department devoted to the study of public service questions, with particular reference to the activities of the state public service commissions and of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The new department was called the "Public Relations Bureau" and was established in Boston. The pleasure of being again in my home town was, however, soon terminated. In October, 1909, the Public Relations Bureau was transferred to New York City and annexed to the legal department of the Telephone Company there, under the name of "Bureau of Commission Research." From that time on, until about the end of 1914, I devoted myself to the study of the law of public service. During the first two or three years, my work took me at times to various parts of the United States and Canada, to investigate conditions and assemble needed information. I equipped the legal department of The American Telephone and Telegraph Company—the parent company of the Bell system—with men and records, so that prompt and accurate advice could be given its associated companies upon all questions arising in connection with commission regulation. I built up for that company the most complete library of commission reports in the country; compiled and edited a series of books knowns as "Commission Telephone Cases" in four volumes; inaugurated and edited the so-called "Commission Leaflets," now approaching the fortieth issue, the first published collection of commission decisions; organized a reporting system through which the parent Bell Company received direct information each month from its special agents in every state in the Union; supervised the preparation of a "Comparative Summary of Commission Laws," now in its third edition; and instituted a series of special reports to various departments of the company. I will not go further into the details of this work. It was absorbing and interesting. On December 1, 1914, having severed my connection with the telephone interests, I accepted a position with the electric interests, to assist in organizing for them a branch of work resembling that which I had organized for the telephone interests. The new position took me to Colorado Springs, Colo., where I am still working in association with a number of specialists in public service questions. I have written the following articles: The Origin and Growth of Public Service Commissions; The Purchase of the National Telephone Company by the British Postoffice: the Telephone as a Public Utility. RUPERT SARGENT HOLLAND

Born	Louisville, Ky., Oct. 15, 1878.
Parents	James William Holland, Mary Rupert.
School	William Penn Charter School, Philadelphia, Pa.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; LL.B. (University of Pennsylvania), 1903.
Business	Lawyer. Author.
Address	(home) 2006 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. (business) 823 Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

After leaving college I studied at the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, where I was graduated in 1903, and was admitted to the bar in the same year. For a time I practised in the office of a law firm, and then began private practice with several friends. In 1904 I became the attorney of the Legal Aid Society of Philadelphia and continued in that position until 1910. Meanwhile I had become very much interested in writing. Having prepared some historical stories for "St. Nicholas" I was asked to write a series of historical books for boys, and a set of six of these volumes followed. A book I wrote on modern Italy led to my doing a certain amount of lecturing on the same subject for the University Extension Society. I have also just finished a life of William Penn for a new series of American biographics to be published by the Macmillan Company. Last year I became literary adviser of the J. B. Lippincott Company, so that my work now lies in three fields, the law, writing, and publishing. The latter is a considerable help to a writer, as it gives him a first-hand opportunity to study the value of manuscripts. Several years ago I spent a short time in the South, editing a series of wartime letters. This proved a delightful field of study and observation, particularly the Sea Islands of South Carolina. At present I am one of the directors of the Apprentices Library of Philadelphia. I have written: The Citizen's Handbook, (Geo. W. Jacobs and Co., 1904), The Count at Harvard, (L. C. Page and Co., 1906), Builders of United Italy, (Henry Holt and Co., 1908), The Man in The Tower, (J. B. Lippincott Co., 1909), Historic Boyhoods, (Geo. W. Jacobs and Co., 1909), Historic Girlhoods, (Geo. W. Jacobs and Co., 1910), The Boy Scouts of Birch-Bark Island, (Lippincott, 1911), Historic Inventions, (Geo. W. Jacobs and Co., 1911), The Knights of the Golden Spur, (Century Co., 1912), Historic Poems and Ballads, (Geo. W. Jacobs and Co., 1912), The Heart of Sally Temple, (McBride, Nast and Co., 1913), Historic Adventures, (Geo. W. Jacobs and Co., 1913), Historic Heroes of Chivalry, (Geo. W. Jacobs and Co., 1914), William Penn, (The Macmillan Co., 1915). Member: University Club, Philadelphia; Franklin Inn Club, Philadelphia; Sons of the Revolution, Harvard Club, Philadelphia; Harvard Club, New York; Merion Cricket Club, Haverford; Law Association of Philadelphia, Sharswood Law Club.

Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 20 North Kingshighway, St. Louis, Mo. (business) 506 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

In September, 1900, I entered the Harvard Law School and completed the full course, receiving my degree in June, 1903. Immediately thereafter I came to St. Louis and entered the office of Johnson and Richards, being admitted to the Missouri bar on October 11, 1903. I remained in this office until January 1, 1908, when I formed my present connection with S. W. Fordyce Jr., and Thomas W. White, under the firm name of Fordyce, Holliday and White. The practice of the law has occupied my entire time since leaving the Law School, although I did serve a term as member of the House of Delegates, the lower branch of our Municipal Assembly from 1909 till 1911. Member: St. Louis Bar Association, Missouri Bar Association, American Bar Association.

I left college at the end of my Junior year, having completed enough courses at that time for my degree. I spent the summer of 1899 in Europe, and in November of the same year entered the employ of George O. Carpenter and Son, insurance agents, in Boston. I have been engaged as an insurance broker ever since, and at the present time I am located at 85 Water Street, Boston, with Field and Cowles, New England managers of the Royal Insurance Co. and agents of several other leading companies. I took my degree with the class in 1900. I have taken several trips to Bermuda but have had no time for other travelling since entering business. In December, 1914, I was elected to the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newton, and am serving in that body at the present time. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Newton Civic Club, The Players, Newton.

His time is seriously employed and his work is most interesting; but like many other modest men, he feels that the incidents of any narrative he might write, interesting and important as they might be to himself, would not interest others. [Ed.]

Upon leaving college in 1899, I entered the law department of the University of Michigan, at the same time taking enough work in the literary department to make the degree that year, which I obtained in 1900. I determined, however, to return to the Harvard Law School the following fall for the sake of the more mature methods and quality of work obtainable there. I experienced the full joy of the prodigal in returning to the "indefatigable forgiveness" of home.

Still, I had lost a year and was compelled to leave, at the end of my second year, for Minneapolis. My entire time and strength has gone into my work—with one exception. My trial work has been delightfully extensive and varied, ranging from rate cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission to the defence of personal injury cases for an insurance company. Whatever success I've had is grounded upon the fine training we had at Cambridge, not only in law school, but especially in college; and so I'm looking keenly at the June calendar and the map near Cape Cod, for I mean to pay the debt of gratitude I owe to Alma Mater and greet the fellows of 1900. The exceptions, outside the family, are gardening and an amateur symphony orchestra. The latter I organized five years ago. Last year one hundred players, covering all the sections of a professional symphony, gave a concert in our auditorium. The "Musical Courier," a Boston journal, pronounced it the finest orchestra, amateur, in the country. We play for settlement houses, the school board, employees of department stores, and Soldiers' Home. It's good fun and my only contribution to society outside of my work. We have one boy and he's for Harvard. Member: Minneapolis Commercial Club, Interlachen Golf Club.

Seeing no outlook for medical practice in Banning, Cal., where I settled in 1909, I returned to Freiburg in Baden, Germany, with my small family the fall of 1910. I gave up all idea of returning to medical practice, and planned to devote myself to the study of sociology, especially the economic causes of diseases. I took a course in medical sociology at the University of Freiburg that winter, and wrote several articles on the German "Krankenkassen" (mutual sick and death benefit societies). But I found that in order to investigate my subject successfully I should have to travel and spend considerable money, which I could not do on account of my family. So I had to give up my original plan, and look for some way of increasing my small private income. After asking the advice of several classmates, who were teaching various subjects, I decided to prepare myself to teach biology, especially zoology on my return to the U. S. A., and the fall of 1911 I matriculated at the University and began work in earnest for a Ph. D. in zoology. I soon discovered a small group of earnest, athletic and strictly abstinent students at the University, who were enthusiastic idealists. I was welcomed heartily and helped to found the abstinent "Verbindung Freiland." Our society differed from the old German "Corps," not only in the absence of gay caps and costumes, fighting and drinking, but also in admitting women students, who are now attending all German universities in large numbers. After three years of German life we returned to Boston in order for me to finish my thesis on butterflies at Harvard. But on learning that there were better opportunities in public health work than in teaching I decided to change my plans, and entered the new School for Health Officers of Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and after a stiff oral examination before four professors, obtained a Certificate in Public Health. In September I secured the position I now hold here in Jacksonville with the Florida State Board of Health. I have written: Economical Factors in Eugenics, (Popular Science Monthly, November, 1913).

Born	Concord, Mass., June 8, 1876.
Parents	Henry Joseph Hosmer, Laura Anna Whitney.
School	Concord High School, Concord, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.

Degrees	A.B., 1900; LL.B., 1904 (1905).
Married	Edna Wadsworth Hudson, Concord, Mass., Sept. 24, 1906.
Died	Aug. 17, 1911, at Rowe, Mass.

Henry Joseph Hosmer died of a hemorrhage August 17, 1911, at Rowe, Massachusetts. He attended the Concord, Massachusetts, High School before entering college. After receiving the degree of LL.B. from the Harvard Law School in 1905 (as of 1904) he decided not to engage in active practice. Accordingly he settled in Concord and took great interest and pleasure in his farm there. On September 24, 1906, he was married to Edna Wadsworth Hudson. He was one of the officers of the Concord Historical Society. During the last few years of his life he was interested in Christian Scence and for some time before his death was reader in the Christian Science Church in Concord. His friends will remember him as a man simple and modest, thoughtful and considerate for everyone who came into his life, and of the highest ideals.

Edward Whiting Howard

Born	Paris, France, May 20, 1878.
Parents	William Henry Howard, Anna Dwight Whiting.
School	St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Married	Olivia Lansdale, Baltimore, Md., June, 1905.
Children	Olivia, Mar. 12, 1906; William Henry; Anne; Gertrude Whitwell; Marion.
Died	Jan. 19, 1915, in San Francisco, Cal.

Edward Whiting Howard was born at Paris, France, May 20, 1878. While he was a boy he travelled much in Europe with his parents. He prepared for college at St. Paul School, Concord, N. H. Soon after his graduation from Harvard his father died. The settling of his father's estate involved much very important work, which he accomplished in such a way as to acquire high praise. Through his activities in connection with the estate his ability became recognized and he became connected with the management of a number of important businesses. His chief interest was the breeding of thoroughbred shorthorn cattle, and also sheep and horses. Some of the polo ponies bred by him were played in the international polo matches. He was president of the Howard Cattle Company. For ten years he was a member of the State Board of Agriculture of California, on which he served wth great credit. He did much to advance cattle-breeding and agriculture in general in California, and his work in cattle-breeding was of nation-wide importance. In connection with this occupation he travelled very widely throughout the western part of this country. He was president of the California Live Stock Breeders' Association, a vice-president of the California Cattlemen's Protective Association, and a director of one of the national breeders' associations. He wrote very frequently for different agricultural and breeders' papers. His genius for organization was remarkable and his capacity for work and his efficiency in whatever he undertook were most unusual. At his home at San Mateo, Cal., he was a director of the San Mateo National Bank and was an active member of the San Mateo Polo Club. He was one of the most skilful players in the club and very often appeared on the club team in matches. At the time of his death he was a member of one of the committees of the Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. In January, 1915, he was injured in an elevator accident at Los Angeles, Cal., and died on January 19.

After leaving college at the end of my "second sophomore" year, I spent the summer in my native State, California, and in the fall of that year chanced to meet Harry James on my return from a visit to the State Fair at Sacramento. He was on his way from Washington State, where he had been engaged as a "student assistant" in the first U. S. Forest Survey on the coast, and said that there would be several vacancies if I was looking for a job. The only other time I had met this "ex-student assistant" was in a botany course in Cambridge where the professor told us that a tomato was a berry and that a strawberry was a vegetable, and as I have been a student of paradox ever since. I think I gained the impetus from the one week I remained in that botany course, from which I resigned, to try for the Lampoon, much to my joy and Lampy's sorrow. To return to my life history, I went to Eureka in Humboldt county with the Forest Survey. On returning to San Francisco after this expedition was over, I entered the American Steel Wire Co. where I was employed until the summer of 1900, when I was offered a "raise." I then decided to complete my college course at Stanford University, which I entered in the fall. Shortly after my initiation into the Delta Upsilon Fraternity, in the same year, I left Stanford on account of a slight attack of nervous prostration. Ever since then I have been a mere student, and in 1905 began to write for a Chicago magazine. This led to my writing later for the daily papers in Newburgh, N. Y., where I lived for six years, and for the New York papers. I expect to go into the dairy business in California as my approaching opportunity in that line is coincident with my present inclination. Member: Harvard Club of New York.

Entered Harvard Medical School, graduating in 1904. Was appointed surgical house officer at Boston City Hospital, 1904-1906. After leaving hospital, did not care to practise, so went to Alaska, and spent sixteen months on the north coast between Pt. Barrow and the Canadian line, returning to San Francisco on a whaler in the fall of 1907. Then practised medicine for two years in Lawrence, Mass., served on the out-patient staff of the Lawrence General Hospital. Becoming interested in archaeology, resigned and entered Graduate School at Harvard in fall 1909. Next year was Austin teaching fellow. Spent the summer of 1911 in Yucatan. Since then in practice in Boston. Member: St. Botolph Club, Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of Boston, Union Boat Club of Boston, Royal Societies Club of London, England, Harvard Travellers Club of Boston, Brae Burn Country Club.

There does not seem to be very much of special interest that has happened to me since the last report. I am most happily married and still live in Brookline. In January, 1911, I became a member of the firm of Bartlett Bros. and Co. of Boston, stockbrokers, having previously purchased a seat on the New York Stock Exchange. As the stockbroking business has not been excessively active during the past few years, my wife and I have taken the opportunity at various times to make camping trips in Maine and the Canadian Northwest, and to get some fishing in Florida in the winters. Do not seem to have had any honorable positions thrust upon me as yet. Ever since leaving college I have been engaged in educational work, though truth compels me to state that I fear the work of the first few years was more of an education to me than to my pupils. For three years I taught in New Hampshire, the next two in New Jersey, then two in New York City. I then came to the High School, Plainfield, N. J., where I have been ever since. I am now vice-principal and head of the science department. In addition to the business of school management, I have been for several years a member of the biological committee of the New Jersey State Science Teachers' Association, and in that capacity I am having the pleasure of helping to prepare for the State Departemnt of Education outlines of science courses to be used in the New Jersey high schools. For several summers I have been engaged in the camping business, conducting parties of boys on canoeing trips in the Maine and Canada woods. This is no thrilling tale of achievement such as some of you will write; but a teacher's life is a humdrum one, filled with small experiences and results that often seem at best intangible. If he succeeds occasionally in steering a boy to the Alma Mater, and starting him on the road to making good, he is at least accomplishing something worth while. I have written: An Introduction to Music, (New York, 1910), Various articles on Camping, Canoeing and Woodcraft. ("Recreation and Outdoor Life,'' New York, 1908-1913). Member: Appalachian Mountain Club, Association for Advancement of Science, American Forestry Association, National Geographic Society, New Jersey State Science Teachers' Association.

Business	Diplomatist.
Address	(home) Knickerbocker Club, New York, N. Y. (business) American Embassy, Rome, Italy.

On leaving Harvard I went around the world with three classmates, and upon my return I spent a few months in a large stockbroker's office in New York. In 1902 I entered the diplomatic service, in which I had always been deeply interested, and to prepare for which I had taken at Harvard all the courses then being given in government, international law and diplomatic history. My first appointment was that of third secretary of Embassy to France, becoming subsequently in turn second secretary of Legation, first secretary of Legation and when the Legation became an Embassy, secretary of the Embassy at Constantinople; secretary of Embassy at Tokyo; diplomatic agent and Consul-General to Egypt; and secretary of the Embassy to Italy, which post I now hold. In 1909, while on leave of absence from Japan, I had the good fortune to marry. While I enjoy my life and find it interesting, I nevertheless much regret the necessary separation from my friends at home and the consequent loosening of one's close friendship. For instance, I was unable to get home for either our 1905 or 1910 class reunion, and thus lost opportunities, especially valuable to one like myself whose work keeps him abroad, of meeting my old friends and keeping in touch with my classmates. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Knickerbocker Club of New York, Racquet and Tennis Club of New York, Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C.

Address	(home) 7012 Willard St., Pittsburgh, Pa. (business) University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, Pa.

I went from Harvard to the University of Chicago in order to continue my work with Prof. C. B. Davenport, under whom I had begun to specialize in experimental evolution. After graduation I taught high school one year, then assisted in the zoological laboratory at the University of Wisconsin for two years, then taught biology in a state normal school in the State of Washington. I took one term of summer school work at University of California while West. I was then appointed investigator in the Station for Experimental Evolution (Carnegie), where I spent two years. My father was an oil producer and he induced me to go back to college to work up the geology of oil,—almost an unknown thing in the United States in those days. I went to Columbia University for this purpose for one year. After more field work as volunteer with Messrs. Shaw and Munn of the U. S. Geological Survey in Pennsylvania oil fields, I practised oil geology in Oklahoma for four years. Then I came to the University of Pittsburgh, where I am now professor of oil and gas production in the School of Mines. I have time for research in oil accumulation and consulting work. My oil papers have been principally in "Economic Geology," but will be henceforth in the "Bulletin of American Institute of Mining Engineering." My offices are: President Discussion Club of the College Faculty, University of Pittsburgh; Secretary Eugenic Section Pittsburgh Academy of Science and Art; American Association for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality. I have written: Determinate Evolution of Color Pattern of the Lodz Beetles, (Carnegie Publication, No. 122), Human Evolution and Its Control, (Popular Science Monthly, Jan., 1910), Marriage Selection, (Journal of Heredity, Jan., 1914), Prospecting, Development and Appraisal of Oil and Gas in the Mid-Continental Field, (Oil Investor's Journal), Analysis of Natural Selection, (Science). Member: Pittsburgh Academy of Science and Art, American Association for Science and Art, American Genetic Association, American Society for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality, American Institute of Mining Engineers.

Lowell Byrns Judson

Born	Lansing, Mich., Dec. 30, 1877.
Parents	John Bradford Judson, Julia Byrns.
School	Olivet College.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; S.B. (Michigan Agricultural College), 1903.
Died	March 7, 1912, in Albany, N. Y.

Lowell Byrns Judson died on March 7, 1912, at Albany, New York, after an operation for appendicitis. Judson was born at Lansing, Mich., on December 30, 1877. He prepared for Harvard at Olivet College. After receiving his degree at Harvard he taught Latin for a year at Milton Academy and then for a short time was with Henry Holt and Co., publishers, at Chicago. Early in 1902 he took up the study of horticulture at Michigan Agricultural College and received his degree of S.B. in December of that year. Immediately he was appointed professor of horticulture at the University of Idaho, where he stayed until the summer of 1906. While there he issued several bulletins concerning apple culture. After a summer term of study at the University of Illinois Graduate School of Agriculture he accepted the position of assistant professor of agriculture at Cornell University, where he later had charge of the courses on experimental work in floriculture. In 1911 he joined with his brothers, Wilbur Judson, 1901, and Paul Judson, under the name of Judson Brothers, in the nursery business in Kinderhook, N. Y. He took a deep interest in his business, for which he was excellently equipped by long training and in it made many studies and experiments in special directions. Numerous pamphlets he published contain the results of his investigations. He was a member of a large number of horticultural and floricultural societies. His reading, however, was not restricted to his own profession, but included a broad field. He collected rather a large library of poetry and essays. He also had a taste for music and played the violin very creditably. In out-of-door sports, of which he was fond, his preferences were for tennis and shooting. By nature he was a little reserved, but on acquaintance his frank and kindly disposition became apparent. His qualities of character were sterling and he was upright in all his life and dealings.

ISIDORE STANLEY KAHN

Born	Dallas, Tex., Aug. 18, 1879.

Address	(home) 432 W. Magnolia Ave., San Antonio, Tex. (business) 521 Moore Building, San Antonio, Tex.

On graduation from Harvard Medical School, served as medical interne in Boston City Hospital to November, 1905.

Following this, practised medicine for one year in Dallas, Tex., where I was instructor in histology in Northwestern University Medical College. In January, 1907, was compelled to give up practice on account of poor health, and lived one year in West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. Following this year I lived four years in Mexico as surgeon for large mining companies in the states of Pueblo and Durango. For the past three years I have been practising my profession in San Antonio. Am one of the visiting physicians to our local city and country hospitals. I have written several articles on tuberculosis published in medical journals. Member: Travis Club of San Antonio. Harvard Club of San Antonio.

When I left college, I went first to my home in Pennsylvania-Germandom, and then to Philadelphia, beginning work on the "Press," at $8 a week. I was by turns a district-man, police-reporter, general-man, special-writer, book-reviewer, editorial-writer. Crime enveloped me; I was sent hither and yon to cover every sensational murder that was committed, and I saw a little of America,—the South and Middle West particularly. I secured a real knowledge of the wilder portions of Utah and New Mexico, and of the mining districts of Colorado; I had some fun in reform politics, including one instance of pistol-play. Then I became associate editor of the "Saturday Evening Post," and later of the "Delineator," when that magazine ceased to confine itself exclusively to women's gowns. I was next dramatic editor of the Philadelphia "North American," was later put in charge of (and, I think, ruined) a New York advertising agency, hated the work, and became managing editor of "Hampton's Magazine" several months before its passage into the ownership that brought it to grief. I resigned that post because I wanted to do a certain sort of sociological investigation, and wanted, too, to write books. This endeavor I embarked upon with a capital of $75; but I managed to do what I wanted to do, and have ever since successfully avoided a regular job. Latterly, I am glad to say, I have even been able to get along by my books alone and have been spared the necessity of magazine writing. Four months of every year, my wife and I try to pass in travel, and I have thus obtained a fair acquaintance with northern Africa, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Russia, the Low Countries and Scandinavia; Switzerland and Italy I know by means of many walking-tours there, and France by frequent residence. For two of the winter months we live in New York; for the other two we are at my family's home in Columbia, Pa. From the first of June to the close of September, we are generally at our little place near Cloughton, between the cliffs and the moors, and between Scarborough and Robin Hood's Bay, in the North Riding of Yorkshire,—a spot that I wish 1900 men wouldn't overlook when they come to England. My activities, save for those mentioned—and tennis and badminton and a long ride every morning before breakfast when I am at home in Cloughton—are of necessity pretty muuch confined to my books; my nearest approach to a motor-car is the water-wagon. True, I used to be a member of the Socialist party; but that party first disowned me as too radical and now condemns me as too conservative. I have done a little public speaking and some lecturing and reading in both America and England; I had the good fortune to be appointed the delegate from the United States to the first international convention of Men's Societies for Woman's Suffrage (1912) at London, and was also made a member of the criminal law amendment committee in England, which secured the enactment by Parliament of the present statute concerning prostitution in the United Kingdom. At the outbreak of the present war (after the militia, despite the protests of my neighbors and the good word of our ambassador, had placed me under surveillance as "a German spy") I tried to enlist in the French Foreign Legion, but was declined with thanks. I then went to, or toward, the front "on my own" and saw some real fighting, an experience that concluded with the bombardment of Antwerp. Cables to the American papers said I was the last foreigner to leave that city before the Germans entered it; they may have been right: I was almost willing to be the first. At all events, I came back to my English place in plenty of time to watch the shelling of Scarborough from my work-room windows. I have written: Jarvis of Harvard, (L. C. Page and Co., 1900), The Things That Are Cæsar's, (D. Appleton and Co., 1901), The Chasm, (D. Appleton and Co., 1902), Miss Francis Baird, Detective, (L. C. Page and Co., 1906), The Bachelor's Guide, (Henry Altemus Co., 1906), My Heart and Stephanie, (L. C. Page and Co., 1910), What Is Socialism? (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1910), The House of Bondage, (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1910), The Way of Peace, (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1911), The Girl That Goes Wrong, (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1911), The Sentence of Silence. (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1912), The Latter-Day Saints, (With Ruth Kauffman)), (London: Williams and Norgate, 1913), Running Sands, (Dodd, Mead and Co., 1913), The Spider's Web, (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1913), Little Old Belgium, (Henry Altemus Co., 1914), Jim, (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1915), In a Moment of Time, (Moffat, Yard and Co., 1915); an account of my war experiences in Belgium.

Member of the following clubs: The Poets', London; The Pegasus, Philadelphia; Poetry Society of America, New York; Authors' League of America, New York; Incorporated Society of Authors, Playwrights and Composers, London; Heretics, New York; Liberal, New York; Pennsylvania-German Society; Pennsylvania Historical Society; Lancaster County (Penn.) My past itinerary would prove dull reading. My course of life has brought me into considerable actual intimacy with all kinds of men, representative of the different nationalities and creeds. Next to the blessings of home, this intimacy has been what I value most in my life; and I trust that in the days to come it will enable me to cast my modicum of influence in favor of American solidarity.

Business	Physician.
Address	(home) 701 East Jefferson Ave., Detroit, Mich. (business) Whitney Building, Detroit, Mich.

On leaving college I went directly to the Harvard Medical School, working there and at the various Boston hospitals till April 1, 1904, when I entered the Massachusetts General Hospital as surgical house pupil. There I remained till August, 1905, receiving my medical degree in June, 1904. From August, 1905, till May, 1906, I assisted Dr. J. E. Goldthwait of Boston in his practice of orthopedic surgery. From that time till January 1, 1911, I practised general surgery and medicine in Boston, assisting several surgeons there, and holding various minor appointments at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston Dispensary, etc., at the same time doing a little surgical teaching. In January, 1911. I came to Detroit to take an appointment as orthopedic surgeon to the Children's Free Hospital. Here I have remained, limiting my experience wholly to orthopedic surgery, and incidentally gaining a large amount of experience. My practice has gradually increased and I have been appointed orthopedic surgeon to the Grace Hospital and consulting orthopedic surgeon to the Woman's Hospital, continuing at the same time my work at the Children's Hospital. The Detroit General Hospital, a big new institution to whose staff I also belonged and of which we expected great things, has gone into temporary oblivion, through lack of funds to complete it. It has been taken over in an unfinished state by Mr. Henry Ford of the Ford Motor. What he is going to do with our four splendid buildings is as yet a profound mystery. I have a bachelor apartment with three business men, one an Eli, and we live in great comfort, and contentment, having a splendid cook. I have written a few technical papers in the local state and city journals. Member: St. Botolph Club, Boston; University Club, Racquet Club, Country Club, Detroit; Central States Orthopedic Club, State and County Medical Societies. Fellow American College of Surgeons.

Address	(home) 1046 Beechwood Boulevard, Pittsburgh, Pa. (business) 1223 Frick Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

The summer of 1900 was spent, in company with several 1900 men, travelling in Europe; on my return was employed by The Electric Vehicle Co. in Boston, the first company to enter into the operation of public automobile cabs. In December, 1901, I came to Pittsburgh to enter the engineering department of the American Tin Plate Co., a subsidiary of The United States Steel Corporation. This company was later merged with The American Sheet Steel Co. and since October, 1905, I have been chief engineer of The American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. My first impressions of Pittsburgh were anything but favorable. I find, however, that thirteen years have changed that feeling and my present associations are such as would make me hesitate to leave Pittsburgh. It has been my good fortune to have taken an active interest in the Harvard Club of Western Pennsylvania, and I believe it has established a commendable record for its activities, particularly in establishing club scholarships. I have been president and am now chairman of the scholarship committee. For a number of years I have been on the board and chairman of the house committee of the University Club. Have served on the intercollegiate committee of Social Service, also on the executive committee of the Brotherhood of Calvary Episcopal Church. For two years I have been appointed by the corporation of Harvard College to the committee to visit the Graduate School of Applied Science. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of Western Pennsylvania, University Club of Pittsburgh, University Club of Chicago, Duquesne Club of Pittsburgh.

After finishing the required A.B. work in 1899 I went to Heidelberg, Germany, where I studied for two years. I took the Ph.D. degree in August, 1901, at Tuebingen, with a dissertation on Lessing. During vacations I travelled in Italy, Holland, France and Germany. I was instructor of German at Radcliffe and Harvard from 1901 to 1904. In the summer of 1904 I went as a tutor to Europe. From 1904 to 1905 I was an instructor at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill., from 1905 to 1909, assistant professor, from 1909, associate professor, from 1912, professor of German in Syracuse University. The summers of 1906, 1908, 1909, 1913 I spent in Germany. On three of these summer trips I carried on a rather extensive investigation into the sources of Goethe's popular epic, Hermann and Dorothea, the results of which were widely discussed in newspapers and magazines throughout Germany. In my teaching I have made a specialty of scientific German, giving besides a general scientific course, also a course in technical forestry, German, in the New State College of Forestry at Syracuse University. Besides travel my recreation has been principally natural sciences, especially astronomy and meteorology. I received a patent on an astronomical instrument, "The Kullmer Equatorial Star Finder," which is the first star finder that points at the stars; three models have been marketed, being widely used in schools and colleges. In meteorology I have been working for the last five years on the storm tracks of the United States and Europe; the results I presented by invitation at Christmas meetings of the Association of American Geographers at Washington and Princeton; in this work I discovered. the new law that storms in the United States take on the average a much more northerly track during years of maximum solar activity (maximum sun spots) than during years of minimum activity; I showed that this holds good for the four sun-spot periods covered by our records. I haven't made much money in my first fifteen years out, but, believe me, I've had an awfully good time doing what I can do in my narrow sphere. I have written: Poessneck, the Scene of Hermann und Dorothea (Baltimore, Furst, 1907), Poessneck und Hermann und Dorothea (Heidelberg, Winter, 1910), A Sketch Map of Germany: The 2x3 Diagonal Method (Syracuse, Kramer, 1912), France: A French Composition Book; The Roofed Square—Paris Method, (with Prof. C. W. Cabeen), (Syracuse, Kramer, 1914), Betrachtungen ueber die Bibliotheken (Frankfurter Zeitung, No. 241, 1910), Star Maps and Star Facts (Syracuse, 1910; second edition, 1912), The Delights of an Interest in the Stars (Syracuse, 1910), A Luminous Meteor Cloud (Monthly Weather Review, Dec., 1908), The Shift of the Storm Track (In Publication 192, Carnegie Institution of Washington, 1914). Member: University Club Syracuse; Syracuse Harvard Club (secretary), Modern Language Association.

Charles Haven Ladd

Born	Galveston, Tex., Dec. 2, 1878.
Parents	William Fowle Ladd, Caroline Willis.
School	Academy, Milton, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1899.
Married	Mary Stockett Jacob, Washington, D. C., June 11, 1903.
Died	Jan. 28, 1915, in El Paso, Tex.

Charles Haven Ladd was born at Galveston, Texas, December 2, 1878, the eldest son of William Fowle Ladd and Caroline (Willis) Ladd. From 1892 to 1894 he attended Trinity College School, Port Hope, Canada; in 1895, Milton Academy; in 1896, St. Mark's School; and entered Harvard in 1897. He left college in June, 1899, and entered the employ of Adams Express Company, in New York City. On the destruction of much of the property of the company at Galveston, Texas, in the storm of September 8, 1900, he left New York for Texas and after that time lived almost continuously in Texas. In Galveston he was engaged in railroad construction and engineering work for the Southern Pacific Railway Company, remaining with it for three years. After preliminary work on the line from Dallas to Beaumont he did some 90 miles of location work in the coast country, and from there to Louisiana. In 1903, after his marriage on June 11, 1903, to Mary Stockett Jacob, daughter of Lieutenant Edwin S. Jacob, U. S. N., he entered the employ of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railway Company, having headquarters while on maintenance work at Temple, Texas. In 1904 he was superintendent of the company's oil properties at Batson, Texas, from where, after a year in the oil business for himself, he went to Panama on an oil proposition for the United States Government, with a view to having the government change from coal to oil as a fuel on the Isthmus. He spent two months there, then returned to Texas, other bidders having obtained the contract for the government's fuel oil supply. In 1905 he became assistant engineer of Houston Electric Company, at Houston, Texas, managed by Stone and Webster, of Boston. He was engineer of track and overhead lines. In 1906 he was transferred to the service of the Stone and Webster Engineering Corporation at Houston as engineer of construction on the rebuilding of tracks for the city lines, and in 1907 at Fort Worth, Texas, as superintendent of construction. Under his supervision the first extension of the Handley Power Station of Northern Texas Traction Company was built and numerous improvements carried out in the way of extensions and reconstruction of city tracks in Fort Worth.

While there he developed symptoms of tuberculosis and was sent to Arizona in the fall of that year for the purpose of regaining his health. After remaining for about two years in Arizona and New Mexico his health was improved and he was detailed as superintendent of construction in El Paso, Texas, and from 1912 until he died on January 29, 1915, had charge of the work done there by Stone and Webster Engineering Corporation, consisting of a 5,000 kilowatt extension of the power station, various track improvements, and other miscellaneous work. His sterling worth was recognized by everyone who knew him. A man closely associated with him in his work says of him: "Ladd was an unusually capable man and if his health had remained unimpaired, I consider that he had a brilliant future before him. He was versatile to the last degree and no complications in his work or obstacles of any nature seemed to feaze him for a moment. Regarding his versatility, I have often said that if Ladd were called on for a set of plans and estimate for a bridge across the Atlantic Ocean, to be finished in 48 hours, he would be able to produce something that read and looked like plans and specifications for such a bridge. His disposition might be called lovable, if such a term can be applied to a man. He was always cheerful and had a smile and a pleasant word for everyone from the banker to the laborer. He had a host of friends in every part of the country." The brief notes he wrote occasionally to the class secretary gave clear evidence of his courage and cheerfulness during his illness and his constant interest in the affairs of the Class.

Years in College	1896-1897.
Degrees	D.O. (American School of Osteopathy), 1907; M.D. (Boston College of Physicians and Surgeons), 1914.
Married	Agnes Glenny, Lansing, Mich., Oct. 1, 1904.
Business	Osteopathic physician.
Address	178 Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass.

After leaving college, was invalided for a few years, then went South where I spent a few months in Mississippi, teaching—this was about 1902-3. From there I went to Cincinnati where I had a lively experience with dysentery which kept me pretty weak for about six weeks. I left Cincinnati in the early part of March, 1904, for Lansing, Mich., where I taught in a large school for boys. There I met the present Mrs. Lake. We were married the following October, and took in the St. Louis Exposition, Niagara Falls, etc. From Lansing I went to Kirksville, Mo., where my wife and I studied osteopathy, graduating in due time. Returning East, we took the Massachusetts State Board examination and were formally registered as physicians, May, 1907. A few years later I entered the Boston College of Physicians and Surgeons, graduating in 1914. I am on the faculty of the Massachusetts Osteopathic College. Member: A. F. and A. M., Order of the Eastern Star, American Osteopathic Association, New England Osteopathic Association.

This is a statement of my occupation since leaving college: instructor in mathematics, Purdue University. 1901-2; instructor, University of Maine, 1902-4; U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, 1904-7; graduate student, University of Pennsylvania, 1907-8; instructor in mathematics, University of Pennsylvania, 1908-11. While at the University of Pennsylvania, I also did some field work for the Coast and Geodetic Survey. From 1911 to date my working time has been given chiefly to the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Outside of my work there is little to record, owing partly, perhaps, to rather indifferent health. Vacations I have spent as far as practicable in the woods. I have published brief articles in the American Mathematical Monthly, Archiv der Mathematick and Physik, and Journal of the Washington Academy of Science. Member: American Mathematical Society, Philosophical Society of Washington, Washington Academy of Science, Association of Teachers of Mathematics of the Middle States and Maryland, Phi Beta Kappa Society in the District of Columbia.

During the academic years 1900-02, and for the first three months of 1902-03 I taught at St. Thomas Aquinas High School, Cambridge. In November, 1902, I obtained an appointment as teaching fellow in mathematics in the Catholic University of America, and began work early in December of the same year. At the beginning of the academic year 1903-04, I succeeded, while still retaining my teaching fellowship, in making arrangements whereby I was enabled to undertake graduate work in mathematics, physics, and applied electricity at Johns Hopkins University. This work I continued for four years, attaining the degree of Ph.D. in June, 1907. Simultaneously I was promoted to be instructor in mathematics; in 1909 from instructor to associate professor; and in 1912 from associate professor to professor, which rank I now hold. Member: American Mathematical Society, Phi Beta Kappa Association in the District of Columbia, Washington Harvard Club.

1900-1901, Harvard Law School; 1902-1903, New York Law School; 1903-1904, practising law in New York. Leaving New York in the fall of 1904 I went to Tacoma, Washington, and looked around for a year, falling for the lumber and box business by entering the employ of the Hogue Box and Lumber Company as superintendent. After two years of practical experience I accepted an offer as manager of the box department of the Brunette Saw Mill Company, New Westminster, B. C. In 1912 I removed to Raymond, Washington, taking the position of manager of the Weston Veneer and Basket Company. In 1913 I took over the Hillcrest Lumber Company plant in Tacoma, operating it until the bottom fell out of the lumber business. For the past year I have been doing a lumber brokerage business, and I have been working on a new method of cutting basket veneer, which promises well. Member: University Club of Tacoma, Wash., Harvard Club of Tacoma, Wash.

After graduation I entered Massachusetts Institute Technology, in the mining course and took my S. B. degree in 1903. Had appendicitis the summer of 1900, so kept pretty quiet. In 1901 I went to Sinaloa, Mexico, and worked at a mine in the Sierra Madre, coming out across the Sierra mule-back with an Indian guide to Parral, an interesting but not adventurous trip. In 1902 my brother and I went on a bicycle trip abroad, touring England, Belgium, Germany and Switzerland. I am glad I saw those countries before the Germans got busy at their present activities. In 1903, after graduation at Tech. I took a job as surveyor at the Camp Bird Mine, Colorado, where I stayed fourteen months, leaving to take a lease on the Independence Mine, Cripple Creek. I was more or less mixed up in the labor war of that time, serving as deputy-sheriff in Cripple Creek and Telluride, but escaped getting blown up. In 1905 I took an eight-ton traction drill into southern Utah to the San Juan River, partly on its own steam and partly by horse, and prospected for gold in the Navajo country, again escaping with my scalp but without any gold. I then rode alone some 200 miles to Telluride, and feeling the need of a change, went bear and elk hunting in Wyoming for two months, getting plenty of game and riding from the Montana to the Colorado line. Mining life carried me pretty well over the continent on various trips. I was in Sonora during the Yaqui rebellion, Goldfield in boom times, in Carolina looking for gold in the Blue Ridge foot-hills, and many other places. I leased a mine in Telluride from 1906 to 1911 and had some success. Besides I was engaged in various side issues such as lumbering and ranching and examination of mining properties for others, which took me again over half of the continent. In 1911-12 I had an office in Boston in partnership with Halstead Lindsley, '02, for examination of mines, and this business kept me travelling again from Canada to Mexico. I was in Sonora during the Madero revolution when I travelled mule-back over many mountain trails, and though I saw many of the insurrectos, was unmolested. In January, 1912, I was offered the position of manager of the Kerr Lake Mine in Cobalt. and have been in that position ever since. The most interesting problem I have had to deal with has been the draining of Kerr Lake, the body of water which lay over the mine workings. I have written: Prospecting for Gold on the San Juan River, (Mining and Scientific Press, February, 1911), An Elk Hunt in the Wyoming Rockies, (Field and Stream, February, 1912), Draining Kerr Lake, (American Institute of Mining Engineers Bulletin, August, 1914). Member: American Institute of Mining Engineers, Canadian Mining Institute, Harvard Engineering Society, Tennis and Racquet Club, Harvard Club of New York. Temiskaming Mine Managers' Association .

After graduation in June, 1900, I worked for the Massachusetts Highway Commission in making surveys, estimates, etc., for new state highways, until November, 1900. In January, 1901, I was appointed as an assistant engineer with the New York Rapid Transit Commission, then engaged in building the first subway in New York City. I have been in New York continuously since 1901 and have been engaged on subway work all of the time. At present I am an assistant division engineer in the third division office, in charge of constructing a portion of the Lexington Avenue subway, extending from 106th Street and Lexington Avenue, along Lexington Avenue under the Harlem River and along Mott Avenue and East 138th Street in the Bronx. Member: Harvard Engineering Society of New York, Municipal Engineers Society of New York, University Club of White Plains, N. Y.

Business	Lawyer and clerk of court.
Address	(home) 73 Central St., Concord Junction, Mass. (business) Lapham Building, Commonwealth Ave., Concord Junction, Mass.

Immediately after the close of the college year in 1900 I was seized with the call of "high finance" and so found myself working in the Third National Bank for the mere pittance of five dollars per week. After three months of Thompson's Spa I concluded that I was not temperamentally fitted for the city, so I drifted back to rustic Concord and there assumed the task of teaching school. This was more to my liking as it gave me an opportunity to get out in the open every afternoon either to take part in athletic games or coach others. Then, during the summer months I played semi-professional ball, thus having plenty of fun and at the same time accumulating a little spare money. In 1904 I gave up teaching and entered the Harvard Law School, spending one year there. At the close of that term I received the appointment of Clerk of the District Court of Central Middlesex, which position I hold at this writing. In the year 1910 I decided to take the bar examinations and in December of that year succeeding in convincing the bar examiners that my good law outweighed my bad law to such an extent that I ought to be admitted as an attorney. I placed my shingle outside the Lapham Building in Concord Junction, and here at the present writing I am pursuing my calling. Member: Knights of Columbus, Concord; Harvard Club, Middlesex Bar Association, Association of the Clerks of Courts.

Business	Physician.
Address	153 Linden St., Everett, Mass.

I was graduated from the Harvard Medical School in 1904, and from the Carney Hospital in 1905. Almost without stopping to take breath I started the practice of medicine in Everett, Mass., and entered the state of matrimony. I am still enthusiastic about both states and do not contemplate leaving either of them. Sometime during the month after I was married I read an article entitled, "How to Live Above Your Income." As my income for that month was eight dollars, the tip was of inestimable value then as now. For several years I was on the medical staff at the Boston Dispensary. I am now on the staff at the Whidden Hospital, Everett, and visiting physician to the New England Home for Deaf Mutes. My connection at the Home has resulted in my becoming familiar with the method of conversation used by the inmates. This makes one language that I have at my finger-tips. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Massachusetts Medical Society, Everett Medical Society.

Superintendent schools, Rushville, Ind., 1900-1904; High School principal, Corydon, Ky., 1904-1906; teacher in Kentucky State University, 1906-1912; real estate and contracting, 1905-1914. Real estate was a side line for years before quitting teaching. It has been in real estate that I have succeeded in a financial way. I have built about forty houses and have sold about twenty-four of them. I have recently bought a ten-acre tract inside city limits and am improving it with streets, sewers and sidewalks, preparatory to building on it in 1915. For a diversion I raise flowers, having about 10,000 roses, probably 50,000 gladiolias and many other flowers in smaller quantities. I probably have many weak points, but flowers touch the weakest spot. Throughout the summer season I furnish flowers daily, gratis, to every patient in Good Samaritan Hospital, which is located near.

I spent three years at Columbia Law School but never became admitted to the bar. I went into the law office of McNaught and Searle, and assisted in the business end of the firm. This kept me travelling, as their interests were spread all over the United States. I got tired of this and wanted to stay in one place, and got married. I did both, and went into the business of making garden furniture, copies of old seats from famous European gardens. We did very well, built up a good business. We were the pioneers in this country and had everything our own way. A combination of a bad partner, panic of 1907, and bad business judgment (put $25,000 into a building on which we took a lease), broke the company in 1909. I then sold asbestos, tried the New York stock market with indifferent success. Took a trip through the northwestern part of Canada, with the idea of locating (they were all gambling in land), came back to New York and went into the real estate business with Ewing, Bacon and Henry. Their business is planned a little differently from most real estate concerns, and we have a very competent engineering department, and give particular attention to the management of properties. Although the real estate business is away below normal at this writing, we cannot complain, and I see a good future ahead.

Business	Manufacturer of machinery and engineer.
Address	(home) 185 Farwell Ave., Milwaukee, Wis. (business) 710 Manhattan Building, Milwaukee, Wis.

The year following my graduation was spent in my father's refinery as billing clerk. Not finding sufficient occupation for my newly-acquired mental outfit, I sought new fields to conquer and devoted much of my time to the technical side of the business. Several patents on canning machinery were the result. The following spring I entered Armour Institute of Technology, graduating in Mechanical Engineering with the class of 1904. After another short period in which I suffered a relapse of inventoritis, I settled down to serious work as draftsman with the Allis Chalmers Company in Milwaukee. The work I had to do was very much to my taste, as the company was then developing their new type of large Twin Tandem Gas Engines which attracted so much attention at the United States Steel Plant, Gary, Indiana. A year later the engineering department of Allis Chalmers was transferred to their new quarters with glazed windows and green mercury lights, resembling more a prison than a drafting room. My recollections of this place are the more disagreeable as about this time I had a severe illness and my last impressions of Allis Chalmers are associated with this unpleasant experience. I was happy at this time, however, to have with me my wife to whom I shortly before had been married in Denver, Colorado. On making my escape from Allis Chalmers, I took a position as special draftsman for the Milwaukee Coke and Gas Company in the general manager's office. Two years later a fortunate combination of circumstances placed me in charge of the drafting room as plant engineer. Four years at the coke plant saw the perfection of a machine for loading coal, coke and lime into box cars which led to my leaving the company in order to undertake its manufacture. The plans of this machine had been drawn by me at night, they were accepted by the company and a trial machine was built followed soon after by five more. After four years of up-hill work, one incident of which was bankruptcy, due to an unfortunate partnership, the business has taken on a healthier tone and now bids fair to prosper. Inventoritis has now got its fangs in me for life, but aside from the pleasure of this surrender, I find my chief asset to be the broadening influence that comes from contact with men and problems of live interest. Haven't been back to Cambridge since graduation, but attended the annual meeting last year of the Associated Harvard Clubs in Chicago, which thrilling recollection, as a stimulus, I trust will find me in Cambridge for 1900 Quindecennial. Here's hoping. Member: Harvard Club of Milwaukee, University Club of Milwaukee.

Children	Roger Courtney, Jan. 1, 1906.
Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 1221 14th St., Bedford, Ind. (business) Citizens National Bank Building, Bedford, Ind.

After graduation in June, 1900, I returned to Bedford, Indiana, and entered into the practice of law with E. K. Dye. Later, when my father, William H. Martin, retired from the bench, the firm was composed of Martin, Dye and Martin, which continued until I went to Kansas City, Missouri, to become assistant general agent for The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, N. J., for Kansas and western Missouri. I remained in Kansas City until February, 1913, when my father's illness required me to return to Bedford, Indiana, where I again engaged in the practice of law under firm name of Martin, Pearson and Martin. Upon my father's death in April, 1914, the firm was continued under the style of Pearson and Martin and so continues at this time. I represent a number of the Bedford Stone operators, am counsel for the Citizens National Bank and Citizens Trust Company, and a director in both institutions. Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 5125 Drexel Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. (business) 38 South Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Upon leaving college, I entered Northwestern University Law School, and while attending the law school, worked in the office of Julian W. Mack, an eminent Harvard product. Upon being admitted to the bar in 1903, I entered the practice of law, becoming a member of the firm of Stein, Mayer, Stein and Hume. Two of my partners were Yale men, but it takes at least that number to offset one Harvard man, and I accordingly took my chances. Since 1906 the firm has been Stein, Mayer and Stein, Mr. Hume having been elected to the bench. I have done nothing of general interest; have simply devoted myself to my profession. Here and there I have taken some interest in business ventures, which, thanks to the fact that I have never been the guiding spirit in any of them, have had some measure of success. Though not a member of any society for the prevention of cruelty, I am nevertheless humane—therefore I bring this featureless narrative to a close. Member: Illinois State Bar Association, Chicago Bar Association, Illinois Athletic Club, Ravisloe Country Club.

Business	Not employed at present.
Address	(home) Paw Paw Lake, Watervliet, Mich.

After leaving Harvard I went up into Canada and went out with a Grand Trunk survey gang to survey the Grand Trunk Pacific. It was in the winter and somewhat cold. The only way I could manage to keep warm was to build a hot fire in the tent and then take a drink of Perry Davis' Pain Killer. After I had enjoyed myself in this way for several weeks and had acquired a splendid cough and a pretty fair case of rheumatism, I had a lucid interval one day and returned to Chicago. When I reached Chicago, I entered my cousin's law office and stayed there till about 1909, since which time I have labored not.

Business	Professor of English.
Address	27 N. New St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Immediately after graduating from the University of Pennsylvania in 1896, I became head of the departments of English and German at Perkiomen Seminary, Pennsburg, Pa., and retained this position until 1905. In 1899-1900 I was granted a year's leave of absence to take special work in English at Harvard, for which work I received the degree of A. B. In 1905 I was appointed instructor in English at Lehigh University and continued in this until 1909 when I was made assistant professor of English; this position I have retained to the present time. In 1910, along with my duties of assistant professor of English in Lehigh, I was appointed head of the department of English in the Moravian College for Women, Bethlehem, Pa. This, with my other position, I have filled until the present time. In addition to my college work I frequently give addresses in my locality. Besides, I occasionally write poems. A critic said of one of my poems (a Memorial Hymn to certain Pennsylvania settlers), that it has "the strength and rhythm of Julia Ward Howe's, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." I have written: Leisure Hour Poems. (The A. E. Damly Estate, Publishers. Skippack, Pa., 1894), Delaware Water Gap Lyrics, (Quinlin Printing Co., South Bethlehem, Pa., 1913), Chamberlaine's Love's Victory, edited with introduction and notes. (Bethlehem Printing Co., Bethlehem, Pa., 1914).

Address	Houghton Mifflin Co., 4 Park St., Boston, Mass.

I went abroad for a year and a half directly after college, going pretty thoroughly over western Europe, and entered my present business in January, 1902. In 1908 I became a director in Houghton Mifflin Co. My work keeps me around Boston most of the time, though I have had several vacation trips abroad with friends or visiting friends on the other side. In winter I live in Boston; spring and fall I spend in the country at North Andover; summer on the seashore at Nahant. Outside my business some of my interests are music, acting, farming—and classmates. Nothing new since the last re-union (only another baby, destined for Radcliffe, not Harvard). Still practising the gentle art of physic in the country and doing it a little more easily, thanks to Mr. Henry Ford and gasoline, instead of hay. Have dipped deeply into the political game and have finally arrived: Chairman of the school committee (I flatter myself that that will make the eyes of 1900 bulge a few). Being but a modest violet I'll not tell about the books I've written, nor will I mention the numberless societies honored by having my name on their rolls.

After graduation I worked for two years in the meter and instrument department of the General Electric Co. at Lynn, Mass., as an assistant engineer. I helped to develop new apparatus and conducted laboratory tests on various measuring and indicating electrical instruments. I entered the employment of the Western Electric Co. at New York in the summer of 1902. I contined my work in New York till the end of 1907 when I accepted an engineering position in the Antwerp house of our company (in January, 1908). I now hold the position of the chief engineer at Antwerp. Since the outbreak of the war I spent some time in London and came over to New York with my family last November. We visited New York and Chicago in the spring of 1911, when I came on an educational trip. My work calls me often to visit various European towns and I have been all over Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, as well as in Paris, Milan, Berlin and London. This, in combination with my trans-Atlantic travels, makes me feel confident that our two young sons are the most-travelled little boys in the class. In spite of this, they can hold their own when they get to this country and my oldest boy entered an American public school and made satisfactory progress without having ever had any lessons in English, outside of what he picked up himself at home. Our baby can likewise lick anything of his own weight, in spite of his Flemish, Wallonian, French and German linguistic handicaps. My European and American experience has taught me to feel at home in various places under widely differing conditions and, given interesting work with a good lot of fellows to work with, it seems almost of no consequence where the work is to be carried out. One's wife has often a different point of view, but even she can find compensation in European museums, ancient monuments, theatres, opera and good domestic servants, in addition to a limited acquaintance with American exiles, against the advantages of living at home. The children are all alike in any of the countries I have visited. As to sunshine and shadows, while some places have more of one than of the other, the real comparison of their relation comes from inside and does not depend entirely on the outside conditions.

After leaving college I spent the years 1901-02 in Havana on electrical work, returning to New York towards the close of 1902. In 1904 I entered the Western Electric Company's employ in New York where I remained until ordered to China in 1909. The years 1909-1912 I passed in China. On my return from China in November, 1912, I retired from active work and have since spent a good deal of time in travelling about from one place to another. However, I make my headquarters in New York and manage to get there at frequent intervals for stays of uncertain length. So far no one has pinned any medals on me or trusted me with any office of trust. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Shanghai Club, Shanghai, China.

Soon after I left college I went to Cuba where I worked for the American government as transitman in the park department of Havana; and then I put in a year with the Cuba Company, being employed on the survey of the railroad from Santa Clara to Santiago de Cuba. I returned to the States in May, 1902, with the idea of securing a position which would take me to the Spanish countries where I could make use of the Spanish which I had become quite conversant with in Cuba. I might say that I would not have become so conversant had I not been well drilled in the elements of the language at Harvard. It took me a year to find what I wanted; but I secured the position of foreign traveller for Whitall Tatum Company of New York. I made three trips for them through Porto Rico, Cuba, and Mexico, when they offered me the managership of their Australian branch located at Sydney, New South Wales. I came to Australia in 1905 and held this position till last year, when, on my last trip home, I made arrangements to take Whitall Tatum Company's business as an agency, with the right to represent other firms. I established the business of R. S. Moore and Co. at 387 George Street, Sydney, where we carry on a general agency business, representing American houses. During my term of managership for Whitall Tatum Company in this territory. I made a special trip to the East Indies, China, Straits Settlements and India, and one trip to South Africa in the interests of my firm. On each trip home I try to take a different route, so as to see as much of the world as possible. I have crossed the Pacific four times by the routes via Vancouver and San Francisco; made one trip via South Africa and England, and once via the Suez Canal and Continental ports and Algiers. The next time I hope to go through the Panama Canal. Perhaps later there will be a route by aeroplane.

Immediately upon graduation I went to the Pacific Coast where I spent four months under the Division of Forestry of the Department of Agriculture, surveying timber in Washington and Oregon. After a few weeks in a machine shop in Peterboro, New Hampshire, I went to South Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to work as a machinist in the shops of the Bucyrus Company, the largest manufacturer in the world of steam shovels, dredges and general machinery for excavation work. I have remained here ever since and for the last five years have been secretary of the company. My time has been so occupied as to leave no opportunity for travelling, other than frequent trips over the United States and Canada. I have no literary or political aspirations and my only public appearances are when I give an occasional lecture at some engineering college or convention. After living in Milwaukee for ten or twelve years we recently yielded to a desire we all felt for the country and removed to an old-fashioned home near South Milwaukee on the shore of Lake Michigan. Here we are trying, and I think with success, to bring something of interest into the lives of a community of unenlightened individuals, composed principally of the families of the employees in our shops. At the same time we feel that life is well worth living in the simple country home that is always open to the 1900 men who happen out in this direction. During college and for several months thereafter it was my ambition to pursue electric engineering for a livelihood. Several positions were available at graduation, but the locations and the prospects were not encouraging. In the autumn of 1900 my present senior partner, George D. Markham, erstwhile overseer, persuaded me to come into his office as a ''cub'' insurance man ''to see what it was like'' as he expressed it; in the meanwhile continuing my search for an attractive engineering position. I was given to understand that I should be paid what I was worth, which ''wouldn't be much,'' and with liberty to quit on a day's notice. It was also impressed on me that the concern would probably survive if I did quit. As a matter of fact I cordially disliked the idea of insurance as a profession. This was due to my half-baked idea that insurance as a profession consisted of hounding a prospective purchaser until he threw up his hands and paid what was necessary to relieve him of the shadower. This impression probably was due to crude work of life insurance solicitors. The first six months were discouraging in the extreme. It was hard work overcoming my prejudice against insurance of any kind, although the business of W. H. Markham and Co. included all classes of risks, such as fire, marine, and the usual contracts of indemnity. After that time the broader side of the business began to appeal to me and with increasing knowledge of the business my prejudice faded away and my interest was fully aroused. In 1903 I was made a partner in the firm and have never regretted the strange departure from my plans as an undergraduate. For several years I have given special study to railroad insurance and fire prevention work.—a large and absorbing work. From 1902 to 1914 inclusive, I have been managing underwriter of the Individual Fire Underwriters of St. Louis. At various times I have served as treasurer of the University Club, St. Louis, and at present I am treasurer of the Noonday Club, director of the American Trust Co. and the Title Guaranty Trust Co., and president of the Pyrene Co. of Missouri. As a rule my summer trips have been North or East, where I have never failed to find classmates enjoying their summer vacations and renewing old friendships. His preparation for college was obtained at Boston Latin School, Boston, Mass. In college he specialized in Franch and Spanish and took part in French plays, acting in ''Athalie'' in 1897, and acting Thibaut in ''Le Medecini malgre lui'' in 1898, M. Bobinet in ''La Comtesse d' Escarbaguas'' in 1898, and Gareau in ''Le Pedant Joue'' in 1900. He received a detur in 1897-8 and scholarships in 1897-8 and 1898-9. He was graduated magnum cum laude, with honorable mention in French (bis). During the summer of 1900 he was a member of the teaching staff of the Harvard Summer School for Cuban Teachers. He was a member of the Circle Francais, La Sociedad Española, of which he was secretary in 1900, and of the Catholic Club. From 1900 to 1902 he attended the Graduate School and in the latter year received his degree of A.M. He specialized there in languages; Spanish, French, Italian and German. In 1902-3 he was assistant in French. In the summer of 1903 he taught in the Harvard Summer School for the Porto Rican Teachers. 1903-4 he was assistant in French and Spanish. During his stay in the Graduate School and his years of teaching at Harvard he took an active part in El Club Español of Boston, lecturing, particularly on Armando Palacio Valdes and Spanish folk songs, and reading and acting in Spanish. In 1904 he was reappointed assistant at Harvard, but having brilliantly passed competitive examinations for an instructorship in French and Spanish at the United States Naval Academy, he received an appointment there. He was the only American of the eleven candidates at this examination. Two promotions as instructor came to him, and in 1913 he was promoted to the position of professor in Spanish at the Navel Academy. His death on Sept. 8, 1914, was due to typhoid fever. He was a skilled fencer and in 1909 became very much interested in helping to coach the midshipmen in this sport. His valuable assistance was mentioned by the representative for fencing in the annual report of the Navy Athletic Association for the year 1912-3, as follows: ''In closing this report I wish to invite your attention to the valuable service rendered the team by Professor F. W. Morrison, of the Department of Modern Languages. Professor Morrison gave up every afternoon during the long training season and worked patiently and efficiently with the various members of the squad. His knowledge of fencing, coupled with his skill with the foil and his excellent judgment, proved of inestimable value and merits the warmest thanks of the Association.'' In 1913-5 he was representative for fencing and a member of the executive committee of the Navy Athletic Association. He was also invited to fence at the Fencers Club at Washington. In the summer of 1911 he went to Spain and completed his research in the public libraries at Seville and Madrid, finishing his thesis on ''The Influence of the French Literature on the Spanish Literature of the Nineteenth Century,'' which he was to present at Harvard for his Ph.D. He had much talent for music and at the early age of eleven played the classics in concerts. He translated in Blair and Robertson's ''Philippine Islands'' Father Chirino's ''Relacion de las Islas Filipinas,'' (Arthur H. Clark Co., Cleveland, Ohio); edited with Rev. William Safford Jones, ''College Themes and Letters,'' by Francis Morrison (George H. Ellis, Boston, 1899); edited in collaboration with Phillip Churchman, with introduction, notes and vocabulary, ''La Alegria del Capitan Ribot,'' by Armando Palacio Valdes (D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, 1906, second edition 1907); edited with notes and vocabulary, ''Tres Comedias Modernas (Henry Holt & Co., New York, 1909);

edited with notes and vocabulary "Cuentos Modernos" (D. C. Heath & Co., Boston, 1911). He also wrote professional articles, chiefly in the Spanish field, in "Modern Language Notes" and elsewhere, and translated scientific articles from the Italian for the United States Naval Institute. From Mr. Morrison's own statements in the Third Class Report, it is evident that he had in mind the preparation of much additional work on Spanish literature for publication. He was a member of the Harvard Club of Annapolis and of El Ateneo Hispano Americano de Washington, Modern Language Association, Naval Academy Officers Mess, Annapolitan Club of Annapolis, Harvard Club of Annapolis, El Club Espanol of Boston, and Navy Athletic Association. Letters from his colleagues at Annapolis and from eminent teachers and authorities on French and Spanish in this and other countries, among them Professor C. H. Grandgent and Professor J. D. M. Ford of Harvard, show that they held a very high opinion of his ability and scholarly knowledge of French and Spanish. His published works received great praise in the magazines in which they were reviewed. He was a born teacher, efficient, enthusiastic and always hard at work. The respect and affection of his associates were his in the highest degree. At the Naval Academy his advice was always valued by the head of his department. An associate there writes of him as follows: "Professor Morrison was a scholar of rare attainments, a master of Spanish philology and literature, and a finished student of French, German and Italian. His various publications and text books evinced a thorough knowledge of Spanish literature and a profound study of the language, which classed him as one of the greatest authorities in Spanish in this country. As a linguist he had few equals, and his wonderful adaptability enabled him to combine the Latin temperament with the Saxon, not only in words but in spirit and thought. His death was an always will be a great sorrow to those of us whose good fortune it was to have known him intimately. He was a child at heart; he sought the beautiful in life as he did in nature. He had no faults, his mission was to do good; he glorified in his friend's good fortunes and smiled under adversity. Professor Morrison took a great interest in the Midshipmen at the Naval Academy outside of his professional work. For years he spent his hours of leisure with the fencing team, and contributed greatly to the excellence attained and shown by the Naval Academy fencing team this year."

JAMES FRANCIS MORRISON

Born	Thompsonville, Conn., Oct. 23, 1871.
Parents	James Morrison. Georgianna Ward.
School	Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; M.D. (Johns Hopkins), 1904.
Married	Sarah Letitia Crowell, Barrington, N. S., Sept. 16, 1908.
Business	Physician.
Address	303 Albany Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

After receiving my M.D. at Johns Hopkins in 1904, I served as interne at the Connecticut State Hospital, Middletown, Conn., from July to December, 1904, and as interne at the Kings County Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., from December, 1904, to September, 1906. I then returned as assistant physician to the Connecticut State Hospital, where I remained until September, 1908, leaving that institution to engage in general practice in Brooklyn, N. Y. I am specializing to some extent in mental and nervous diseases, and the small amount of writing for publication that I have done has been along those lines. Membership in societies and clubs has been limited practically to those of medical character, and offices held have been in such societies. I am associate neurologist at the Brooklyn and the Bushwick Hospitals and adjunct assistant neurologist at the Kings County Hospital; other appointive positions in connection with hospitals and clinics I have resigned. In 1913 I spent six months at Saranac Lake, N. Y., having through overwork developed pulmonary tuberculosis. Since returning to Brooklyn I have worked as hard as before my breakdown, and have apparently held my own physically.

Publishing has been my work since graduation. 1900 to 1903—McClure's Magazine and the associated book organization, McClure, Phillips and Company. 1903 to 1906—with Ellery Sedgwick, '94, as associate editor of Leslie's Monthly, made over into The American Magazine in 1905, and as treasurer of the company. 1906 to the present time, with Frederick A. Stokes Company at every kind of work connected with publishing books and as director and secretary of the company. Publishing brings fortunes to very few men, and it will never bring a fortune to me; but it offers many other compensations and commands one's interest unremittingly. I guess I shan't rust. Outside activities have risen usually out of my daily work. I've been in the movement to extend the educational and social ideals of Dr. Montessori, partly because of publishing her books. And now the playgoing work of The Drama League takes some of my leisure time. In the old magazine days I indulged in editorial trips that took me into nearly every state in the union; but I've had only two trips abroad, in 1906 and 1913. I still play a little at tennis but am as much of a "dub" as ever; I play rather more at auction bridge and some partners have said I'm a "dub" at that. Also, I read all that Frank Simonds writes, talk with him when there's a chance, and gain reflected glory by quoting him on politics or on the war. I almost forgot to tell that I acquired a farm in Connecticut four years ago; scenery superb, everything else worn out or stony. It will keep me poor for years to come. Address	(home) 86 Williams St., Burlington, Vt. (business) University of Vermont, Burlington, Vt.

From 1900 to 1904 I was in residence in the Graduate School, receiving my doctor's degree in the latter year. From 1902-1904 I was an Austin Teaching Fellow in the department of romance languages. From 1904 to 1905, I was professore incaricato at the Reale Accademia scientificaletteraria in Milan, Italy. Owing to Mrs. Myrick's inability to accompany or later to follow me, I returned and accepted the chair of Romance languages at the University of Vermont, which I have occupied since the fall of 1905. The even tenor of professional life and duties has been interrupted only by two succeeding journeys to Europe, one in the summer of 1911 and another from May to September, 1914. In 1902 and 1903 I had a part in the translations incorporated in Blair and Robertson's "History of the Philippine Islands," and in 1904 published a translation of Beaumarchais' "Barbier de Seville," (Dent's Temple Dramatist Series). Since then I have made occasional notes in the American Journal of Philology and Modern Language Notes. Member: Ethan Allen Club, Modern Language Association.

Degrees	A.B., 1900; M.D., 1904; A.M., 1905.
Died	April 14, 1912, in Boston.

Louis Nelson was born in Boston, July 5, 1878, and prepared for Harvard at the English High School there. After taking his degree of A.B. he entered the Harvard Medical School, received his M.D. degree in 1904, and in 1905 after a year of research work obtained the degree of A.M. and won the Boylston medical prize. For the academic year 1906-1907 he was assistant in the Pharmacological Department of the Medical School. He then went to Germany, where he spent two years at the University of Strassburg and became assistant to the well-known bacteriologist, Professor Schmidtberg. On returning to Boston he began practising. During the last two years he had been instructor in pharmacology at the Harvard Medical School. He published several papers in English and German on pharmacological and physiological subjects. His death resulted from illness due to the so-called ''gas'' bacillus, which he had recently been investigating. During the course of his illness he studied its progress, and though realizing that his recovery was unlikely, gave every aid to other physicians in obtaining knowledge regarding the disease. From the time of beginning his research concerning the ''gas'' bacillus he knew the risk he was running. But he took the risk willingly in the interest of medicine and gave his life for the cause.

Died	April 14, 1915, in Boston, Mass.

George Munroe Gage Nichols was born at Haverhill, Mass., April 2, 1876. His father was William Munroe Nichols. His mother, Sarah Kimball Nichols, dying at his birth, he was brought up by his maternal grandmother on a farm in the country, "Rocks illage," a suburb of Haverhill, where he attended the country school, later coming to Haverhill daily to the High School from which he graduated in 1895. The following year was spent at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. During this year his father died. In 1896 he entered Harvard, spending four years in the college and three at the Law School. In 1900 he visited Cuba and parts of South America. During the years at the Law School he was a member of the Harvard debating team and the First Corps of Cadets of Boston. In 1903, with Robert B. Brewster, he opened an office in Haverhill for the practice of his profession. He there joined the Pentucket and Wachusett Clubs, the Knights Templar, Elks and several other orders. About 1906, when city solicitor, he became interested in commission government of cities, spent much time in the study of this form of government, brought about its adoption in Haverhill and composed the commission charter for that city. He continued to be city solicitor for several years, during which time he spoke at many places on the subect of government by commission, and directed his energies toward the working and improvement of municipal affairs. He was interested also in the local militia, holding the office of second lieutenant in Company F, Eighth Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, from 1903-4 and first lieutenant, 1904-9, when he resigned. In 1905 he married Frances Wedgewood Mitchell of Haverhill. In 1910, with Robert B. Brewster, he invested in silver mines in Sonora, Mexico, and spent the winter of that year at the mines and in California. In 1911 he resigned as city solicitor to devote more time to his affairs in Mexico, again passing the winter at the mines. In the fall of 1912, war in that country making further work at the mines impossible, he entered the office of Gaston, Snow and Saltonstall of Boston, as trial attorney, continuing in that capacity until he died. In 1914 he spent a few weeks in Europe, visiting England, France and Italy. This, with his winters in California and Mexico, and several trips to Nova Scotia and Canada, constituted his travels. His interest in hunting and fishing was most keen—nothing was so near his heart as his spring and fall trips to the woods. There is hardly a sporting camp in Maine that he did not visit; and many are the guides who will never forget his friendship for them and his enthusiasm for their life. He was devoted to golf, trying as in everything he did to play as good a game as any—then a little better, if possible. In college he was an expert at pool and billiards. Later he became a remarkable bridge player. In all sports a determined winner, impatient always of anything that even pointed in the direction of defeat. Outside his professional cleverness, his ability as a linguist was his greatest accomplishment. He spoke Spanish, Italian and German passably, but French almost perfectly. When interested in politics he was in much demand to address French societies in their own tongue. His tastes were extremely simple, his love of nature intense. The early morning would find him walking in the fields before taking his train to Boston. The note of every bird was familiar to him, the name of every wild flower. Roses a joy—a boutonierre from his garden every day in summer a daily pleasure. He loved music, especially opera, never losing an opportunity to attend a good opera, but caring little for musical comedy. He had a quick, impetuous temper, often uniquely and picturesquely expressed, so that before it burned itself out, not only he, but the object of his wrath would be convulsed with laughter. He was above all a fearless fighter, honorable in business and in play, ever ready to take a sporting chance, never acknowledging the possibility of defeat in any form or under any conditions. A generous, kindly nature, far removed from pettiness or jealousy, going his way serenely, doing his utmost, working his hardest every minute of every day, never too busy for a kind word or deed to anyone crossing his path, whether family, friend or servant. A tower of strength generously shared. A sense of humor never failing, peculiarly original and unique. His last words were the key to his life and his short brilliant career—"Are we still fighting?"

Since the publication of the third class report in 1910 I have lived continuously in Detroit. Several Harvard and other college men have lived with me in apartments during the last five years; but the inroads of matrimony among them have finally driven me into the seclusion of the University Club. Still active in a firm of manufacturing chemists, I take occasional trips to various parts of the country, particularly eastward, frequently meeting classmates in New York and Boston. Outside of business I devote my time to various clubs and societies, which afford me all sorts of physical exercise, social diversion, and mental stimulus. Music still remains a vital part of my recreation. Having written no books, plays, poems, essays, or orations, having held no public office, and accomplished nothing of note, my autobiography for purposes of the class report is pale and commonplace. We who acquire neither fame nor wealth, are none the less rewarded by genuine satisfaction in our pursuit of "Veritas,"—the true and lasting things that keep us steady, faithful and hopeful. Member: Detroit: University Club, Country Club, Racquet and Curling Club, Tennis Club, Wayne County Medical Society, Academy of Medicine, Harvard Club in Michigan, Fine Arts Society, Chamber Music Society, New England Society, Crescendo Club, Detroit Music Festival Association. Outside of Detroit: American Medical Association, American Public Health Association, Harvard Club of New York.

I left college in 1898, entered volunteer service of Army, Spanish-American war. Captain of troop K, 1st Ill. Volunteer Cavalry (youngest captain in service). Promoted to acting major of the 3rd Squadron of same regiment. Mustered out of service, October, 1898. Worked as inspector of iron for Republic Iron and Steel Co. at Inland Works, East Chicago. Ind. Resigned to become private secretary to governor of Illinois, 1900. Appointed aid-de-camp to governor of Illinois with rank of colonel in Illinois National Guard. Resigned as private secretary to governor, in 1904, to assume active management of my mother’s estate of 4,500 acres at Oglehurst in Illinois. Elected to the House of Representatives in Illinois in 1904. Reelected in 1906. In 1906 session, chairman of primary law committee and drafted the bill that became the primary law of Illinois for nomination of all officials. In 1908 elected at the age of 30 as lieutenant-governor of Illinois for the term of four years. As lieutenant-governor was president of the State Senate. In 1914 appointed a commissioner from Illinois and managing official of the Illinois commission to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco to be held in 1915. Am now managing the Oglehurst farms of 4,500 acres and Gracelands farms of 2,000 acres. After leaving Harvard I went to the University of Michigan, graduating as B. S. in 1900. Then went to Mexico, where I spent four years in the mining business and as an explorer of new territory for the Waters-Pierce Oil Co., the southern branch of the Standard Oil Co. Returning to Chicago I entered Rush Medical College and took degree of M. D. in March, 1908. Then I spent 18 months as interne in Cook County Hospital, Chicago. Since that time I have been practising in San Diego. Am now president of the San Diego County Medical Society. Have served five years as secretary and treasurer of Physicians' Club of San Diego, and four years as secretary and treasurer of the San Diego County Medical Society. For one year I was president of the City Board of Health, of which I am still a member. I am associate editor of the "Southern California Practitioner," a medical journal published in Los Angeles; chief examiner for Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, and Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. I have written various articles on surgical subjects in "Journal of American Medical Association," "California State Medical Journal," and "Southern California Practitioner." I was graduated from Harvard University in 1900, and for certain biological and chemical work was given the degree of A.M. in 1901. In 1902 I assisted in physiology and in 1905 received the degree of M.D. from Harvard Medical School; in the latter year I assisted Dr. F. B. Mallory at the Boston City Hospital, in 1906 I married, and in 1907 completed a two years ''First Medical'' Service at the Boston City Hospital. In 1907-1908 I assisted Dr. W. T. Councilman in pathology at Harvard Medical School and in 1908-1909 was first assistant in pathology to Dr. F. B. Mallory at the Boston City Hospital. The summer of 1909 I spent with Mrs. Ordway in Europe, before taking up the work of director of the Bender Hygienic Laboratory in Albany, New York; here I was professor of pathology and bacteriology at the Albany Medical College. In November, 1911, I returned to Boston as physician in charge of Huntington Hospital of the Cancer Commission of Harvard University and was made lecturer in pathology in the Graduate School of Medicine. In 1913 I became instructor in medicine and member of the Faculty of Harvard Medical School, and investigated the clinical status of radium in London, Paris and some of the German cities for the Cancer Commission of Harvard University. I am now second assistant visiting physician at the Boston City Hospital. I am about to return to Albany, New York, as associate professor of medicine and dean of the Albany Medical School of Union University. I have written the following articles: 1908, A case of acute dilatation of the stomach and duodenum simulating a terminal general peritonitis (Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, March 5, 1908, p. 318); 1909, Chronic pancreatitis with tumor-like modules in the cat (Journal of Medical Research, October, 1909, Vol. XXI, No. 3, p. 451); 1909, Tumors in the common fowl (Journal of Medical Research, October, 1909, Vol. XXI., No. 3, p. 459); 1910, On the teaching of pathology by the case system, supplemented by gross and microscopic specimens (Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, June 9, 1910); 1910, Limitations of laboratory diagnosis (Albany Medical Annals, October, 1910); 1911, Angina pectoris and diseases of the coronary arteries, a discussion (Albany Medical Annals, August, 1911, p. 478); 1911, Medicine in China, an editorial (Albany Medical Annals, August, 1911, p. 481); 1911, Muscular hypertrophy of the pylorus in infancy (American Journal of Diseases of Children, September, 1911, Vol. II., p. 159); 1912, The Bender Hygienic Laboratory. A report of the director for the two years ending August 31, 1911. A critical review (Albany Medical Annals, February, 1912); 1912, The Huntington Hospital and the scope of its work (Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, June 13, 1912, p. 887); 1912, A "library-museum" in medicine (Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, June 20, 1912, p. 923); 1912, The Collis P. Huntington Memorial Hospital for Cancer Research (Harvard Graduates' Magazine, December, 1912); 1913, A typhoid-like disease in rabbits caused by bacillus suipestieus, with particular reference to the clinical course and prophylactic vaccination (Journal of Medical Research, April, 1913); 1913, The complement content of the blood in malignant disease (Journal of Medical Research, Vol. XXVIII., No. 2, July, 1913); 1913. I had studied education and pedagogy under Prof. Hanus to fit myself for high school teaching. On leaving college I had to fight poor health and for the first two years a little private teaching at home was about all that I was able to do. In 1902 I joined an engineering party of the Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern Railroad as rodman and that winter I had to rough it in the wilds of western Pennsylvania. In the spring I was promoted and ran the instruments for construction work. When the work was finished, I was laid off and was at home for a year. My next job was with the Buffalo and Susquehanna Coal Mining Co. Here the pay was small and the work disagreeable, and I only stayed with them nine months. I worked for the New York Central Railroad a few months and then went into partnership with another engineer and practised land surveying in Westchester County, N. Y., for a year and a half. The panic of 1907 struck us hard and I found it necessary to make a change. In the spring of 1908 I taught Latin as substitute in the high school at Pleasantville, N. Y., and then entered the New York State Highway Department, where I have worked ever since. I have translated: Book of Enoch, translated from Kautsch's German edition into English, 1912. Not published. Member: Society of Harvard Engineers, Society of Engineers of Eastern New York.

Address	"Havenhurst," Cambridge, Mass.

At the close of our Sophomore year, I went to London to continue the study of the voice at the Royal College of Music, where I remained for a year. The next six years were spent in Paris, with occasional trips to Italy and Germany, studying and singing in concert. In 1906 I returned to America and have been giving most of my attention to concert work, with occasional engagements in opera. Just after our Decennial—I do not know whether or not that celebration was accountable—I underwent an operation for appendicitis, from which I did not regain full strength until a year ago, when I again went back to the concert stage. After a summer of travel and camping in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, I settled down to work as a teacher of mathematics in the Asheville School, Asheville, N. C. The following year brought me back to old New England, however, at Worcester Academy, where I taught for two years. It then seemed to be the proper time to return to Harvard for graduate work, and accordingly I took the degree of A.M. in 1904. In September of that year I became instructor in physics at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa. During the summer of 1905, while travelling in Europe, I had the good fortune to be asked to join the party sent out by the Lick Observatory to observe the total eclipse of the sun which occurred in Spain. There I met some of the foremost scientists in the world, and had a wonderful experience that can never be duplicated. The following summer, too, I spent abroad, studying German at Zürich. Two years of hard work at Haverford brought me a year's leave of absence to carry on more graduate work at Harvard, at the end of which I returned to my former position at Haverford. In the autumn of 1908 I was appointed associate professor of physics and dean of Haverford College, positions which I still hold. During the summer vacations I have carried on research work at the Jefferson Physical Laboratory. In 1912 I took sabbatical leave of absence and went back to Harvard with the intention of finishing up my work for the Ph.D. degree. During this year I did some teaching as a member of the Harvard Department of Physics, and at its close received the degree for which I had been working for nine years. October, 1913, found me back again at Haverford, leading a strenuous existence, and sending two or three men every year up to the Harvard Graduate School to really learn something. I have written: Volume Ionization Produced by Ultra Violet Light (Physical Review, January, 1911. Member: St. David's Golf Club, American Physical Society, Physics Club of Philadelphia, American Association for the Advancement of Science.

My life, since leaving college, has been extremely uneventful. I am now in my fifteenth year of service as a teacher in the high school here. The school has over 600 students and 20 teachers. I am senior master and head of the history department. I teach American history and a little Latin and geology. The school cadets, 250 in number, are in my charge as military instructor. So I appear quite a big frog in my small puddle and keep very busy.

I am plugging along in the same old rut, in the general practice of the law in Chicago, as a member of the firm of Miller, Starr, Packard and Peckham, contriving to wrest a frugal living from it, and to have a pretty good time, but achieving nothing of interest for your records. The only important break there has been in the even tenor of my ways is that last year my health went bad, and I was told to try outdoor life and manual work, if I could stand it. So I spent seven months in California loafing and walking and horsebacking for a while, to tune up, and then working and living as a laborer on fruit farms and as a pick and shovel man on a big road construction job. I played the game straight as a regular laborer, and found to my great satisfaction that I could stand both the work and the way of living pretty comfortably. The working was excellent fun, and continued to be so after the novelty began to wear off. The men and the living arrangements were excitingly interesting at first, with each new job, but didn't wear well. My outing did the trick for my health, and was a very enjoyable episode; but I am glad to be back at the law. Member: University Club of Chicago, Saddle and Cycle Club of Chicago, Legal Club of Chicago.

There has been no change in my business connections since the class report of 1910. I am still treasurer of the Doten-Dunton Desk Co. and of Fiske and Company, Inc. I am also a director in the following companies: Ridgway Brick Company, Ridgway, Pa.; Darlington Clay Products Company, Darlington, Pa.; Corralitos Company and Candelaria Mining Company, with offices in New York and properties in Mexico. Prior to the recent troubles in Mexico I made several trips there to the cattle ranch of the Corralitos Company. Aside from business I am running a dairy farm in Topsfield, Mass., where I live and am trying to demonstrate that farming can be made to pay expenses. Have not yet succeeded, but am still living in hopes of doing so. Immediately after leaving college I entered the Cleveland, Ohio, office of the Barrett Manufacturing Co., manufacturing coal-tar products, roofing and building papers, road materials, etc., and later took charge of the Cleveland, Columbus and Detroit factories. In 1910 I went abroad on combined business and pleasure, visiting Italy, Switzerland, France, Belgium, Germany, Austria Hungary and England. In several of these countries I visited a number of factories in our line of business, picking up some very good ideas, although general conditions abroad are so very widely different from those here. In general, I found labor being paid from one-third to one-half our wages, and on the other hand coal relatively much more expensive. This results in efforts abroad to save fuel even at the expense of increased labor, which is the reverse of the situation here, speaking broadly. Shortly after my return I was called to the general office at New York and promoted to the position of general manufacturing manager, exercising general supervision over the manufacturing operations at our factories. At present we have about thirty factories, including five in Canada. We operate from St. John to Vancouver, from Boston to Birmingham, Ala., and to Seattle. We operate three paper mills. My work has been extremely interesting as our industry is large and growing rapidly in volume, and still more rapidly in complexity. This is especially true in the last few years, and the pace is so rapid now it is rather difficult to find time for rational living. I have written: "The Coal Tar Industry in the United States, General Developments and Recent Progress," (contributed to the last International Congress of Applied Chemistry.) Member: Chemistry Club, New York; Whitehall Club, New York; Upper Montclair Country Club, New Jersey

During the summer of 1900, worked my passage with group of college men on cattle boat to Liverpool. and spent the summer in England and on the continent, studying particularly municipal enterprises in the large cities. In 1901 made another similar trip to England only. For two years was resident (Harvard fellow) at the South End House, University Settlement, Boston, during which time attended courses in Harvard Graduate School, and was engaged in social research work the results of which (in part) were published as a monograph entitled "South End Factory Operatives: Employment and Residence." From April, 1903, to December, 1904, served as statistical clerk in the department of statistics, city of Boston, and in December, 1904, was transferred under civil service rules to the Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics, where I have since been employed successively as clerk, inspector of special agents (State census), associate editor of the Massachusetts Labor Bulletin, statistician, and chief of the labor division of the bureau. In addition to my official duties, I have been identified with social work in Boston and Dedham and have served as a member and secretary of the Dedham Warrant Committee, and for nearly two years have been treasurer of the Dedham Dry Goods Company, in which I am financially interested. I have written reports of the labor division, Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics, (1904-1915), and miscellaneous reviews and articles on Economic Questions. Member: Boston City Club, American Statistical Association, American Association for Labor Legislation, Dedham Board of Trade, Congregational Men's Club of Dedham, Dedham Boat Club, State House Associates (Secretary), Dedham Improvement League.

Since the last report I have been engaged continuously in the practice of patent law and matters relating to patents and trade-marks in the office of Philipp, Sawyer, Rice and Kennedy, and was admitted to membership in this firm in 1912. My professional duties have kept me so confined that I have little time for outside interests. My interest in natural history and particularly ornithology is still keen, however, and I generally manage to take sufficient vacation each year to enable me to get out in the woods and freshen up. Outside of a few short articles descriptive of these trips I have written nothing, and have still to hold a public office. After graduating I attended the Harvard Law School for two and a half years until I was asked by Mr. Choate, then American Ambassador in London, to be his private secretary. I remained in London until I was appointed, in the spring of 1905, second secretary of the legation in Peking. After two interesting years in China I was ordered home for duty in the Department of State, Washington, as assistant on Far Eastern Affairs to the Third Assistant Secretary of State. With the establishment of the new division of Far Eastern Affairs I became its first chief; and in January, 1909, was appointed Third Assistant Secretary of State by President Roosevelt. The following November I was sent to London as first secretary of the embassy, where I spent three interesting years, and was frequently in charge of the Embassy in the absence of Mr. Whitelaw Reid, then ambassador. Having been away from Boston for so many years I was anxious to return to build a country house, and to renew old friendships; and so in November, 1912, I applied for a year's leave of absence which was granted. I became regent of Harvard University and later on secretary of the Harvard Corporation, and the work in Cambridge brought me again intimately in touch with University matters. In March, 1914, President Wilson appointed me Third Assistant Secretary of State, and I am again a resident of Washington and am immersed in affairs growing out of this terrible war. Member: Somerset Club, Myopia Hunt Club, Tennis and Racquet Club, Harvard Club, all of Boston; Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C., Harvard Club of New York.

Parents	Arthur Henry Phippen, Mary Elizabeth Chamberlain.
School	Salem High School, Salem, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; M.D., 1904.
Married	Ethel Arnold Patch, Buffalo, N. Y., April 16, 1906.
Business	Physician.
Address	31 Chestnut St., Salem, Mass.

I was graduated from the Medical School in 1904 and served 18 months as a surgical house officer at the Massachusetts General Hospital. I was then married and went abroad for about a year, spending considerable time in the medical clinics at Vienna. I began the general practice of medicine at Salem in 1907 and have continued there ever since. Although doing a general practice, my work is largely surgical. I am a visiting surgeon to the Salem

Hospital, a member of the consulting board of the Danvers State Hospital, visiting physician to the Salem Tuberculosis Hospital, and visiting physician to the North Shore Babies Hospital. For the last six or seven years I have been much interested in the crusade against tuberculosis and have given much of my time to that work, holding the position of medical director in our local Anti-Tuberculosis Society, and I also am a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Anti-Tuberculosis League. Member: American College of Surgeons, American Medical Society, Massachusetts Medical Society, Aesculapian Club, Harvard Medical Alumni Association, Harvard Alumni Association, Harvard Club of Boston, Salem Club.

Children	Hermon Spencer Jr., Sept. 29, 1902.
Died	July 6, 1914, in Lowell, Mass.

Hermon Spencer Pinkham was born at Arlington Heights, Mass., December 24, 1875. He prepared for college at the public schools and Cutler's private school in Newton. His course at Harvard he finished in three years and spent the next year at Newton Theological Seminary. He received his Harvard degree, cum laude, in 1900. On June 25, 1901, he was married to Miss Clara Dunham, of Watertown. During his course at the Theological Seminary he served as student pastor at Mt. Auburn Baptist Church at Watertown. In 1902, after his graduation from the seminary, he became pastor of the Baptist Church at South Paris, Me. In 1904 he went to Winter Hill Baptist Church at Somerville, Mass. Between that time and 1910 he increased the membership of his church from less than 200 to nearly 700. His next pastorate was the Emanuel Baptist Church at Washington, D. C., where he remained from September, 1910, until October, 1913, when he went to Lowell, Mass., as pastor of the First Baptist Church. Besides his church work, to which he gave himself with the greatest energy, he also took part in various public matters relating to the general welfare of his people. After an illness of several months, he died at Lowell on July 6, 1914. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Washington.

Business	Director of University Extension, University of Minnesota.
Address	(home) 810 6th St., S. E., Minneapolis, Minn. (business) Care of University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn.

My life since leaving college has been largely devoted to educational work. I returned to Harvard and took my master's degree in 1901. The year following I spent as principal of the Hutchinson, Kansas, high school. The succeeding seven years were spent as superintendent of the city schools in the same place. In 1909 I was summoned to establish extension work at the University of Kansas in Lawrence. The work was new, pioneer work in that line having been done only four or five years previously at the University of Wisconsin. The next four years were spent in building up this work at the University of Kansas. In 1913 the call came to establish a similar work at the University of Minnesota. I removed to Minneapolis in July, 1913, "and since then I have used no other." By the way I found time to act as joint editor of a Kansas educational magazine, "The Interstate Schoolman," devoting my spare time for four years to this work. My marriage to Louise Snow Wood took place in 1901, soon after I left Harvard. I have done no writing except desultory contributions to specialized magazines. Member: Phi Beta Kappa Society, Minneapolis University Club.

Business	Journalist.
Address	(home) 17 East 73d St., New York, N. Y. (business) 65 Park Row, New York, N. Y.

1910: Most important business kept me away from the decennial; but I saw a great many of the members at the boat races at New London. In the winter I went abroad for six weeks on business with my father. This was transacted under particularly pleasant conditions on board his yacht, which took us to Sicily, Greece and back to Italy. 1911: Second son, Seward Webb Pulitzer, born October 5, 1911. On October 29, 1911, my father died. In the following month I was elected to the presidency of the Press Publishing Company, which publishes The New York World; was also appointed one of his executors and trustees. Since then I have been hard at work on the newspaper. 1913: Took a month off in March for a trip to the Panama Canal, and was fortunate enough to take along letters to Colonel Gorgas and Colonel Goethals which assured me a most interesting inspection of the work which was then under way. 1914: In the summer took a trip abroad, motoring in England, France, Italy, Austria and Germany. In the latter country was caught by the war and spent an exceedingly interesting three weeks, first in Stuttgart and then in Berlin, where I helped out in the Embassy, issuing passports. Since then there is nothing worth recounting. I have written: New York Society on Parade (Harper and Brother, New York), Newspaper Morals,—A Second View (The Atlantic Monthly, Boston, Mass.) Member: Harvard Club of New York, City Club of New York, The Players, New York; Automobile Club of America, New York; Authors' Club, New York.

Business	Vice-President and trust officer, Peters Trust Company.
Address	(home) 1510 South 32d Ave., Omaha, Neb. (business) 1622 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.

After my law school course, I took a plunge into the business world. The water seemed calm to me as I splashed around on top of it while I lived at Norfolk, Nebraska. The current made no impression on me nor I on it until finally I wiggled a little out of the drifting course by joining the banking force of the Norfolk National Bank, as its assistant cashier. Here again I found no occasion to dam the current, nor did I permit it to drown me, but kept going along. By 1907, enough business strength had come to me so that I paddled in a distinct line, crossing several minor currents until I found Omaha and the Peters Trust Company. There are four in our family and we enjoy life most of the time. Member: Harvard Club of Nebraska, University Club of Omaha, Commercial Club, Happy Hollow.

FRANCIS RAWLE JR.

Born	Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 19, 1876.
Parents	Francis Rawle, Margaratta Corry Aertsen.
School	De Lancey School, Philadelphia, Pa.
Years in College	1896-1898.
Business	Insurance broker.
Address	(home) 20 South 21st St., Philadelphia, Pa. (business) 416-20 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

After leaving college I enlisted in the First Troop Philadelphia City Cavalry for the Spanish war. I got as far as Porto Rico. After the war was over I went into the Gerard Trust Company, where I stayed three years. Leaving there I went with Prevost and Herring, insurance agents, where I stayed about three years, and then decided to go in for myself. In 1906 I was with the Dragon Automobile Company, but left there in 1908 and took up the insurance business again. I was appointed a notary public for the state of Pennsylvania, which works in with my insurance business. Member: Harvard Club of Philadelphia, Harvard Club of New York, Markham Club, Sons of the Revolution.

Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 155 Massachusetts Ave., Boston, Mass. (business) 60 State St., Boston, Mass.

After graduation from college I entered the Harvard Law School and continued there until April, 1903, when I left to go abroad as a tutor. For a year and a half I was tutoring, spending several months abroad, travelling in Europe, yachting on the Mediterranean, etc., and most of the following winter in Southern California; meanwhile returning to the Law School in June, 1904, long enough to take my examinations and get my degree "as of 1903." I was admitted to the bar in Massachusetts in the summer of 1904. The following September I went to Plymouth, Massachusetts, and was engaged there almost constantly for over a year examining titles to real estate. Following that I went to California again as a tutor for several months. From May, 1906, until November, 1907, I occupied myself in various ways,—some special legal work, some tutoring and a few months' school teaching. In November, 1907, I opened an office at 60 State Street, Boston, for the general practice of the law, a pursuit which I still follow, and expect to follow, at the same address. The time has been broken by occasional business trips,—once to Mexico, once to Canada, and a number of times to the South,—Georgia, Alabama and North Carolina. A good part of the time I have taught in a private evening school of which I acted as principal for three years. Member: Harvard Club of Boston.

Business	Minister.
Address	(home) 383 Marlboro' St., Boston, Mass. (business) Mount Vernon Church, Boston, Mass.

After my graduation I returned for a little further work and to do some church extension work in connection with the First Congregational Church in Cambridge. The following year I entered the Union Theological Seminary in New York. After graduating there in 1904 and spending a summer in England and Scotland, I became associate minister of the Bedford Park Presbyterian Church in New York City. The next fall I became minister of the United Congregational Church in Newport, R. I. After four years of work there I came to Boston to the Mount Vernon Church, and here I still am. One of the happy and growing features of the work here is the attendance of students. They come from many of the institutions of Greater Boston, and not a few are from the various departments of Harvard. Member: Ministers' Club, Monday Club, Fortnightly Club, Appalachian Mountain Club.

On leaving college I became connected with the teaming concern of Fifield, Richardson and Co., of Boston, taking over my father's interest a year or two later and have remained there ever since. I have not been able to travel very much as this work has been very confining and covers a vast amount of detail, both in outside work such as handling of men, also inside office work. The amount of work and time necessary to conduct a business of this kind properly, warrants better financial returns than it is possible to obtain. When merchants and business men in general recognize the fact that safe and proper transportation is very vital to their interests, then we feel that our trade so-called will have its proper standing in the business community. When transportation stops, business stops. About three years ago I removed from Somerville to Reading, Mass., and have enjoyed the change immensely. Member: John Abbot Lodge of Somerville, Good Fellowship Club of Reading, Neighborhood Betterment Association of Reading, Tourjee Club (musical) of Reading.

After a three-years' course at the Harvard Law School, I came to New York and took a position in the law department of the Lawyers Title Insurance and Trust Company, where I have remained ever since. I was admitted to the New York bar in 1904, but have never engaged in active practice, my work being limited to the investigation and consideration of points of law arising in connection with the examination of titles to real property, and advising attorneys as to the conduct of litigation affecting such property. I find the work thoroughly interesting and enjoyable, and the company finds it profitable. A few good Harvard friends within easy reach, and a city full of resources go far toward making the daily fare palatable; and for dessert there are the summer vacations, two of which I have spent in Europe, and most of the others in various canoeing and camping trips. All in all, I find a bachelor's lot not entirely unhappy.

After leaving college I spent a year in the Southwest. In 1901 I came to the Philippine Islands, and for over ten years was a teacher in the public schools. In 1912 I entered the mathematics department of the University of the Philippines. I have been connected with several ventures, most of which have left me poorer, financially, but much wiser in experience. At one time, I was half owner of a large sugar plantation; but the hostility of the natives manifested by their burning over the cane fields and their destruction of the sugar mill weaned me from any further desire to become an oriental sugar king. My work at the present time consists in teaching embryo engineers their higher mathematics. I have made several trips to China and Japan, where I usually go during the hot summer months. My last trip to the homeland was in 1910, when I attended our decennial celebration. I had planned to be present again this year, but a reduction in the number of instructors in my department makes it impossible for me to get away. Member: Harvard Club of the Philippines.

Address	(home) 30 Chedell Place, Auburn, N. Y. (business) 70 Washington St., Auburn, N. Y.

Since leaving college I have been in the shoe business almost continuously. The first two or three years were largely spent in selling on the road. The next eight or nine years were spent in various shoe factories, and in 1912 I organized the Robinson-Bynon Shoe Co., a concern making women's shoes. My outside interests have been limited because I have had very little opportunity to cultivate any. Appreciating the fact, however, that I am getting old I have tried to learn the game of golf, at which I play intermittently of a summer's afternoon with one Metcalf of our class.

Entering Harvard College with the class of 1901, I was graduated in three years with 1900, a short-cut policy which I shall not recommend to my Harvard sons, of whom two have already arrived. However, it makes me interested in the 1901 men as well as in the 1900 men, which is some compensation. I then entered the Harvard Divinity School, and persevered through graduation in 1903, despite two or three spells of academic weariness when books weighed heavy on me and I felt the call of the real. Strange to say, though preparing for the ministry, I had never joined any church till by letter I joined the "church universal" in my last year of the Divinity School by signing the following "declaration" which good old Dr. Edward Everett Hale sent to me, "I desire to be considered a member of the church of Jesus Christ." I was ordained at Lowell, Mass., at the Free Church Chapel, Rev. George C. Wright, into the same "church universal," Congregational, Unitarian, and Universalist ministers being on the ordination program, as I recall it. I selected San Francisco as the most troublesome centre of human experiment in the West in my time, and therefore the appropriate seat of activity for a man born in Kansas and educated in Massachusetts. I was head of boys' work at the People's Place Social Settlement in "North Beach" in 1903-04, under Rev. Henry A. Fisk, a Baptist, and superintendent of the Pilgrim Sunday School of the First Unitarian Church, under Rev. Bradford Leavitt. In 1904-06 I was minister of the First Unitarian Church, Alameda, Cal.; and in 1906-07, after the great San Francisco earthquake and fire, I worked in San Francisco representing the American Unitarian Association in its relief work. Thereafter I became chief probation officer over both juvenile and adult probation work in Oakland, Cal., across the Bay from San Francisco, and am now completing my fourth term and eighth year in that position of hard work, hard knocks and hard nuts to crack. Having "done the Gospel" for all these years in social service, I have a higher appreciation of getting the spirit of the Gospel inside men as the best way of all to turn what is wrong-side-up, upside-down in this little old world, and I shall probably soon turn preacher again. I have recently written an article, "Beyond the Juvenile Court," dealing with the public school of tomorrow.

About a year ago I decided upon a change of tactics, partly from a natural interest in public affairs and desire to embark upon a new experience, partly because the control that has come over the lead and copper industries prevents me from realizing on my holdings of mineral land. Law and journalism were the weapons I chose for a contest with the entrenched powers that defeat equality of opportunity and restrict the normal growth of the district. My experience for the first year reminds me of an Irishman of my acquaintance. He came home one evening in great good humor. ''I've had four fights this afternoon,'' he said, ''I can't say that I distinguished myself, but I didn't get licked.'' During the year I have been ''suppressed'' as editorial writer on two local papers, have contributed extensively to outside publications and have been in jail for contempt of court. Incidentally I may say that I expect to boost that commissioner out of his job in the near future. Politically, my line is hearty support of the Wilson administration. At one time and another I have written for most of the technical journals devoted to mining. Contributions in Engineering and Mining World, Chicago, September 26, 1914 and January 30, 1915. Returning now to the newspaper proposition. A newspaper is the key to the situation here and with it as an entering wedge I can do things. The East has money for a multitude of purposes, serious and frivolous. May there not be some individual who owns no salmon cannery stock and does not otherwise profit by our degradation, who through sympathy for the democratic idea or merely as a sporting proposition will finance this paper? To such a one I can promise action in abundant measure for his money and to the Class of 1900 plenty of ozone. $2,500 will finance the proposition on a modest scale or $5,000 will permit a larger activity. Of course I realize that in making such an appeal to Harvard I am invading the very heart of the enemy's country, but the exigencies of the case require that I overlook no chance however remote of hastening action.

Greetings all. You all know how I tried to content myself in Boston and New York for four or five years and finally bit the grit for Wyoming. Well I "punched cows" and "broke bronc's" for a few years, got a chance to sell out and make good; so I did and tried city life again. I lasted a year or so and had to beat it into the country again. I went up in Oregon, up in the big trees, grew apples and raised hogs. Along came another fellow who wanted the place so bad I had to sell it to him. I had more sense than to plan to live in the city again though, so went on a tour of inspection all over the country and lit in St. Petersburg, Florida, and I hope I am fortunate enough to live many years and then die right here. I'm not here for my health; but if any of you fellows are hunting a place for health, even if you come down here on crutches or on a stretcher, in a week you'll throw 'em away. I'm raising poultry; going to have one of the biggest poultry farms in the country. Keep your eye on St. Petersburg. I nearly missed it. Member: The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Business	Surgeon.
Address	(home) 5557 Berlin Ave., St. Louis, Mo. (business) Washington University Medical School, St. Louis, Mo.

After leaving college I went to Johns Hopkins, where I received my M.D. degree in 1904. Then I became interne at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, where I finished in January, 1907. I then went abroad to study and devoted myself particularly to neurology, pathology and neurological anatomy. This was in preparation for my future work to which I planned to devote myself, namely; surgery of the nervous system. While abroad I had the rare good fortune to be associated for a year and a quarter with Sir Victor Horsley, the first and greatest neurological surgeon. Upon my return to New York in December, 1908, I started in surgical practice and was appointed neurological surgeon to the Montefiore Home and Beth Israel Hospital and assistant surgeon to Bellevue Hospital. As a result of the Carnegie investigation of the American medical schools, Washington University Medical School in St. Louis decided to reorganize and by a new group of men, raising of standards and new hospitals and equipment got into the A1 class. Fred T. Murphy of Boston was made professor of surgery and he asked me to join him as his first assistant. We have been here since September, 1911. To build up a medical school in a community that has never known what a good medical school was and is not in sympathy with one's ideas, is a terrific task. We are, however, succeeding. Besides teaching surgery I have charge of all the neurological surgery at the hospital. In June, 1914, I was made associate professor of surgery. In December, 1914, we moved into our new hospital, the Barnes Hospital, and new medical school buildings. I have written: A Case of Amniotic Family Idiocy, (J. H. H. Bull, Baltimore, 1904, XV., 94), Eine vergleichende anatomische Studie des Thalamus opticus der Saugethiere. Arb. a. d. neurol. Inst., a. d. Wien. Univ., (Leipzig u. Wein, 1908, XVII., 280-306), On the Structure and Functional Relations of the Optic Thalamus, (Brain, London, 1909, XXXII., 95-186), Metabolism after Hypophysectomy, with C. G. L. Wolff, (Proc. Soc. Exp. Biol. and Med., N. Y., 1910-11, VIII., 36), The Present Status of Cranial Surgery, (Am. Med., Burlington, Vt., and New York, 1911, n. s., VI., 318-322), On the Relation of the Optic Thalamus to Respiration, Circulation, Temperature, and the Spleen, (J. Exp. Med., New York and Lancaster, Pa., 1911, XIV., 408-432. Proc. Soc. Exp. With George R. Elliott, (Ann. of Surg., December, 1912), A Critical Analysys of a Series of Seventy Neurosurgical Cases. With Dr. Sidney I. Schwab, (Interstate Medical Journal, Vol. XXI., No. 8, 1914). After leaving college I spent a year travelling around the world with three classmates: W. A. M. Burden, F. L. Higginson Jr., and P. A. Jay. On my arrivtl in London early in 1901, Hon. Joseph H. Choate, then Ambassador to England, asked me to serve as his private secretary for a time, which I did with great pleasure. On my return home I was taken ill, first having trouble with my spine, and then appendicitis, so that I was unable to go to work until January, 1903, when I started out in the office of Messrs. Edgerly and Crocker of Boston, who did a business in stocks, bonds and commercial paper. I remained in that office until February, 1907, when I entered the firm of Hunt, Mann and Saltonstall with offices at 60 State Street, Boston, doing a business in stocks and bonds. The name of the firm was subsequently changed to Hunt, Saltonstall and Co., and at the present writing we are doing business at the old stand. Since I was married in December, 1910, we have lived in Beverly most of the time, although we have come to Boston for one or two winters. In 1909 I was elected a member of the Beverly Common Council and during 1911 and 1912 represented Beverly and Danvers in the lower branch of the Massachusetts legislature. Although I have not run for office since the autumn of 1911, I am still interested. Since 1911 I have been president of the Beverly Hospital. Outside of business, politics, and philanthropy, I find that I am still much interested in shooting, fishing and yachting, despite my increasing years. For the first ten years out of college I had no settled home. Usually I spent part of the year in Boston and part in travel, though two of my trips to Europe were for periods of over a year. After a few attempts I acquired the habit of spending my winters in California; so in 1910 I bought a little patch of land decorated with rocks, cactus and sage brush, though partially cleared. I had this land prepared and in the spring of 1911 set out to orange trees, acquiring a few callouses myself in the process. I thought I was to have an exceptionally fine lot of trees until the frost of two years ago did its damage. I have a good young grove now, but not a super grove. My ranch home was originally intended for a garage but I have moved in and have altered it personally till it serves me very well. My automobile has had to take up its quarters in the woodshed. I have not given up entirely my wanderings. On my way back to Boston one year I wandered from the direct route as far as Panama. A year ago last fall I started on a little water trip with occasional shore trips which took me to England, Portugal, Tangiers, Gibraltar, Ceylon, Java, China, Japan, and the Philippines. I had the good fortune to run across Buckingham Chandler and his bride in Hong-Kong and we joined forces for quite a little sight seeing in Japan. The year of 1910 saw Mr. Sanborn's fame wax and wane in equal measure amongst the T. B. M.'s, and other idle readers of popular scientific magazines to which he contributed his inimitable articles on the freaks and achievements of the government bureaus at Washington. This constituted a small part of his life, (in dollars and cents, it may be observed, as well as in his consideration) for it is no less true of Mr. Sanborn than of other great geniuses, that in his hours of play he expressed his real self and expended his real riches. A little school for deaf children just outside of the city had quite as much of his time and affection as the screw-eyed specialists of the government (deferentially excepting our own Mr. Gale from the sarcastic appellation). It is quite wonderful, Mr. Sanborn's talent for undoing the effects of the devoted solicitude of parents and teachers of children and for restoring the pristine habits and appearances of the little primitives. Other people's children are no problem to one of his simplicity and perhaps it is this lack of responsibility and self-consciousness that endows him so generously with their love (meaning that of the children, not of the parents and teachers). And it was one of this group of children who pointed him to win his first flare of fame, fertilizing his Muse to give birth to the lines that now begin on page 9 of the Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1913. To the charm of these children he also owes the pleasures of composing a romance of childhood in the summers of 1909, 1910, 1911, and 1912, a work of sublimating love which but awaits the psychological opportunity of Mr. Sanborn's demise to lend advertising value to his peculiarities, and thus produce the glamour that attracts publishers. It was not until 1912 that any great noteworthy change came in his life; from the ungrateful task of warming up and seasoning other men's dishes of the day before Mr. Sanborn passed one step higher toward his eventual distinction and entered upon real creation in the field of photo-drama. (Not to be referred to as the "movies" by any friend who hopes to be recognized by Mr. Sanborn in the height of his glory). See "The Shanghaied Baby," released by the Lubin Company, January 21, in three reels, for the best example of his work. In the winter of 1913-1914 he changed his residence to New York to be nearer to the studios where he might conveniently partake of the stimulus and suggestion of the queens of the moving picture world. Last December with the honorable motive of balancing the solitary joys of artistic creation he obeyed the call of humanitarianism and took up residence in the Henry Street Settlement whose history you may now read in the Atlantic Monthly and to which Mr. Sanborn's residence may in some not too far distant future add a distinguished chapter. See certain issues of the Poetry Journal, 68 Pemberton Square, Boston, also The Trend magazine of New York, for specimens of his verse. Mr. Rinehart will obligingly supply you with copies of the latter.

Business	Teacher.
Address	21 Berkeley St., Lawrence, Mass.

I am still the principal of the German private school in Lawrence, but I think I shall be compelled to give up this position on account of the European war. My only misfortune is that I was born in Russia, and my relatives are fighting at present against the Germans. This is the only reason why I might be fired. If it should happen, I will move out into the country and live on my West Andover farm I bought three years ago. My daughters are all married, and on my farm is a lovely grove with a camp where I shall enjoy life playing with my grandchildren. I am proud to say that my three sons-in-law are all nice American boys, and two of them Harvard graduates. Member: Lyra Glee Club and Turn-Verein in Lawrence.

Address	(home) 27 Forest St., Cambridge, Mass. (business) 748 Old South Building, Boston, Mass.

Since writing the story of the last report my life has been on the whole uneventful. My energies have been principally devoted to the practice of the law. My office has been at 748 Old South Building, Boston, where I am associated with William E. Ludden and Thomas M. Spelman. I have served two terms as president of the Men's Club of Christ Church, Cambridge, and have just been elected for a second term on the vestry. Besides, I have held office in several more or less unimportant corporations. In general my career is mainly before me, at least that part of it which will make interesting reading.

Philip Sands

Born	New York, N. Y., April 7, 1877.
Parents	Philip Justice Sands, Elizabeth Beck.
School	St. Marks School, Southboro, Mass., and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1898.
Married	Louise Cooley, New York, N. Y., 1907.
Died	Nov. 14, 1912, in New York, N. Y.

Philip Sands was born in New York City, April 7, 1877. His preparation for college was obtained at Cutler's School, St. Mark's and Andover. During his years at school he was deeply interested in athletics of all kinds, especially football, and later coached the Cutler eleven. In his sophomore year at Harvard, he left college to go into business in New York City. He purchased a controlling interest in the Wright's Indian Vegetable Pill Company, with which he continued to be connected as its president until his death. He was also president of the Matchless Match Company, organized for advertising purposes. Among inventions he patented were a match-case and a non-refillable bottle. All his life he had a great love for sports, especially horse-racing, and at different times he owned a number of horses and entered them in races. Much of his time in the summer was spent at Bayshore, Long Island, sailing and fishing. He was a member of the Harvard Club of New York, and formerly of the Racquet Club. In 1907 he was married to Mrs. Louise (Cooley) Onativia. He died of heart failure on November 14, 1912, in New York City.

Business	Manufacturer.
Address	(home) 1640 W. Cumberland Ave., Knoxville, Tenn. (business) 612 Dale Ave., Knoxville, Tenn.

After commencement I knocked around Europe for six months with Eddie Sanborn and Dick Foster, Harvard '00. As soon as I got home I started in to make my first dollar. I incorporated the Sanford-Day Iron Works in 1901, and have been hard at it ever since. I have been working hard for thirteen years and am just commencing to take life somewhat easier. Last year I ran down to Panama and for the last two summers I have motored up through New England via Poland Spring, Mt. Washington, and New York. Once every five years I see a classmate. Occasionally in New York I see a familiar face usually at a distance. While my life has no great ambition in it to be attained, yet I imagine I am having as happy an existence as any of my classmates. Really to my notion the East Tennessee mountains are the most delightful part of the United States to live in. The Adirondacks do not compare with our country here. Nothing could be more beautiful than our rolling valleys with the mountains in the distance. Underneath our fine farms there are zinc, copper, iron ore, lead, coal and Tennessee marble. In a business way I am secretary and treasurer of the Sanford-Day Iron Works; president of the Knox Stone Works, the Dean Coal Co., and the Contract Shovelling Co.; vice-president of the Journal and Tribune Co., and the Knoxville Office Co. Member: Cumberland Club, Knoxville, Tenn.; Cherokee Country Club.

I was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1903, and in the fall of that year went to New York City. I was first with the Legal Aid Society but shortly after entered the legal department of the Travelers' Insurance Co., in New York City. I spent the summer of 1905 in travel and selected Spokane, Washington, with the purpose of locating permanently and practising law. For a short time I held the office of deputy prosecuting attorney. Aside from my own practice, I have been for the past two years, assistant corporation counsel of the city of Spokane. My outside business interests have been, principally, my association with the irrigation project of the Methow Canal Co., as secretary and treasurer, my farm in the Methow valley, and more recently, our farm in Southern Idaho. This farm we have developed from sage-brush into 150 acres of alfalfa and clover.

For a year after graduating I was assistant to Prof. Wendell in English 22. Since then I have been teaching English at M. I. T., with rank as assistant professor since 1907. During the summers of 1901 and 1902 I taught at Chautauqua, N. Y. The summer of 1904 I spent in Europe, and that of 1912 in Europe with my wife. In these opportunities of travel and in other ways I have, as an avocation, studied the fine arts. For many years I have been Sunday docent, giving brief informal talks at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. In my Technology work I have recently dealt more especially with the problem of English for foreign students, of whom we have many. As part of this work I have taken Harvard courses—a few per year—in French and Spanish,—enough for an A.M. in 1914. Doubtless fifteen (post graduate) years of life should have matured in each of us a philosophy of life. I have merely adopted one—that of Charles Lamb, expressed in his motto: "Contented with little, but wishing for more." I have published: Daumier's Lithographs, (Print Collector's Quaterly, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, February, 1914). Member: Walker Club, M. I. T., Cosmopolitan Club, M. I. T., Harvard Union, N. E. Association of Teachers of English, N. E. Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools, Association for Promotion of Engineering Education.

It was a year after graduation, namely, in July, 1901, that I first entered upon work of a fairly permanent nature. From that time until December, 1907, I was secretary to R. R. Bowker, of New York, editor and publisher of "The Publishers' Weekly," "The Library Journal," and kindred publications. In addition to my duties as secretary I had some share at times in the editorial work on the periodicals mentioned. I also carried through to completion Mr. Bowker's check-list entitled "State Publications." This was a pioneer work in a neglected field, its aim being to furnish a guide to the mass of valuable but little known or appreciated official reports, bulletins, etc., issued by the several states of the Union. Parts I. and II. of this list, covering New England and North Central States, were the work of previous compilers; Part III., covering the West, I completed in 1905, and Part IV., covering the South, in 1908, the latter year being devoted entirely to this work. During the years 1901-1907 I spent the summer months in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, where in October, 1907, I joined the other graduates in organizing the Harvard Club of Berkshire, which I am glad to say is still in active existence. In January, 1909, I went with Mr. Bowker on a ten-weeks' trip to South America. We visited the principal seaports of both coasts as far south as Buenos Aires and Valparaiso, crossing the continent by the railways connecting those cities. The tunnel through the Andes not having been completed at that time, we experienced the memorable thrills of a coach ride over the Uspallata Pass, and saw upon its summit that wonderfully impressive monument, the great Christ of the Andes. A visit to the unfinished Panama Canal and a skip across Jamaica rounded out the trip. Following my return I had a sabbatical year, so to speak, on the old homestead at Scituate, Massachusetts, broken only by a temporary connection with the editorial staff of "The Publishers' Weekly" in New York, in the winter of 1909-10. Then, as my efforts to find permanent work near Boston (where my family interests lay) met with no success, I returned to more hospitable New York in September, 1910, to join the staff of the New York Public Library, with which I am still associated. I was first attached to the Public Documents Division, then located in the old Astor building. Were any of you ever in this ancient barracks? I doubt if the British Museum itself could equal it for dreary dinginess. After seven months' confinement there I escaped, with the rest of the staff, to the new central building on Fifth Avenue, familiar to all of you who are familiar with New York. The process of moving from the old building to the new was intensely interesting,—an historic experience in which I am glad to have had a part. After two years as first assistant in the Public Documents Division, I held a similar position in the Economics and Sociology Division for two years more. Here I soon learned how little economics I had absorbed from my two courses at Cambridge; nevertheless, I survived the test and, I hope, profited by it. From October 19 to December 31, 1914, I was acting chief of the division, owing to the transfer of the chief to be head of the Municipal Reference Library, a branch of the public library system, maintained in the municipal building for the benefit of city officials and employees. On January 1, 1915, I joined him there as his assistant, and at the time of writing this narrative am engaged with him in striving to make this plant the livest municipal reference library in the country, if that be possible. Needless to say, I shall be glad to welcome 1900 men here at all times. I have compiled: State Publications: a provisional list of the official publications of the several states of the United States from their organization. Parts 3-4. (New York: Office of "The Publishers' Weekly," 1905-1908.)

Address	(home) 531 Whitney Ave., New Haven, Conn. (business) New Haven, Conn.

I left college in February, 1900, to accept a position as European representative for the Attleboro Manufacturing Co. I visited practically every country of Europe and managed their display at the Paris Exposition of 1900. I returned to America in February, 1901, and the following month entered the employ of the Shartenberg and Robinson Co., a department store. In February, 1906, I was elected a director as well as secretary of the company. The following June our company purchased a department store in New Haven, Conn., and I was sent there to manage this branch of our business. In April, 1913, Mr. Robinson retired from our firm and purchasing a portion of his holdings I was elected vice-president, the position I occupy today. On March 10, last, we opened our new building (the largest in the city devoted to mercantile purposes) and it looks as if New Haven was to be my permanent home. I always let business "go hang" on "football day," and it will be a real pleasure for me to meet my 1900 friends while they are in town that day. The door of my office is always taken down and placed in the storage room until the following Monday for the benefit of those who after a victory have to steer their course "on the bias."

Children	Tyrrell Bradbury, Jr., Nov. 4, 1907.
Business	Civil engineer.
Address	500 West 143d St., New York, N. Y.

My first position after graduation was that of draftsman with the Structural Iron and Steel Co. of Baltimore, Md. I resigned from this position in December, 1900, to accept an appointment as assistant engineer on the corps of the Rapid Transit Commission for the City of New York. The next five and a half years were spent in New York, working on the original subway, then building, and my work and duties included all of the various phases of the work, original surveys, designing and construction. Upon the completion of the construction of the section to which I had been assigned I resigned to accept the position of engineer for the Portland, Me., Bridge District, and spent the next two years in charge of the removal of the old and the construction of the new Vaughan's Bridge. This brought me up to the slack times incidental to the panic of 1907 and I took several months' enforced vacation. I then spent some months assisting in the task of investigating the safety of the Queensborough Bridge at New York City and in making surveys, studies and estimates for the extension of the water supply system for the City of Baltimore, Md. In 1909, I accepted a position with the Public Service Commission for the First District of New York and spent about three years in designing and acting as office engineer during the construction of the Fourth Avenue subway in Brooklyn. I resigned in 1912 to accept a position as engineer in charge of the construction of the foundations for the Travelers Insurance Building at Hartford, Conn., and upon the completion of this work I went to the soft coal and coke region of Pennsylvania where I built a dam and reservoir for the W. J. Rainey Coke Co. The completion of this work landed me in the current hard times and during the past winter I attempted, in association with another Harvard man, to work up a business of our own; but conditions were not favorable and after wasting several months and most of my funds, I accepted a position with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company of New York where I now am, designing in connection with the third tracking and other improvements to the existing elevated lines. I have written a few articles for the technical periodicals. Member: American Society of Civil Engineers.

Years in College	1896-1900.
Business	Assistant to advertising manager.
Address	(home) 48 Wachusett Road, Chestnut Hill, Mass. (business) 416 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

After leaving college in February, 1900, I went into my father's office—lumber business—for about six months. Then I went to Millinockett, Me., to The Great Northern Paper Co. where I learned to build "digestors." Later, I shed the light of my intellect variously upon insurance, book publishing, real estate, and promoting, and even delved into the rubber business. From this, the American Soda Fountain Co. next hailed me, and from there I came, eight years ago, to Filene's. Here, practically from the start, advertising has been my work—both in the newspapers and the store windows, and the last two years the windows have occupied my entire time. It is most interesting work, and constantly opens up new phases of publicity; but I can't conscientiously say that I've ever liked it. Member: Union Boat Club, Harvard Club, Commonwealth Country Club, Boston City Club.

After my one year in college, I entered Harvard Medical School and received my M.D. in 1901. Two years as surgical house officer at the Massachusetts General Hospital followed, and in 1904 I entered the Medical Corps of the Navy. Since then my duties have been those of a surgeon afloat and ashore, interrupted now and then by short periods of special duty. My cruises have taken me around the world once, to Europe three times and the West Indies—too often. Two years were spent in the Philippines and one in Syria during the Turko-Italian altercation. At present I am ashore at the Cheslea Naval Hospital enjoying my "shore cruise." During this period of land-living, I have found opportunity to marry and beget one female child. My hobby is photography. I have written various articles and monographs in "U. S. Naval Medical Bulletin." Member: Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C.

I left college in middle of sophomore year and entered University of California some months later in the junior class. I made no effort to secure a degree as the form of education I sought differed from the prescribed course and the degree in itself seemed of no value, as it required rather more manual than mental development. Immediately after leaving college I went to work as a ''hand'' around various power plants and after several years was graduated to fill positions in which my head was more useful than my hands. For the past ten or twelve years I have been inventing and developing inventions of others along the general lines of the modern high speed machinery, being actively engaged in work on steam turbines, centrifugal compressors and pumps and turbine driven electric generators and have created several new types among these machines. During the last few years I have given a good deal of my time as advisor to manufacturers of this type of machinery in my capacity of engineer for the Roteau, Bathe, Smoot Co., in which I am heavily interested; am also engineer for the Roteau Steam Regenerator Co. I am indebted to M. Agust Roteau of Paris and Mr. L. Bathe of New York for most of my opportunity to develop engineering work. Member: Inventors' Guild, The Engineers' Club, New York.

I entered the office of the Boston Transcript (where I had already worked during several summers) the week after graduation. There I worked as reporter until the fall of 1903, when I entered Harvard Divinity School, receiving the degree of S.T.B. in June, 1906. In the fall of the same year I was ordained the first minister of the Unitarian Church of Palo Alto, California. Palo Alto is the seat of Leland Stanford Junior University, and the church was largely composed of members of the faculty and students. In October, 1909, I was called to the Second Congregational Society (Unitarian) Concord, N. H., and was settled as minister in December of the same year. In the fall of 1912 I was installed as associate minister of King's Chapel, Boston. I am a trustee of Proctor Academy, Andover, N. H., and a director of the Children's Mission to Children, Boston. Member: St. Botolph Club, Boston.

STACY BAXTER SOUTHWORTH

Born	Quincy, Mass., Sept. 22, 1878.

Children	Dorothy. Oct. 6, 1907.
Business	Teacher.
Address	(home) 18 Avalon Road, West Roxbury, Mass. (business) Boston Latin School, Warren Ave., Boston.

For the last seven years I have been a junior master in the Boston Latin School. Immediately after my marriage in 1906 I removed to Highland, West Roxbury, and there establsihed my home. I have endeavored faithfully during my residence in Highland to enter into the life of the community and to do my part in promoting the civic good. In 1909 and 1910 I was chosen vice-president of the Unitarian Club of West Roxbury, and in 1911 and 1912 I served as its president. In 1913 I was vice-president of the Brotherhood Club of West Roxbury. With this service I felt that I had done my duty and I declined the presidency the ensuing year. From an educational point of view my most important work the last two years, aside from service in the Boston Latin School, has been in developing the efficiency of the summer camp. Two years ago I was summoned by Dr. C. Hanford Henderson to become head master of Camp Marienfeld. The work was too great for me to undertake alone, so I associated with me Raphael J. Shortlidge of the Choate School, Connecticut. Shortlidge is a Haverford and Harvard man, and one of the ablest camp men in the country. Marienfeld is probably the oldest camp of serious purpose in New England and has long been regarded as one of the finest. The life and the purpose of the camp continue to be formed on the strong traditions and high ideals wrought into it by its founder. It is a great responsibility, but I am glad to shoulder it. Member: Highland Club, West

Roxbury; Unitarian Club, West Roxbury; West Roxbury Citizens' Association, Congregational Brotherhood, West Roxbury; Harvard Club, Keene, N. H.; Marienfeld Club (Camp Marienfeld Alumni).

ELIOT SPALDING

Children	Elizabeth Rosalie, Aug. 20, 1911.
Business	Manufacturer.
Address	Endicott, N. Y.

Resigning as graduate manager and from the Harvard Law School in February, 1901, I entered the employ of the Lestershire Manufacturing Co. and soon after became treasurer. In July, 1909, the corporation became a partnership, Endicott, Johnson and Co., and I am one of the partners. I am an officer in two smaller corporations connected with the business: Endicott Water Works Co. and Endicott, Johnson Realty Co.; also president of the First National Bank of Lestershire, N. Y. My whole time is devoted to this one business and as tanners of over eight thousand sides of leather a day and makers of over forty-seven thousand pairs of shoes a day, the principle of ''consecration'' is essential. I have made my home in Endicott, N. Y., for the last eight years. Outside of short trips to New York and Boston, I am generally at the office from 7 to 6, and will welcome any 1900 men finding themselves hereabouts. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of Boston.

LELAND JASON SPALDING

Address	(home) 51 High St., Webster, Mass. (business) New York, N. Y.

I was employed by the First National Bank, Webster, Mass., 1898 to 1905, in various capacities, from bookkeeper to assistant cashier. From 1905 to 1907 I was registered as a special student in Harvard College and had some slight experience as tutor and assistant instructor. From 1908 to 1911 I was engaged in various branches of photography, mostly as a free-lance. From 1911 to 1915 I was employed as advertising manager by the C. P. Goerz American Optical Company (Branch of Berlin), 317 East 34th Street, New York, manufacturers of lenses, cameras and scientific instruments. In April, 1915, I resigned on account of complications due to the war.

For what I did up to 1910 see last class report. From 1910 to 1913 I continued to practise law in Boston, at first in partnership and subsequently alone. In the autumn of 1913, owing to ill health, I stopped work and came to Europe, where I have since been. Since the outbreak of the European war I have been in France, doing Red Cross work when the occasion offered.

HOMER WORTHINGTON STARR

Born	Paris, Tex., March 31, 1875.
Parents	Francis Russe Starr, Sarah Ward.
School	Public High School, Gonzales, Tex.
Years in College	1899-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; A.M. (University of the South), 1901; Ph.D. (University of North Carolina), 1914.
Married	Gertrude Eastland, Waxahachie, Tex., July 3, 1902.
Children	Sarah Louise, March 13, 1906; Francis Worthington, Jan. 7, 1908; Homer Pilgrim, Sept. 3, 1912.
Business	Minister.
Address	Chapel Hill, N. C.

Following my graduation at Harvard, June, 1900, I returned to the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., where I completed my work for the A.M. degree, and also my preparation for the ministry in the theological department of the university. I was proctor of the university 1900-1901.

During the year 1901-2, I was English master in the Sewanee Grammar School, the preparatory department in the university. I was ordained deacon at San Angelo, Tex., in 1901 by Rt. Rev. J. S. Johnston, Bishop of West Texas, and advanced to the priesthood in June, 1902, by Rt. Rev. T. F. Gailor, Bishop of Tennessee. On July 3, 1902, I was married at Waxahachie, Texas, and soon after entered upon my duties as rector and headmaster of the West Texas Military Academy, at San Antonio, Texas. Threatened with a physical collapse, I resigned this position and sought the bracing effect of a colder climate, becoming the rector of St. Jude's Church, Monroe City, Missouri, in December, 1902. I was rector of St. Paul's Church, Council Bluffs, Iowa, 1903-1907, and of Christ Church, Winnetka, Ill., 1907-1910. In the latter year I became an unofficial "church chaplain at the University of North Carolina," Chapel Hill, N. C., having also charge of the local parish, the "Chapel of the Cross." This is more of an inter-diocesan than a local work, two-thirds of my support being provided by the church people outside of Chapel Hill in the three dioceses of the state. I have served on the Diocesan Board of Missions of Iowa and Chicago, and the Sunday School Commission of Iowa, Chicago, and North Carolina. I am at the present time president of the Board of Religious Education in the diocese of North Carolina, and member of the executive committee of the Board of Religious Education of the "Province of Sewanee." In June, 1914, I completed a three-year course at the University of North Carolina, and was granted the Ph.D. degree. The dissertation subject was "Reformation Movements in England as Reflected in the Popular Literature of the Fifteenth Century." I am treasurer and director of The Country Club, Chapel Hill, N. C.

I got ready for college by the usual methods, got through college by a species of good luck. and am now out of college. I went to the theological school and got out of that institution; was ordained a deacon in the Episcopal Church by the late Bishop Vinton of Western Massachusetts; was ordained a priest by Bishop Lawrence and since that time have spent most of my waking hours in trying to coax people to give sixteen per cent. of their time and a certain small per cent. of their money for the service of the church and what the church stands for. The class of 1900 at Harvard has the opportunity to make itself forever famous by all the members of that class being cheerfully willing to give a certain amount of time and money to the parson in their town in order that he may make the church of which he has charge succeed. And then if they could in addition to that find it convenient occasionally to present themselves in church at a service, it would help, more so than perhaps they sometimes appreciate. It may be said in passing that the indefatigable secretary of the class of 1900 is due to occcupy a niche in the Hall of Fame some day in return for his enthusiastic persistency with which he keeps the class lined up. He is a live wire, and he is requested to publish this account just as it stands without censoring it. The question is, what does Frank Hinkey think of Percy Haughton just now? The class of 1900 is cordially invited to attend service at St. John's Church, Milwaukee, any Sunday that they may elect. They are also invited to bring their pocketbooks with them. Well, I guess that's enough. Greetings to the secretary of the class. May we all live long and the world appreciate us! When I was in college for the consideration of fifty cents an hour I edited and mostly wrote a medical book. The supposed author of the book suffering somewhat from lack of education called me to his assistance. The book was privately printed and diligent search fails to reveal one copy of it bought. The book was no good, but the title of it was fine, namely: "Man's Friend, Woman's Guide, and Childhood's Future Happiness." Since that time, no publisher has demanded any manuscript from me. Member: City Club of Milwaukee. I belong to a Clericus, an organization of Episcopal ministers in town.

Business	Manufacturer.
Address	(home) 1 North St., Ludlow, Mass. (business) Ludlow Manufacturing Associates, Ludlow, Mass.

On leaving college I entered the employ of the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates and have remained with this firm, becoming manufacturing agent in 1905, and vice-president in 1911. Manufacturing is diversified and extremely interesting, although under present conditions the lot of the manufacturer is far from being a happy one. In connection with my work I have studied jute manufacturing in Europe and India, but have not yet achieved fame as the author of books or plays. I have also become interested in banking and am president of the Ludlow Savings Bank and a director in the Springfield Safe Deposit and Trust Co. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of Boston, City Club of Boston, Nayasset Club of Springfield, Country Club of Springfield, American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

William Stickney

Born	Bournemouth, Eng., Dec. 29, 1877.
Parents	Albert Stickney, Elizabeth Heart Weston.
School	Cutler's School, New York, N. Y.
Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Died	May 26 1911, Puerta Barrios, Guatemala, C. A.

William Stickney died at Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, on May 26, 1911. His birthplace was Bournemouth, England. He prepared for college at Cutler's School, New York, where he was editor of the school paper. After his graduation from Harvard he spent three years at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, studying railroad engineering and naval architecture. He continued the latter study at the University of Glasgow. Returning to the United States he entered the employ of the Fore River Ship-Building Company, at Quincy, Mass., and stayed with it for three years. In 1907 he resigned and went to Telluride, Col., where he spent one year in the mines. A severe injury from a fall compelled him to return East for a year. In the autumn of 1909 he engaged in engineering work on the Panama Canal at Balboa, Canal Zone. In February, 1911, he accepted a position with the United Fruit Company at Guatemala. He was extremely fond of out-of-door life and especially enjoyed fishing, hunting and cruising. The men who knew William Stickney prized his friendship as a very precious thing.

MARSHALL STIMSON

Born	Cambridge, Mass., May 21, 1876.
Parents	Martin Webster Stimson, Ella Caroline Marshall.
School	Los Angeles High School, Los Angeles, Cal.
Years in College	1896-1898.
Married	Mary Gordon Stimson, Azusa, Cal., April 27, 1904.
Children	Gordon, May 27, 1905; Mary, July 26, 1906; Eleanor, Aug. 5, 1909; Patricia, Feb. 3, 1912.
Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 1060 Kensington Road, Los Angeles, Cal. (business) 801-2 Wright and Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Entered Harvard Law School, finished two years' courses, admitted to Massachusetts bar, 1901. Practised two years in Boston. Returned to Los Angeles in 1904, engaged in real estate, ranching and cattle business, resuming law practice in 1906. I have been active in political affairs in California for many years. I was one of the charter members of the City Club, served three years as a member of the executive committee of the Municipal League, and two years as a director of the Chamber of Commerce. Helped to organize the Good Government party in Los Angeles City, and the Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican League, which captured the Republican organization of California in 1910, electing Hiram W. Johnson as governor. Served as a member of the state executive committee of the Republican party for four years and as chairman of the Republican Congressional committee four years. Elected as a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1912; served on the committee of rules; voted for Roosevelt in the convention and then after Taft's nomination, went over to Symphony Hall and participated in the formation of the Progressive party. Served as chairman of Progressive Congressional Committee; campaigned for Progressive party in state election, 1914, which resulted in Governor Johnson's re-election as a Progressive, by the greatest majority ever given any governor in this state. At present I am a member of the State Commission of the Panama Pacific Exposition. I haven't made any money, but I have had a lot of fun, and perhaps I have done a little to break up the rotten political conditions which formerly prevailed in California. Member: California, University, City and Los Angeles County Clubs, Sons of Revolution, Mason.

ERNEST WILLIAM STIX

Business	Merchant.
Address	(home) 5112 Waterman Ave., St. Louis, Mo. (business) 1000 Washington Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Upon leaving college, I became an employee of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., and through fifteen years of constant labor have succeeded in holding my job. I have risen gradually to the vice-presidency of the company, but find the work no easier than before and my hopes for a life of ease and comfort are fast disappearing from my horizon. Eight years ago I had the good fortune to marry and now a wife and two children add to my pleasure and at the same time keep me hustling for bread and raiment. I have taken an active interest in civic and philanthropic endeavors and have been favored with many opportunities to do my share of the work. Life has brought me a full measure of fun, and I look forward with undaunted faith to a bit of the best of it in June, 1915, when we shall meet again. Member: Westwood Country Club, Columbian Club, Mercantile Club, City Club, all of St. Louis.

Address	(home) 1 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.; also "Chatham," Fredericksburg, Va. (business) 416 West 13th St., New York, N. Y.

From 1900 to 1903 I was in the Harvard Law School and at the same time did newspaper and magazine work for the Boston Transcript, the Philadelphia North American, The Outlook and the Atlantic Monthly. 1903-04 was in the employ of the Boston Transcript. 1904-05 was in the employ of Curtis Publishing Co. 1905-06 was in the employ of McClure's Magazine. Since 1906 I have been political writer, associate editor, and since October, 1913, editor of Collier's Weekly. I was identified, both as a writer and in an active way, with the so-called Insurgent Movement in the Republican party which resulted in the overthrow of the old control of that party and the organization of the Progressive Party; also with the Progressive Movement within the Democratic party which resulted in the nomination of Woodrow Wilson. I was associated with the leaders of the movement which effected the adoption of the Postal Savings Bank, Parcels Post, the constitutional amendment for the direct election of United States senators, the constitutional amendment authorizing the Income Tax, and the wide-spread adoption of the direct primary. I have not held any public office, either by appointment or election, because I have considered that editorial independence made it necessary always to decline them. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Harvard Club of Boston, The Players, The Republican Club of New York, The City Club of New York, The National Press Club of Washington.

From 1900 to 1902, I studied in the Harvard Graduate School, specializing in economics and constitutional history; Following my graduation from the Law School, I spent nearly autumns of 1900-01 and '02 I coached football, being at various times at Dartmouth, Amherst and Exeter Academy. Following my graduation from the law school, I spent nearly three years in association with the law firm of Bissell, Carey and Cooke, of Buffalo, New York. Since April 10, 1907, with the exception of a few months in 1909-10, I have been in the law department of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in New York City, first as assistant general attorney, then as general attorney, and finally as general counsel and head of the department. My work has been confining, and my professional activities outside of the office have been rather more limited than I like; but I have just concluded three pleasant years of service on the Committee on Admissions of the Bar Association. I have a small place in the country in Westchester County, where I spend a good part of my leisure in gardening. Member: Harvard Club of New York, Association of the Bar of the City of New York, Lawrence Park Country Club.

After leaving college in my second year, I returned to my home in Phoenix, Arizona, and engaged in business with my father, remaining there until the outbreak of the Spanish-American war when I enlisted in the First Territorial Volunteer Infantry and served nearly a year. Upon being mustered out, I returned to Arizona and remained there until I married. The following year I engaged in structural engineering work with Purdy and Henderson of New York in their Boston office, and a year later I took up building construction, accepting a position with the George A. Fuller Company, contractors, of New York. I was with the Fuller Company for nine years (1903 to 1192) in St. Louis, Baltimore, Chattanooga and Chicago, and when I left them held the position of assistant manager of their Chicago office. In January, 1912, I accepted the position of manager of the Chicago office of James Stewart and Company, contractors, of New York, resigning this position the first of this year (1915) to go into business for myself. Business	Physician.
Address	(home) 100 Cottage Farm Road, Brookline, Mass. (business) 311 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

After graduating from the Medical School, spent six months as house physician in Boston Children's Hospital, and twenty months in the Massachusetts General Hopital, after which I assisted Dr. John Lovett Morse in the practice of the diseases of children for four years. Was appointed visiting physician to the Boston Floating Hospital in 1908. Was assistant visiting physician to the Massachusetts Infant Asylum for one year. July, 1909, received the appointment of chief of the children's medical department of the Massachusetts General Hospital, which appointment I still hold. I have been connected with the department of Pediatrics at Harvard Medical School since 1910, and now am clinical instructor in that department. I spent the summer of 1902 in Göttingen, Germany, studying German, and the summer of 1912 principally in Germany and a short time in London and Paris, visiting hospitals devoted to the diseases of children. For the past three years, have been studying the metabolism of infants in conjunction with F. G. Benedict at the Carnegie Nutrition Laboratory of Washington, and at the Massachusetts General Hospital in whatever time I could spare. My vacations are usually spent either on Cape Cod or in the woods of Canada. My practice is confined to the diseases of children, and now is principally an office and consultation practice. I have published: (Benedict and Talbot) The Gaseous Metabolism of Infants, (Carnegie Institution of Washington, Publication, No. 201). Various other articles have been published in medical journals, on subjects of interest to those practising the diseases of children. The two years following my withdrawal from Harvard were spent at the Bridgewater Normal School, at Bridgewater, Mass., from which school I was graduated in June, 1899. As I had elected the work of a school-teacher when in attendance upon high school, it was not particularly peculiar that I should enter the State Normal School. The years 1899-1901 were spent in Norwood, Mass., as principal of the Guild School; the years 1901-1903 were spent most pleasantly in Portsmouth, N. H., as principal of the Whipple School; the years 1903-1906 were spent in Quincy, Mass. as principal of the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields Schools for one year; and for the other two years as master of the Willard School. In the fall of 1906 I was called to the Edward Devotion School in Brookline, in which school I now find myself fortunately placed. My career has been neither brilliant nor electrifying, but particularly serene and happy. As I am just as young as I was when I used to watch the old Harvard luminaries—Cabot, Moulton, et al—cavort about the gridiron, I now watch with equal pleasure Mahan, Hardwick, et al. I have absolutely no just claim upon recognition by the real members of the class of 1900, and regret that fact rather more seriously than the fact that I was cut off from the opportunity to gain wisdom in like degree as they.

For nine years after leaving college I was in grammar school teaching in Harrisville, R. I., Hyde Park, and Quincy, In 1909 I accepted the position I hold at present,—junior master in the Girls' High School, Boston, a school with 2,200 pupils. At the time of our marriage, in 1907, my wife was teaching in the Horace Mann School, New York. My teaching subjects are English literature and musical theory. For two years I have been a teacher in the Church of the Disciples School, in Boston. For eight summers I have been secretary of Camp Wyanoke for Boys, at Wolfeboro, N. H. For three years I have been an instructor in English literature in the Boston Evening High Schools. I am director of the Girls' High School Glee Club. A course in literature which I am taking this winter in the University Extension, with "Copey," brings back many memories of college days. Married	Mary Eunice Hawkins, Noblesville, Ind., June 14, 1906.
Business	Manufacturer.
Address	(home) Lima. Ohio. (business) Roanoke Rapids, N. C.

After leaving college I entered upon the manufacture of paper and card-board. I had been in this business before finishing my college course. I later became manager of the American Straw Board Co. and Lima Egg Case Co., of Lima, Ohio. I was also connected with plants in Ohio and Indiana during that period. The American Straw Board Co. was absorbed by the United Box Board and Paper Co., a twenty-eight million dollar corporation, comprising forty paper mills. In 1904 I became purchasing agent of the combined companies with offices in New York. In 1905, I took charge, as manager, of the largest and most important subsidiary company, the Uncas Paper Co., Norwich, Ct. This was later taken into the United Box Board Co., and in 1912 I took the management of the Roanoke Fibre Board Co., Roanoke Rapids, N. C. At the end of the year I was elected president and general manager of the Halifax Paper Corporation, Roanoke Rapids, N. C., which position I still hold. This company has a chemical sulphate plant and also a paper mill. Its raw material is forest products and its finished paper is Kraft Wrapping. I have written: Several short stories; also a novel, Broken Links (C. M. Clark Publishing Co., Boston, Mass., 1908). Member: Masonic lodges: Blue Lodge, Chapter, Knights Templar, and Shrine.

Address	388 West Main St., Hopedale, Mass.

Returned to the Graduate School in fall of 1900 and remained until February, 1901, when I went with the General Electric Co. at Lynn. In the fall of 1901 went to Case School in Cleveland, Ohio, as instructor in mathematics and electrical engineering. In spring of 1902 went to Philadelphia, Pa., with North Penn Iron Co. and remained there until fall of 1903, when I came to Hopedale, and have rusticated in this quiet town ever since. Have been with the Draper Co., manufacturers of cotton machinery, during the whole period, first in their cost department and for the last five years as efficiency engineer and system man. About the wildest excitement I have had was fighting an I. W. W. strike for three months last spring. Otherwise things move along in a very even sort of way and it takes most of my time to look after my family and my job.

FRANCIS CRESWICK TODD

Born	Boston, Mass., Sept. 1, 1878.
Parents	Frederick William Todd, Julia Kittredge.
School	Roxbury Latin School, Boston, Mass.

Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900; S.T.B. (Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge), 1904.
Business	Minister.
Address	(home) 24 Berkeley Ave., Orange, N. J. (business) Church of St. Andrew, South Orange, N. J.

The year following our graduation I spent in Oxford, studying with Rev. Doctors Bright, Moberly, Sanday and others. I, also, in the same year, did some travelling on the continent, in part with the (then) Rev. Charles E. Plumb, of Magdalen College (now Bishop of St. Andrews, Scotland); and with Mr. Walter Moberly, then an undergraduate at New College. After this year abroad I came back to America and matriculated at the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge. I spent three years there, graduating in June, 1904, and at the same time becoming ordained to the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. I have done my work in two places. For five years I was assistant-minister of Trinity Church, Hartford, Connecticut, in association with the Rev. Ernest deF. Miel. During the last six years I have been rector of the church of St. Andrew, South Orange, New Jersey. This latter parish is strong, compact and well equipped, and embraces a body of people,—including young people,—singularly united and, in the rector's eyes, exemplifying a sincere, simple, useful and progressive Christianity. I have thoroughly enjoyed my work. My recreations in odd moments are tennis and motoring. In summers I have usually gone abroad. I belong to the Harvard Club of New York, the Essex County Country Club of West Orange, the New England Society and Lawn Tennis Club of Orange, and to a circle of ministers in New York known as "Sigma Chi."

Business Teacher.
Address (home) 2 University Place, Atlanta, Ga.
(business) Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga.

Since leaving college, I have been employed continuously as professor of pedagogy in Atlanta University. By degrees I have shifted my work so that now it is almost entirely in English. My work here is thoroughly interesting and enjoyable because I can see results and can know that I am doing some good. This is one of the leading colleges for negro youth in the South. Its graduates have gone to Northern institutions and stood uniformly well in scholarship. I am glad that I have had a hand in preparing a few for Harvard where not one has been graduated with less rank than cum laude. Member: The Monday Club, The Citizens' League, The Atlanta Historical Society.

Business	Assistant factory manager.
Address	(home) 12232 Clifton Boulevard, Lakewood, Ohio. (business) National Carbon Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Having specialized in chemistry in college, I naturally followed this line for bread and butter. For the first six months after leaving college I was one of the chemists in the Massachusetts State Board of Health Water Laboratory. Routine and apparent lack of future made me drop this to take charge in 1901 of analytical laboratory of Little and Walker, chemical engineers of Boston. Left them in 1902, to take position as chemist with National Carbon Co. of Cleveland. In 1903 I was made assistant superintendent of the Cleveland factory of National Carbon Co. In 1904 was transferred to the Fremont, Ohio, plant of the National Carbon Co., to help change it to a dry-battery factory; and in the past ten years have helped develop the largest dry-battery factory in the world. While in Fremont I helped develop a chamber of commerce, serving as its vice-president and president. In the spring of 1913, Fremont, like many Ohio cities, had a terrible flood, and I served as chairman of the relief committee, in charge of the rescue, feeding, housing, distributing and rehabilitation work, which such disasters bring about. In 1914 I was made assistant factory manager of the National Carbon Co., and transferred from Fremont to Cleveland, Ohio, to help in the problems of the various plants of the company. Hope any 1900 friends will look me up whenever they come to Cleveland; latchstring is always out. Member: Harvard Club of Cleveland, Harvard Engineering Society, Harvard Carbon Club, American Chemical Society, local section American Institute Electrical Engineers, Masons, Fremont, Ohio, Commandery, Fremont Chamber of Commerce.

HENRY WHITNEY WALLACE

Born	Wheeling, W. Va., Nov., 1876.

School	Lindsly Institute, Wheeling, W. Va.

Years in College	1896-1900.
Business	Draftsman.
Address	553 72d Ave., West Allis, Wis.

On January 1, 1901, I started as surveyor for the National Steel Co., of Mingo Junction, Ohio, which position I held for about six months and was then transferred to the drafting room, where I worked until May 1, 1902. June 1, 1902, I started with the Riter Conley Manufacturing Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., and worked in their drafting room until January 1, 1903. On January 26, 1903, I went to work for the Tennessee Coal, Iron and R. R. Co. at Ensley, Alabama, leaving at the end of four months to work for the Woodward Iron Co. of Woodward, Alabama. After two years I returned to the Tennessee Co. where I was employed for four years. After a year and a half more of unvaried unsuccess in Alabama, I pulled out for Seattle, where I had another year and a half of the same, and concluded to try a change of venue, and came to Milwaukee. The "venue" didn't seem to want to change, however, and I have been here ever since, due partly to the fact that I can't get away. Member: Ensley Lodge No. 560, A. F. and A. M.

Business	Teacher.
Address	(home) 11 Bedford St., Quincy, Mass. (business) 721 Missouri Ave., Columbia, Mo.

I have taught at North Carolina University, in Porto Rico, and at the University of Missouri. I have managed the business of a sugar Central, run a Playground Congress for the National Association, dabbled in newspaper work, and investigated conditions in the silk, leather, woollen, and glove industries for the United States Immigration Commission. In connection with my literary work I have discovered a nigger in the woodpile in the age of Louis XIV. in the shape of a complex hoax hitherto unsuspected. I have voted for woman-suffrage, and stand for state-control of physicians and lawyers, the short ballot, higher salaries for teachers, a benevolent depotism, the elimination of the words "criminal" and "charity," the provision of respectable work for all by the state, the Direct Method, vocational advisers, and the principle of "do as you like and let others do likewise so long as nobody else is hurt thereby." I have travelled over a goodly portion of our country, and have sojourned in Canada, England, France, Cuba, Porto Rico, and South America. My present position is that of assistant professor of Romance languages at the University of Missouri. I have served on various committees here and in the Modern Language Association of Missouri, and have been honored with one office of trust which cose me $3.68 in cold cash and much perturbation of mind before I was relieved of it. I have written: Geography Primer, joint author with Coruman and Gerson, (Hinds, Noble and Eldredge, Philadelphia, 1907), Matthew Arnold and Sàinte-Beuve (Modern Language Notes, XXV., 1910), The Case of Somaize, (Modern Language Notes, XXVIII., 1913), The Identity of Somaize, (Modern Language Notes, XXIX., 1914). Member: Harvard Club of Columbia, Missouri; Columbia Club of Columbia, Missouri; University Golf Club of Columbia, Missouri; Modern Language Association of America, Missouri State Teachers' Association.

Address	University Club, Providence, R. I.

After graduation, I entered the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge and received the degree of B.D. in June, 1903. On May 17, 1903, I was ordered deacon by the Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, D.D., Bishop of Massachusetts. In June of that year I became curate of the Church of the Saviour and of Calvary Church, Providence, R. I. I was ordained priest by the Rt. Rev. William N. McVickar, D.D., on February 22, 1904. In that year I became rector of the Church of the Saviour, Providence. In April, 1911, I went abroad for six months. I was in the British Isles, France, Holland, the Tyrol and Italy. I was abroad again for a short visit in the summer of 1913. In May, 1912, the two parishes of the Church of the Saviour and Calvary Church were united and I became rector of Calvary Church, which office I now hold. Member: Harvard Club of Boston; Hope Club, Providence; University Club, Providence; Agawam Hunt Club, Providence.

It is hardly possible to realize that the 1915 circular for class history is due, though already quite interesting to look back to 1905, the first report, and see that at that time we had one wife, one child, and had spent two years on a western ranch hunting and enjoying the open. Also that our time was then occupied with a little work and some travel. Looking to 1910, we see again one wife, three children, practically no mention of hunting or travel, and an association in the capacity of general manager of a traction and lighting company. Passing on to 1915, we find one (the same) wife, four children, and the rather necessary continued connection (vice-president) with the traction company and president of a natural gas company. We find practically no travel in travel sense, but much going to Baltimore where the main offices of the corporations are located. Again, speaking personally, we find work in public service corporations most interesting, though much of it trying and unsatisfactory. We maintain the fondness for simple life, living on a real farm the year round, with enclosed sleeping porch sufficient to house the entire family. With the sincere approval of Mrs. Watson, we believe this life the very best not only for boys with Harvard ambition, but for parents with Harvard recollection. There may be larger and better corporations, but we doubt the existence in this modern day of larger and better families than ours at "Fort Hill," an old Indian fort where the farm is situated. The fact that 1915 has come is attested by the size of the children and by the writer having given up tennis for golf some two years since. It will be of considerable interest (to the writer) to observe, when the next report is due, what progress has been made with the corporations, family and golf. Having attended Harvard but a part of one year, I do not feel entitled to continued recognition in the class records, and believe it quite consistent for the compilers to eliminate this sheet. Most of the time since leaving college I have spent in Pittsburgh in the steel business at the Homestead Works of the Carnegie Steel Company. Last fall I had the opportunity of going out to India in an advisory capacity for the Tata Iron and Steel Company, a company operated by Indian capitalists, in the manufacture of rails and other steel products in India. The experience of applying American methods to a steel plant put down in the midst of an Indian jungle, and only twenty degrees north of the equator, was novel for me and extremely interesting. I managed to escape the penalty, however, of one "who tried to hustle the East." I was able to see many of the interesting points in India and came home by way of China and Japan. I am at present assistant general superintendent of the Homestead Steel Works. Member: University Club, Oakmont Country Club.

CHARLES FREDERIC WELLINGTON

Born	Swansea, Mass., Dec. 4, 1877.

School	B. M. C. Durfee High School, Fall River, Mass.

Years in College	1896-1900.
Degrees	A.B., 1900.
Business	Editor.
Address	(home) 90 Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass. (business) 530 Atlantic Ave., Boston, Mass.

In the summer of 1900 I became the Swansea, Mass., correspondent for the Fall River, Mass., Evening News, and a few months later for the Providence Journal, and continued work for those papers until December 22, 1913, with the exception of a short time when I was employed in New York. About the time when school was to begin, a friend of mine thrust upon me the opportunity, which I did not specially desire, of teaching in a country school at Swansea. I took the position, and in some ways enjoyed it, but as it was in general distasteful, I resigned about January 1, 1901. My whole time was then devoted to newspaper work until the spring of 1901, when I became time-keeper for the Old Colony Street Railway on a section of new road which was being built between Providence and Fall River. In September, 1901, I became secretary to the principal of the B. M. C. Durfee High School, Fall River, Mass. Remaining there until September, 1906, I resigned to go into magazine subscription work for the Success Company of New York, but lived at home. About January 1, 1909, I was offered a position in the office of the company in New York. Circumstances compelled me to return to Swansea in April of the same year. As a man was needed at the High School at Fall River, I returned to a position similar to the one I had before and stayed there until December 22, 1913. During this time since leaving college, I published in my spare time special articles for several newspapers, including a number of Sunday stories, illustrated. The "lighter vein" tempted me considerably and contributions included one in verse, printed by "The Editor," a journal devoted to the interests of literary workers. While living in Swansea I "was persuaded" to become a candidate for school committee. I did so, but was defeated and again a second time with the same result. In March, 1911, my friends elected me to the membership of the school board. I remained a member for the three years' term, until March, 1914, and was secretary of the board for one year. Before I was a candidate for school committee I served as secretary of a committee to investigate the schools of Swansea. For a number of years I have been and am at the present time a trustee of the Swansea Public Library, and for a few years have been a member of the Republican town committee of Swansea. In the latter part of 1913, I was offered a position with Frank P. Bennett and Co., Inc., of Boston, publishers of the "American Wool and Cotton Reporter" and the "United States Investor," which I accepted, beginning my work December 22, 1913. My duties are now entirely with the Reporter, are both editorial and reportorial, and also have considerable to do with the "make-up" of the paper. At the present time the fact that I am "export editor," having special charge of the South American portion of the Reporter, published in Spanish and Portuguese, may be of interest. I entered the Harvard Law School in September, 1900, and was graduated with the degree of LL.B. in June, 1904.

I was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in August, 1904, and for two years was in the office of Hale and Grinnell, 60 State Street, Boston, practising law on my own account, and also doing work for them. In October, 1906, I went into the cotton goods commission business, where I have found my knowledge of the law of the greatest use and value. I am now a member of the firm of Wellington, Sears and Company, cotton goods commission merchants, and am also an officer or director of several of the cotton mills for which our firm acts as selling agents. I am also a director of the State Street Trust Company of Boston. I have not had much opportunity for travelling abroad since leaving college, and with the exception of a summer vacation trip to Europe in 1902, and a short trip to Bermuda a year ago, my travels have been confined to the United States and Canada. Member: Harvard Club of Boston, Harvard Club of New York, University Club of Boston, Boston City Club, Longwood Cricket Club, Boston Bar Association, American Political Science Association.

The "story of my life" since I dropped the narrative in the third report, is the simple tale of a workman sticking closely to his last and trying to do each day's "job" as it comes to him. I am still at work on the book on "The Art of the Theatre Manager," of which I spoke in the last report. Since the beginning of 1911, however, the foreground of my writing has again been occupied by the "Critical Biography of Sir Arthur Pinero," which I originally wrote between 1902 and 1906, and of which I also spoke at the time of the decennial. I found that by means of several of Sir Arthur's early plays which had been published in the meanwhile, I was able greatly to extend my treatment of his apprenticeship, and as I hope, to show more clearly how both his virtues and defects in his mature work are qualities naturally derived from his first work. I have also been revising the main part of the book, and have been adding an "epilogue" dealing with Sir Arthur's plays since 1906. I have also had largely worked out in my mind since the winter of 1910 a three-act tragedy of modern New York life, on the active composition of which I hope to enter as soon as I shall have been able to finish my two critical books. Since January, 1909, I have also been much interested in the movement toward the creation of theatres of art in America through which, in spite of the crudities of so much of our theatrical life, the United States is holding its own in the great dramatic renaissance of our time; to the service of that movement, in fact, my life has largely been given over during these last six years. From January to May, 1909, I put aside practically entirely my other work for that purpose, and since that last date, though I have never been so exclusively absorbed by this work, I have also given the calls of the movement precedence over my own books. This has, very naturally, greatly delayed, as I fully realize, the completion of my books. I think I can safely say, in fact, that but for these demands, I should almost certainly have completed my "Pinero," and very probably, "The Art of the Theatre-Manager" as well. I have been much interested these last years, also, in the development of amateur performances in Buffalo, and in an attempt to include within the scope of such productions plays of artistic importance for which the regular American stage has no place. This work has come to me as a member of the Studio Club. I first realized the possibilities of a development of some value along this line in Buffalo when that club brought out in the spring of 1911 two plays of far from artistic importance, "A Wayside Comedy," and "The Emancipated," which I wrote, and which were published in "The Harvard Monthly" during the year that I was in the Graduate School. In spite of the jejune theatricalities, which made me feel, while I was staging the plays, that I was mounting work by a dead man whom I had once known intimately, the persistence, the skill, and the disinterestedness which the actors and the scenic artists brought to their tasks made me feel that the club might successfully undertake work of far greater significance. In the autumn of 1912 I had charge of the first production in Buffalo of Gerhart Hauptmann's "Peace on Earth!" ("Das Friedensfest"), which was our contribution toward the world-wide celebration of the great German dramatist's fiftieth birthday. The club is now planning for April, 1915, the production, again for the first time in Buffalo, of John Galworthy's "Joy," and if I shall be free, I shall stage-manage the performance. This work, likewise, has no doubt delayed the completion of my books; but it also I feel to be far more important than anything I could write. We are trying to do for Buffalo in a modest way, something of the same work that the Little Theatre does for Chicago, and the Toy Theatre for Boston.

Since November, 1913, I have been largely absorbed by certain problems in connection with the management of my share of my family's holdings of Buffalo real estate. I have led during this last year, in fact, far more the life of a regular American business man than I suspect many of my classmates will find credible. I cannot in the least tell how long into the future these demands will continue; I hope, however, that with the commencement of 1915, I may find myself able again to devote the larger part of my time to the interests which compose my real life. The only "artistic" interest which has occupied any large share of my time this last year has been my struggle, first against the establishment, and then against the growth of the Buffalo Centre of the Drama League of America. And this struggle has implied my discovery that I could, if necessary, speak without notes, or even quite extemporaneously,—a fact which I had never believed. I had long considered the Drama League of America as the most malignant theatrical force in the country, since, though averring that it promoted dramatic art, it tolerates, and indeed champions plays of a nature and a quality which would not be tolerated by any organization with the same averral in the call of any other art. I had long wished that I might do something to hamper the growth of the league. When the establishment of a Buffalo Centre was mooted in the spring of 1914, moreover, I regarded that fact as an invasion of my own "backyard," and took the field with every weapon in my power.

I spoke several times in opposition to the league that spring. This struggle also stands very close to my heart, and I shall continue to employ in it every resource. Two addresses which I had the honor of delivering before the Buffalo Association of English Teachers on May 25 and October 26, 1914, on "The necessity of an Artistic Standard in the American Theatre," and "The Theatrical Cultivation of American Democracy," were connected with this struggle, though the Drama League was not mentioned, in so far as in them, also, I declared my belief in the assertion and maintenance in the drama of a standard quite as pure and as rigorous as in any other art and that the theatrical cultivation which is engendered by such a standard is not limited to any small group but is a trait of a "remnant" drawn from all social segments. I am looking forward with pleasure, also, to my service on the committee which has been requested by the Otto-Ulbrich Co. of Buffalo to co-operate with it in the maintenance of a table in its bookstore for new books of high quality. There are about twenty members of the committee, and no book is placed on the table without the endorsement of at least two members of the committee. Mr. Grauer, the secretary of the Otto-Ulbrich Co., tells me that, so far as he knows, this experiment has had no predecessor in America. I have written: The Dramas of M. Paul Hervieu, ("Poet Lore" for July, 1903, and spring, 1904), The Organization of a Theatre, (Address delivered before the American Drama Society at Boston on January 18, 1912; published in "Poet Lore" for autumn, 1912, under the misnomer of "The Civic Theatre"). After leaving Harvard at the end of the freshman year I went to Princeton for two years. I was on the staff of the "New York Sun" from 1899 to 1904, first as a reporter, later as editor of a humorous department in "The Sunday Sun," to which I contributed verse, prose and pictures. In 1904 I went to Princeton to live and for the next six or seven years wrote magazine fiction. Also, for four years, I edited the anecdote department in "Everybody's Magazine." The nearest I have come to holding an office of honor was in 1909, when I ran for mayor of Princeton on the Democratic ticket. The town was barely saved by the colored vote. I have been the editor of "Ainslee's" since March, 1911. I have written: Baseball Stories (Ogilvie, 1902), A Ball of Yarn (Paul Elder, 1907), 400 Good Stories (Doubleday, Page, 1910), The Judgment of Jane (Moffat, Yard and Co., scheduled for early in 1915.) I have contributed to Ainslee's, Everybody's, Smart Set, Forum, Popular Monthly, Associated Sunday Magazines, Pearson's, Smith's, The Designer, etc. Member: University Cottage Club of Princeton, Nassau Club of Princeton, Princeton Club of New York, The Players, New York.

Assistant secretary and legislative representative of the Citizens Union, a non-partisan municipal organization, at the annual sessions of the legislature, and worked for it during the municipal campaigns from 1903 to 1907. July 2, 1907, I was appointed secretary to the Public Service Commission for the First District under a law secured by Governor Hughes. I still remain as secretary although the membership of the commission has changed entirely. I might here set forth the work and problems of the P. S. C. but I've done it better in print, (copies available upon application). In other words, there is little personal history in the record of one long hard job. It's merely work day by day, though I must confess that had I the time, I could make a diary which hereafter might be of a very readable nature; for the settlement of important problems always has interesting and human elements. I can't enumerate what I've written. I can only say that I get out an annual report in three volumes, "Proceedings" in one, "Opinions" in one, and edit a monthly magazine for the commission. Finally I wish fellows coming to New York would let me show them the very wonderful construction work—subway and elevated—now being carried on by the commission. CLARENCE WIENER

Born	Philadelphia, Pa., April 10, 1878.
Parents	Lewis Wiener, Eugenia Katherine Kettelnus.
School	Hill School and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.
Years in College	1896-1898.
Business	Journalist, war correspondent, patriot and socialist.
Address	(home) Ewell Castle. Surrey, Eng., and 15 Sloane St., London, W., Eng. (business) Wiener Agency, 64 Strand, London, Eng.

In 1897, in November, I went to Cuba. In 1898, in August, I went to Porto Rico as first lieutenant and aide-de-camp on General F. D. Grant's staff. In 1899, in November, I went to South Africa as correspondent for the New York "Sun." Appointed by Chamberlain of the London office, I went to Natal with General Buller, then to Cyphergat with General Gatacre. At Stormberg I led back the remaining eighteen scouts of Captain Montmorency's V. C. Scouts. I drew the Stormberg position a few days after the disaster and returned the next night. Gatacre managed to get through the Stormberg position from this drawing. I was offered eight commissions in the next few days. I decided to organize a corps of scouts with Major Driscoll and was placed second in command of this corps,—"Driscoll's Scouts." I was eight times wounded and in January, 1901, had an independent command of three hundred and forty men. Afterwards I was brevetted major and second in command of Prince of Wales Light Horse (Welsh regiment of eight hundred). I was twice mentioned in despatches. I returned to England in the fall of 1901. I had thirty-six polo ponies in Rome where I started polo. In the spring of 1904 I drove tandem and three extra horses two thousand miles through Europe from Rome. In the spring of 1905 I drove tandem and three extra saddle horses from Rome through Simplon to Geneva, Aix le Bains, Geneva, Lucerne, Prague, Dresden, Cologne, Dresden, Prague, Linz, and Vienna, in all six thousand two hundred miles in four and three-fourths months. From 1905 to 1908 I was engaged in Vienna in perfecting an electric self-player piano I had invented. Also I held machine gun trials in Austria as the continental representative of the Colt Gun and Carriage Co. And at the same time I became president of the "Broadway Magazine"—renamed "Hampton's Magazine" in 1908. In the spring of 1908 I had a house-boat, one hundred by nineteen feet, finished after two years' building on the Danube. We started from Vienna on June 15 and were tugged by special steamer through Hungaria and Servia to Turnu Severin, in Roumania, and returned in the same way to Vienna in October, 1908. On October 27, I had a fatal motor accident near Traunstein in Bavaria; the chauffeur and a friend were killed. In May, 1909, I started the Wiener News Agency, Limited, at 64 Strand. This is now the largest news agency in England. We have twenty-eight newspapers in America, twenty-one in England, one in South Africa, and ten in Australasia. I write for the "North American Review," "Edinborough Review," "Fortnightly" and other magazines and reviews in both countries. Since 1910 I have spent a great deal of my time and money in the endeavor to promote a better understanding between the peoples of the United States and those of the British Empire. But a few weeks before the inception of hostilities in the great world-wide war I closed down the news end of my agency, as pecuniary losses were becoming altogether too severe. During the above time I have been chairman of the following companies: Oldings, Ltd., printers; the ''X L'' Electric Co., Ltd.; Daily Events, Ltd.; Wiener Photo Co., Ltd.; Wiener Advertising Agency, Ltd.; ''The Ideal'' Furnishing and Decorating Co., Ltd.; Wiener Literary Agency, Ltd. In August 1915 I became the accredited war correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co., Ltd., and the Press Association, Ltd., of London, and attached to the British Expeditionary Force in France. There were only eight newspaper men nominated by the British War Office. But up to January, 1915, the military authorities have not allowed one of us to report on the actual fighting lines. I have now resigned from this contract and hope by early spring to be given command with field rank of a half dozen 6-gun automatic batteries mounted on motor cycles and accompanied by armoured cars. This force will probably number about 600 engineers. Our duties will be those of a raiding party—i. e., to cut the hostile lines of communication, and to destroy magazines and dépôts; in fact to harras the enemy wherever found. After the war I have formed plans to start a series of half a dozen real nepspapers in the United States. I believe that the greatest result of this tremendous combat will be a far closer federated brotherhood than has ever been imagined. These newspapers will be published on an altogether new plane, and will aim at really educating the prolctariat to a higher civilization and culture. They will force upon the executive beneficial and benevolent laws tending to rectify faulty administration, and generally to open out to our people uncontemplated vistas of hgh living and prosperity.

Taught in Cleveland, 1903-1904; taught in Chicago, 1904-1908; taught in Boston, 1908 to present time. The above chronicle, elaborated a bit here and there, tells my whole story. On inquiring searchingly into my life history, I am shocked to find that I must have loafed outrageously for the past fifteen years. No books written, and mighty few read; no LL.D.'s from other colleges with which to decorate my signature; no more wives or children even, since last writing. Being a teacher, all offices of trust have been pre-empted by my creditors. Nothing left to me but the dregs,—good health, a steady job, optimism and a happy home. My boy, Shaler, named after our dear old dean, has arrived at percentage, and my home life is mostly spent in trying to work out his lessons. Any of the fellows who remember my recitations in freshman mathematics, will readily understand why I'm not writing any books, and will sympathize with the boy.

Day times I pose as a teacher at the Massachusetts Normal Art School, Boston. It is a life that is more interesting to live than to read about. Each day is full of its own minor problems and opportunities, but lacks all spectacular features like going to war or getting married, or making money. Sometimes when I read of the fame of some of 1900's illustrious sons, I have to pinch myself to be sure I am not riding backward; but I comfort myself with the reflection that the more slowly one travels, the more chance he has to study the scenery. This tranquil state of mind is the result of my work in Phil Ia.

In July, 1900, after graduation, I accepted a position with the banking firm of Baring, Magoun and Co. in New York, with whom I remained for five years, until in June, 1905, I became a member of the New York Stock Exchange. On January 1, 1906, we formed the Stock Exchange firm of Carter, Wilder and Co., to do a commission business in stocks and bonds. I am still the board member of this firm, and, as I have been obliged to remain in New York I have had no opportunity for travel. I lived in New York City until May, 1902, when I removed to New Jersey, where I have since resided. In August, 1900, I obtained employment at Andover, Mass., as engineer in the Board of Public Works, remaining there about a year and then went to Wakefield, Mass., as engineer in the sewer department. In December, 1901, I went to Tampa, Florida, as engineer for Cushing and Weir, contractors for the highway between Tampa and Port Tampa. I completed that work about May 1, 1902, came north and went with the Board of Engineers of Gloucester, Mass. A change in the city government, June 1, 1903, withdrew all the then existing work in the engineering department, giving it to contractors. I was tendered and accepted in February, 1903, the position of chief draughtsman for the Automatic Weighing Machine Co. of New York and held that position until July 1, 1904, when I resigned to take up work as a construction engineer with the Ambursen Hydraulic Construction Co., then located at 176 Federal Street, Boston, Mass. This company grew rapidly and in its expansion outgrew its quarters at 176 Federal Street, removing to 88 Pearl Street, and then in 1912 reorganized as the Ambursen Co., with offices at 61 Broadway, New York. During my connection with this company, now extending over nearly eleven years, my work has included about all the positions a construction engineer could hold, starting as foreman of a small gang of men, then draughtsman, superintendent, resident engineer, chief engineer on their largest contract, and supervising engineer or personal representative of the firm on four large hydraulic developments. I was three years supervising engineer in Porto Rico. The work comprised two large irrigation projects for the Porto Rican government and a power development for the Porto Rico Railway, Light and Power Co. These three contracts were carried on simultaneously. Member: Simon W. Robinson Lodge A. F. and A. M., Lexington, Mass.; St. Andrew's Chapter, R. A. Business	Physician.

Address	1521 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

I left Harvard in 1897 and studied privately for over a year, then entered the sophomore class at Boston College in 1898, but did not take my degree with the class of 1901. I entered Tufts Medical School and was graduated with the class of 1906. After I received my degree in medicine I made up the requirements for my medicine degree and received the degree of bachelor of arts from Boston College in June, 1907. I did post graduate work in the Harvard Medical School from 1906 to 1908, and in June, 1908, was appointed an assistant in the department of pharmacology, which position I held until September, 1912. I had been associated with Professor Franz Pfaff in his practice for some years, and after I left the Medical School I continued with him until he gave up his teaching and practice in January, 1913. Since then I have done hospital work, and at present am engaged in the practice of my chosen profession.

School	St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H.
Died	Nov. 29, 1910, in Chicago, Ill.

Sydney Stewart Williams died at Chicago, Illinois, on November 29, 1910. His illness was heart disease. After leaving Harvard in his sophomore year he spent a great deal of time in Europe and travelled extensively in England and on the continent. One of his journeys was of ten thousand miles on a bicycle, over little frequented routes. His work was much in laboratories and machine shops, although for some time he was in the employ of the Rock Island Railroad in various capacities, from draughtsman to assistant engineer in charge of culverts and bridges. For some time before he died he had been with the Whiting Foundry Company at Harvey, Illinois, in its engineering and experimental department, devoting his attention chiefly to internal combustion engines and valves. For a number of his inventions patents were issued. He was interested in out-of-door sports and was a member of the Onwentsia Country, Chicago Athletic, Chevy Chase Country, Pasadena and other clubs. He had studied art and, whenever he had leisure, turned his hand from his mechanical experiments to painting. His qualities of intellect and character won him the esteem of many older men.

Business	Lawyer.
Address	(home) 17 Broadway, Bangor, Me. (business) 15 State St., Bangor, Me.

Immediately after leaving college I spent three years at the Harvard Law School and then began the practice of law in Bangor, Maine, where I have been at work ever since. As must almost necessarily be the case in a small town or city, my practice has been general rather than specialized. I have given considerable attention to charitable and correctional work and the legislation connected therewith, and after serving on a state commission to investigate the advisability of creating a State Board of Charities and Corrections, I was, after the creation of such a board, made a member thereof two years ago and am still serving. Six years ago I was appointed by the chief justice of the state a member of the State Board of Bar Examiners and have given a good deal of attention to that work and indirectly to legal education. My life has gone on smoothly and quietly and I do not think of any other incidents worth noting.

My life as a country store-keeper pursues the even tenor that has characterized it since my leaving Cambridge in 1900. The interruptions are few and outside of a few hobbies it is a rather uneventful life. In 1911 I was a member of the general court of this state, serving in the house of representatives. Whether this is considered a position of honor by those members of the class who live within the borders of the state, or not, it may be so considered by the class at large. Among my hobbies, an interest in dog breeding and showing has a very prominent position, and I am for the second year serving as president of the Boston Terrier Club, Incorporated. When I can steal a few days from business my rod and gun are the companions I choose for the finest sort of an outing, and one of my regrets is that I cannot go farther afield with them, for

He who "loves wine, women and song"
  Is almost sure to get in wrong,
But he who loves the wind and sun
  Gets the best in life, ere his race is run.

I have written: The Boston Terrier Standard and Scale of Points (adopted by the Boston Terrier Club and published by the club this year.)

The account in the last class report is as accurate as I can write. Since 1910 there has been nothing new to record beyond the style of the firm name under which the practice of law has been continued. In 1912 Mr. Tuttle left the firm to become attorney general of New Hampshire and thereafter John R. McLane (Harvard, 1912) joined us. The firm is now Taggart, Burroughs, Wyman and McLane. Member: Derryfield Club of Manchester, Intervale Country Club of Manchester.
